Khrush Says Communism Backs Wars Of Liberation

No. 1 Red Claims World Victory Is "Inevitable"

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev says the world Communist movement fully supports wars of national liberation.

The Soviet leader in a 20,000-word speech published Tuesday in the magazine Kommunist called such conflicts a third class of war as distinguished from total thermonuclear and limited "brush fire" wars.

Khrushchev declared that war is not necessary for a victory by world communism, which he said "is not far off."

But he warned in his speech, a report delivered Jan. 6 to a general meeting of party organizations in Moscow, that war will come if capitalist nations try to resist communism's victory — a victory he said is "inevitable by the laws of historical development."

Algerian Conflict Example

Khrushchev cited the present Algerian conflict as an example of the third class of war.

Khrushchev said of Algeria:

"It is a sacred war. We recognize such wars. We have helped and shall go on helping people fighting for their freedom."

As another example he mentioned the revolution in Cuba and said that "led by Fidel Castro the people of Cuba won." Khrushchev noted that the United States "did not directly intervene in that war."

His samples of the second class of war, local war which might develop into big ones, were the Indochina fighting of 1953-54 and British-French action in Suez in 1956. He made no mention of the fighting in Laos.

He said it was to communism's advantage to avoid annihilating thermonuclear and "brush fire" wars.

Khrushchev also declared the Soviet Union was sincerely for disarmament which he called "the most important factor in preventing war," and also an important factor in the fight against imperialism.

Communism Looks To Africa

The Soviet premier saw a fertile field for communism in the awakening of the nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America which he said was second only to the emergence of the world socialist system in historic impact.

He predicted that "fascist dungeons in the Union of South Africa will crumble to dust. Rhodesia, Uganda and other parts of Africa will be free."

"The working class, which today governs a vast area of the world and in time will rule the whole world," Khrushchev said, "cannot allow the doomed forces (imperialism) to drag hundreds of millions of people into the grave with them."

One of the means for preventing a new war is the development of "peace fronts" throughout the world, including pacifists of all political beliefs, he said.

Another is the policy of peaceful coexistence.

Rickover Receives Navy's Top Award

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover stood on the bridge of the submarine Nautilus as she first sailed under nuclear power six years ago.

With 16 atomic submarines in service, Rickover stood again on the Nautilus, Tuesday—the sailing sixth anniversary — and received the Navy's highest peacetime decoration, the Distinguished Service Medal.

Pinning on the decoration, Secretary of the Navy William B. Franke said the fiery admiral was "largely responsible for making the dreams of nuclear power for ships come true."

Grief-Stricken Family

Mrs. Everett Riddle wipes a tear from her eye after being told of the discovery of the body of her daughter, Rose Marie, 6, in desolate rangeland northwest of Bakersfield, Calif., yesterday. Consoling her is daughter Janet, 7, and her husband, Everett. Daughter Of Bank President Admits Taking $2 Million

SHELDON, Iowa (AP)—Where did the money go? Why did she take it?

A dumbfounded Iowa community, which awoke Tuesday morning to find one of its respected banks closed and a prominent citizen in jail for embezzling $2 million, could only wonder the answers.

The answers apparently remain with Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, a conservative—almost shy—assistant cashier and board member of the Sheldon National Bank.

A routine audit by federal bank examiners Monday night swiftly turned up the alleged shortages at the bank.

Then U.S. Dist. Atty. F. E. Van Alstine said at Sioux City that Mrs. Geiger admitted embezzling $2,126,859 — one of the largest amounts ever taken in banking history in this country.

William Crary, an assistant U.S. district attorney, said it had not been determined how she manipulated the embezzlement or how she spent the money. It apparently was taken over a long period of time, he said.

"She had a way of covering up," Van Alstine said. He declined to discuss the case further, pending the convening of a grand jury at Sioux City Jan. 30.

Mrs. Geiger waived hearing and was held for the grand jury when arraigned before U.S. Commissioner William Forker at Sioux City. Bond was set at $10,000. She did not immediately make bail.

After the shortage was discovered, the bank's directors voted to turn the institution over to federal authorities for liquidation.

Customers of the bank, which had deposits in excess of $2 million, were protected to a maximum of $10,000 for each depositor through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., government officials said. Payment in full of insured deposits would begin in 10 days, the FDIC said.

Mrs. Geiger and her husband, Wallace, are members of prominent and long - time Sheldon families. Geiger operates a hardware store.

Her father, W. P. Iverson, 83, has been president of the bank for 45 years and was a druggist here.

"I'm all choked up," was all Iverson would say.

Three Terrorists Executed In Cuba

HAVANA (UPI) — Three Cubans were executed as terrorists Tuesday by Premier Fidel Castro's firing squads which went back into action to cope with growing anti - government sentiment.

One of the three men executed was charged with plotting to blow up an ammunition dump while the premier was in the vicinity in an apparent attempt on his life.

The executions were carried out in a flood-lighted area of Cabana fortress across the bay from Havana less than an hour after the sentences were handed down by a military tribunal. About 50 other accused terrorists are involved in the continuing trials.

The executed men were identified as Balbino Diaz, Jose M. Mesa and Julio A. Yebra.

Former Convict Admits Rape-Slaying Of Girl, 6

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A Texas ex-convict Tuesday admitted luring a frail 6-year-old heart patient from her home, raping her then strangling her. He said his pregnant wife helped, and at one point struck the child on the head with a tire wrench. The wife denied it.

Richard Arlen Lindsey, $77-a-week farm worker and admitted mental case, cracked under endless hours of questioning after authorites told him they had found the body of blonde, blue - eyed Rose Marie Riddle.

They were led to the scene, a field some 60 miles north of this city in California's vast agricultural San Joaquin Valley, by the wife, Dixie Elaine Lindsey.

She broke down Monday night and told sheriff's deputies her husband abducted the girl last Thursday. She said Lindsey, 30, drove to the field, told his wife to leave the car, drove off with the girl, and returned without her. The car seat, she said, was covered with blood when he returned.

Lindsey, according to Dist. Atty. Kit Nelson, told this story:

He and his wife, 23, and pregnant with her fourth child, drove the girl to the field. Afterward, as the girl lay whimpering, the wife came over and struck her with the wrench, killing her.

Nelson said Mrs. Lindsey denied this, claiming the couple argued in the car, that Lindsey struck her and forced her out, and went into the field without her.

After a preliminary examination of the body, a coroner said the child had been sexually molested. There were 19 gashes on her head and face, he reported.

Inaugural Ball Grows, Parade Has Test Run

WASHINGTON (AP)—The "old guard" marched along the "new frontier" Tuesday in a test run—late starting, of course—of Friday's gigantic inaugural parade.

And the Inaugural Committee caved in to pressure and added two more sections to the inaugural ball.

This last switch set off a frenzied reshuffling of schedules.

The parade and ball are key events of the great day when John F. Kennedy puts his hand on a Bible, takes the oath as America's 35th president, and puts a new administration on the rail to what he calls the new frontiers of the 1960s.

The weatherman sounded cooperative about the big day. Generally fair and a little warmer is the outlook, but there's just a chance of some dampness.

The Inaugural Committee zealously papered the country with invitations to the inaugural ball and found itself entangled in the results of its own enthusiasm. Too many customers, even at $25 a ticket, for the space available.

So a ball which started out in the National Guard armory expanded to the Sheraton Park Hotel, then the Mayflower, and now to the Statler Hilton and the Shoreham.

This should take care of an extra few thousand people who are eager to waltz, quaff champagne, and wait for the arrival of the new president and first lady and Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson togged out in formal finery for a dazzling event.

But the timetable is being rejiggered frantically because the committee that once promised the Kennedys and Johnsons would divide their time equally among three places now is faced with the problem of dividing their time five ways instead of three.

The dry run of the parade was dry, all right, and precise. It was just the first section, the presidential section of the parade, but without any of the principals, naturally. A "V" of motorcycle police started it off. The Army band took part. The massed presidential colors, and those of all the states, were borne majestically along the full 2¾-mile route.

And the Army's "old guard fife and drum corps" swung along, beating and tootling, in bright red continental uniforms.

Lives Of 26 In Tower Hulk Written Off

Deep Sea Diver Reports No Hint Of Life In Wreck

ABOARD THE USS WASP (AP)—A deep sea diver tapped again and again Tuesday on the sides of the sunken Texas tower No. 4. But he got no answer—not even the slimmest hint of life aboard. The darkness, the silence apparently bespoke the doom of 26 men believed trapped within the storm-wrecked ocean sentinel.

"No response to tapping — no, repeat, no sign of life," was the heartbreaking message flashed from this Navy aircraft carrier to shore stations.

Tapping Raised Hope

Then he handed command of the operation to the Coast Guard and ordered the Wasp back to regular duties, thus reluctantly writing off the lives of the entombed men.

Some of the victims were believed still alive hours after the 67 - foot tower buckled and sank Sunday night in an Atlantic gale. There had been tapping sounds from the tower Monday and as late as 3:45 a.m. Tuesday, stirring a dramatic hope of survivors clinging to life in air pockets aboard the tower structure.

There were 28 men aboard the tower when it fell and came to rest 50 feet beneath the surface, wedged among the tripod supports that gave way beneath it. One body was recovered, a second sighted on the surface and lost. The remaining 26 were believed trapped in the wreckage.

Divers Tap; No Response

With dawn's first light, divers descended into the icy waters, spurred by the memory of the mysterious underwater sounds. But two hours later, it seemed apparent there was little chance of anyone still alive in the wreckage.

Commercial diver Jim Cahill, 35, of Beverley, Mass., and a companion, spent an hour tapping their way about the tower's personnel areas. They came up about noon with their grim report of no response.

McNamara Plan For Trust Fund Raises Concern

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense-designate Robert S. McNamara, who sold his Ford stock in a move to allay fears, discovered the fears persist — among the senators who must approve him.

Their concern focused on the problem of conflict of interest. While the Senate Armed Services Committee had no question about McNamara's sale of $1.5 million worth of Ford Motor Co. stock, two members questioned him closely Tuesday about what he is going to do with the money.

McNamara has put the total—$1.1 million after taxes—into government bonds. He then plans to convert the bonds into a trust fund. Trustees would invest the money without consulting him.

"It's not my purpose to be harsh," Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said to McNamara. But, Byrd said, the trust fund presented the same problem as the Ford stock—for the fund trustees might invest money in companies that did business with the Defense Department, just as the Ford Motor Co. might do business with the department.

Byrd said the trust fund thus might violate the conflict of interest law, which was passed in 1873.

"I will be quite happy to modify the agreement any way you suggest," McNamara told Byrd and the other members of the committee. The 44-year-old former president of the Ford Motor Co. suggested that his lawyers could sit down with lawyers of Congress and work out a satisfactory trust fund.

The chairman, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told McNamara the committee had not decided yet if that was necessary. Russell added that, in any case, the committee could not act on McNamara until it formally received his nomination from President-elect John F. Kennedy. The formal nomination is expected after the inauguration Friday.

Train Hits Gas Truck; Six Die In Fiery Crash

Flaming Fuel Engulfs Wide Area; Six Hurt

MAGNOLIA, Miss. (AP) — The streamliner "City of New Orleans," speeding toward Chicago at nearly 80 miles per hour with its "whistle blowing like hell," smashed into a gasoline truck Tuesday, killing six and injuring six others.

The nine-car Illinois Central passenger train rammed the truck at a crossing in downtown Magnolia, a community of about 2,200 in south Mississippi about 100 miles north of New Orleans.

The truck exploded under the impact, spewing flames as high as the trees and the length of the train. The train—en route from New Orleans to Chicago—skidded about 300 yards along the track that splits the center of the town before stopping.

Among the dead were the train's engineer and fireman—J. A. Livingston of McComb, Miss., and John Collins of Jackson, Miss.—and the truck driver, Morris Piggott, operator of a small store near McComb.

The others killed were identified as Bobby Gwin of Magnolia, a white man who worked in the freight yards, and two Negroes unloading grain from freight cars—Kancey Johns and Charles Hughes, both of Magnolia.

R. L. Williams, a Magnolia painter, was in a Main Street store when he heard the streamliner approaching, its whistle "blowing like hell." Williams said the truck driver apparently didn't hear the train and started slowly across the tracks.

"The train smashed into the truck and shot flames as high as the trees and spread the length of the train," Williams said. "I knew somebody was burning up and I couldn't do anything about it, I could feel the flames."

Flaming gasoline rained on the workers, boxcars and a nearby warehouse. The freight cars and warehouse were badly burned.

Speeds near 80 are not unusual, IC spokesman said, even when passing through small communities like Magnolia. The city is not even a flag stop, they said.

There is a red and white sign warning motorists to stop at the crossing, but there are no flashing lights or cross bars.

Michigan Man Kills Wife, Four Children, Self

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP)—A Grand Blanc man shot and killed his wife and four children Tuesday, then turned a deer rifle on himself.

Dead are Thomas Clark, 37, and his wife, Janet, also 37, and their four children, Carl, 12, Kathleen, 11, Karen, 10, and Kurt, 8.

The pajama-clad bodies of Mrs. Clark and the children were found in beds on the second floor of their two-story home here. Police said each had been shot once with a deer rifle.

Clark's body was found fully clothed in a downstairs bedroom. A deer rifle was beside him.

Police said the shootings apparently occurred sometime early in the morning. The bodies were discovered around 5 p.m.

Neighbors reported Clark, a supervisory employe at the Fisher body plant in Grand Blanc, had been despondent lately.

Six Klansmen Face Jury Action In U. Of Ga. Riot

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—Six Ku Klux Klansmen were bound over to a grand jury Tuesday on charges stemming from a riot on the newly-integrated University of Georgia campus last week.

The two Negro students whose presence sparked the riot—Charlayne Hunter, 18, and Hamilton Holmes, 19—attended classes at the university for the second day Tuesday without incident.

As the Klansmen were being haled before a municipal judge, local police announced they had captured a man believed to be the gunman who showed up at Miss Hunter's dormitory Sunday night and asked if the Negro coed was on campus. When told she wasn't he took a gun from an elderly guard and fled.

Police said the man arrested Tuesday had the guard's gun in his possession. Authorities said he was picked up on complaint of two women who said he had threatened them. He opened fire when police attempted to make the arrest and had to be subdued.

Police refused to disclose the suspect's name. "I think the guy's just a mental case," Clarke County Sheriff H. T. Huff said. "I don't think the racial issue had anything to do with him going up to that dormitory."

The six Klansmen were charged with carrying weapons to a public gathering and were freed under $500 bond.

A number of plainclothesmen were still on the University of Georgia campus Tuesday but they stayed in the background as Holmes and Miss Hunter went normally about their business.

A LAST GOOD NIGHT — President Eisenhower makes his farewell television-radio address as chief executive to the nation. Lumumba Seen In Handcuffs At Elisabethville

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo, (AP)—Patrice Lumumba was reported here Tuesday under close guard and in handcuffs, but the reason was a mystery.

The reports came from officials of the Belgian air line, Sabena, who said they saw the firebrand ex-premier arrive and also from Katanga Province officials commenting privately.

Sources close to the central government in Leopoldville, however, professed ignorance of any transfer.

For some time rumors have circulated in Leopoldville of a plan to take Lumumba to Elisabethville, the stronghold of secessionist Katanga Province, headed by President Moise Tshombe, arch enemy of the leftist Lumumba.

There was one possible reason for the transfer, if it actually occurred. Albert Delvaux, one of the ministers organizing President Joseph Kasavubu's projected roundtable conference of Congolese leaders, said in Leopoldville the meeting will be held in Elisabethville.

Originally it had been scheduled for Leopoldville on Jan. 25. A new date now will be set by Tshombe and Kasavubu.

About 500 representatives are expected at the conference, called to try to work out peace among warring factions. The meeting could hardly be held without Lumumba, who holds the loyalty of forces controlling Oriental, Kivu, and parts of Katanga and Kasai Provinces.

Coincidental with reports of Lumumba's arrival in Elisabethville was a roundup of more than 400 people accused of threatening the safety of the state. Many were described as Lumumba supporters, and the Katanga government would certainly want them locked up to lessen chances of any move here to help Lumumba escape.

Valedictory Is Delivered By President

Chief Executive Says Farewell With Prayer For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said a last good night to the American people Tuesday night with a prayer for peace and prosperity for all and a warning that "crises there will continue to be."

The man who steps out of the White House three days from now, after half a century of service to the country, told his fellow countrymen he wished he could say that lasting peace is in sight.

"But," Eisenhower said, "so much remains to be done."

And the old soldier said it is with "a definite sense of disappointment" that he lays down his official responsibilities in the search for a disarmament he said is a continuing imperative.

It was in something of a mellow and reminiscent mood that Eisenhower spoke to the nation in a farewell radio-television address from his White House office.

But he also was in a mood to look into the days and years ahead.

And he told the people that America is pre-eminent today — "the strongest, the most influential and most productive nation in the world."

Must Not Live Only For Today

Perhaps with the spending plans of the new administration and promises of the Democratic platform in mind, Eisenhower said at one point that:

"As we peer into society's future, we—you and I, and our government—must avoid the impulse to live only for today, plundering, for our own ease and convenience, the precious resources of tomorrow."

"We cannot mortgage the material assets of our grandchildren without risking the loss also of their political and spiritual heritage," he said. "We want democracy to survive for all generations to come, not to become the insolvent phantom of tomorrow."

Eisenhower carried on business as usual as the time approached for his retirement to private life.

In his broadcast, Eisenhower said that threats, new in kind or degree, constantly arise before the people and the government and he wanted to mention two.

Military-Industrial Complex

In these times when the military establishment is a vital element in keeping the peace, Eisenhower said, the country's arms must be mighty and ready.

The nation is spending more every year on military security than all the net income of U.S. corporations, he said, and the combination of an immense military establishment and a vast, permanent armaments industry is new in the American experience.

Spelling out the first threat, then, the President said that:

"In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military - industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist.

"We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes. We should take nothing for grant-

Laos Forces Extend Drive

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Victory at Vang Vieng heartened government forces Tuesday and cleared the way for a flanking drive against leftist rebels holding the strategic plateau called the Plaine Des Jarres.

Rout of about 500 of Capt. Kong Le's pro-Communist force from Vang Vieng in a 30-minute battle Monday eased the Red pressure on one of the two main fronts.

Road blocks that had chopped ground communications between the administrative capital of Vientiane and Luang Prabang, the royal capitol 140 miles to the north, were cleared.

Col. Kouprasith Abhay directed the attack by a ground force of 600 men who moved up in three columns.

Guns and rockets of four American-made trainer planes turned over to Premier Boun Oum's pro-Western regime by the United States last week helped to speed the rebels on their flight into the hills.

Sixteen were captured. Among the rebel dead was Lt. Thong My, a top aide of Kong Le. Government casualties were not announced.

Marine Unions' Strike Forces NYC To Halt Service Out Of Grand Central

NEW YORK (AP) — Pickets posted by 660 striking marine workers forced the New York Central Railroad Tuesday to halt all its train service out of mammoth Grand Central Terminal. Forty thousand commuters were hit by the tieup.

The line said Buffalo will be the temporary eastern terminus for most of its long distance trains. Some service, on a curtailed basis, continues to and from Albany.

The line said Albany, N.Y., would become the temporary eastern terminus for most of its long distance trains, but that service on some would end at Buffalo, N.Y.

Twelve Central long distance trains, carrying a total of 3,000 passengers, normally arrive here daily.

Most of the 40,000 commuter passengers hit live in suburban Westchester County. Just how many of them simply stayed home from work or managed to find other means of transportation wasn't known.

Pickets causing the tieup represent four marine unions on strike for the last week against tugboats and ferryboats operated by 11 railroads.

The pickets extended their patrolling Monday to some Central train routes and the trainmen refused to cross the lines. The Central picketing was broadened still further Tuesday.

Most New Haven trains, which also use Grand Central, were running normally. However, shortage of equipment in the station caused cancellation of one train.

Some 30,000 ferryboat commuters previously had been forced to find other transportation. The flow of food that normally comes into the city across the Hudson River from New Jersey also has been greatly curtailed by the marine strike.

Chief issue in the strike is disagreement over the size of tugboat crews—now generally five. The railroads want to reduce the number; the unions want it kept.

ed. Only an alert and knowledgable citizenry can compel the proper meshing of the huge industrial and military machinery of defense with our peaceful methods and goals, so that security and liberty may prosper together."

The second threat is tied to the technological revolution of recent decades which has reached the point, Eisenhower said, where "for every old blackboard there are now hundreds of new electric computers."

The prospect of domination of the nation's scholars by federal employment, project allocations, and the power of money is ever present—and is gravely to be regarded, he said.

"Yet, in holding scientific research and discovery in respect, as we should," he said, "we must also be alert to the equal and opposite danger that the public policy could itself become the captive of a scientific - technological elite.

"Like every other citizen," Eisenhower said, "I wish the new president, and all who will labor with him, God speed. I pray that the coming years will be blessed with peace and prosperity for all."

As for a Congress which was under Democratic control for six of his eight years in office, Eisenhower said his official relationship with it ends in a feeling on his part "of gratitude that we have been able to do so much together."

And speaking directly to those watching and listening in, Eisenhower offered his thanks for many opportunities the people have given him for public service in war and peace.

Patent Drug Bill Praised And Assailed

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A bill under which the State Health Department could outlaw door-to-door sales of household medicines was praised Tuesday as protection of the public "from quacks" and attacked as an attempt to corner the patent drug market for pharmacists.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee heard nearly two hours of debate on the measure and decided to call in federal drug authorities for further testimony before taking any action.

Everett B. McVey of Baltimore, representing manufacturers of the household medicines, said the bill to let the department label as "dangerous" any drug it saw fit—and therefore require prescriptions—is a conspiracy between the department and pharmacists.

"It is aimed at giving them (the pharmacists) a competitive and monopolistic advantage in the sale of medicine," McVey said. He said the health department and the pharmacists "undoubtedly are working hand and fist in this matter."

"They really want to get the supermarkets who are giving them competition," he said. "But they want to get us first .... They'd like to get our products and sell them, but if so you'll be paying through the nose."

Robert N. Brown, chief of environmental hygiene for the health department, said the department seeks to prevent "misrepresentations" to families by itinerant sellers of medicine. He said some of these people "go around recommending the use of drugs which do families no good and delay them in seeing a doctor. These vendors do injury to the public in allaying their anxiety when they might have a serious illness."

"Dog Woman" Found Dead In Her Home

BALTIMORE (AP) — A policeman walking his beat Tuesday found a dead woman in the hallway of her home. The victim was identified as Miss Florence Schubert, 60, a Water Department clerk since 1947.

Patrolman Raymond Leonards, who found the body, said there were 30 dogs in the house.

In July of last year, Police Magistrate Howard L. Aaron had ordered Miss Schubert to get rid of 28 of 30 dogs she had then. Neighbors had complained the animals were a nuisance.

The 73-year-old archbishop, the Most Rev. Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, had built up a reputation during his 16-year reign as one of the most colorful and controversial leaders in the church's history.

Stahr Making Sacrifice To Take Army Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elvis J. Stahr Jr., who is quitting as West Virginia University president to become secretary of the Army, told senators Tuesday he agreed to take the Defense Department post because "I felt I could not turn it down."

"I did not seek this position," the 44-year old educator said.

Stahr was questioned by the Senate Armed Services Committee along with other nominees of President-elect John F. Kennedy for Defense posts.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, asked Stahr his opinion on recommendations of the Kennedy task force headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. It recommended elimination of the civilian secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

"Incredible as it may sound I have not read it," Stahr replied. He said he had been so busy winding up his affairs as a university president and planning to come to Washington that he had not read many things he wants to read later.

Stahr said he was making both a personal and financial sacrifice to take the Army secretaryship which pays $22,000 a year. At the university, he received $30,000.

"I'm glad to see that the state of West Virginia is able to pay its college professors so well," Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told him.

Russell noted that Stahr's list of stock holdings and investments was small, but said some of them were in defense industries. He said he assumed these would be sold.

Stahr said that some Bethlehem Steel stock, in his name, actually belongs to his daughter. He said it was given to her by her grandfather. He said other steel stock was held by Mrs. Stahr and was a gift from her mother.

Even so, Stahr said he planned to sell the stock held by his daughter.

C&O Will Transfer 600 To Huntington

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway announced Tuesday it had purchased an idle government building for additional office space and would transfer about 600 employes here from Richmond and Detroit later this year.

The building, constructed by the Navy during World War II and leased for several years to the Sylvania Electric Products, was purchased from the General Services Administration for $850,000. The railway said it would spend $700,000 in extensive remodeling.

Md. House Group Airs Physical Unfitness Issue

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Some Maryland lawmakers worked up a pretty good sweat Tuesday over a weighty problem: The physical unfitness of American youth.

Wrestling with this question, the House Ways and Means Committee touched on such subjects as:

Why women in this country live longer than men.

Why Germany lost World War

The cause-and-effect relationship between television and bulging waistlines.

The springboard launching the committee members into all this was a resolution by Del. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Harford.

It calls for the governor to set up a commission to check whether the state is doing enough "to improve the fitness, general posture, strength, and good health of all young men and women in Maryland."

The longevity question was raised by Del. Margaret C. Schweinhaut, D - Montgomery. She's head of the State Commission on Problems of the Aging.

"Women are living 15 years longer than men," said Mrs. Schweinhaut. "I wonder if it's because of physical fitness."

Physical education professor Benjamin H. Massey, a witness favoring the resolution, didn't argue the point.

"But I've heard it said," he suggested, "that men die sooner because men marry women and women don't marry women."

Harry D. Kaufman, a lawyer and chairman of the Baltimore City Jail Board, compared the United States with Rome. He said something about the Romans getting rich and fat "before the Greeks, with all their Spartan training, conquered them."

This caused committee chairman A. Gordon Boone to sit bolt upright in protest, noticeably improving his posture.

"It wasn't the Greeks," he declared. "You're about 1,000 years too soon."

Boone also became involved with Kaufman in a discussion of U. S. and German troops in World War II. He questioned Kaufman's statement that U. S. troops lacked the stamina displayed by the Germans.

Delivering the backhand to television was Rudolph J. Matousek, director of physical education at the Baltimore Central Y. M. C. A.

"The American boy of today watches television instead of getting out and playing sports," he said.

Before the committee approved the study resolution, it was told Maryland is one of only three states lacking a coordinated physical fitness program for youngsters.

Virginian Gets Whisky Back

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — A Virginia resident has received 43 fifths of post-Christmas cheer which he had purchased in Washington and was carrying in his car when a Montgomery County policeman arrested him Dec. 27. He was charged with transporting into the state liquor that did not bear Maryland tax stamps.

Herman Paige of Alexandria was found innocent by Judge Einar B. Christensen in Peoples Court Monday after he testified the liquor was purchased for a friend's birthday party in the Georgetown section of Washington, and that it was not intended to be consumed in Maryland.

Paige told the court that after he bought the whisky he wanted to buy a birthday cake. A friend suggested a store in Silver Spring, and it was while he was on this errand, that he was arrested on the transportation charge, Paige testified.

The judge said testimony showed the whisky was not for delivery and consumption in Maryland. He returned not only the 43 fifths but also $75 Paige had posted.

Ceiling Yields Old U.S. Flags

BALTIMORE (AP) — Workmen renovating a building have found two United States flags more than 80 years old in the third-floor ceiling. One has 39 stars, the other 36.

There is only one tear in the 39-star flag, used between 1876 and 1879. The older flag, used between 1864 and 1867, is badly frayed and extremely dirty.

The building where the flags were found is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Nochumowitz and Mrs. Nochumowitz's mother, Mrs. Ethel Press. Nochumowitz, who operates a tavern next door, said the third floor had been unoccupied for 30 years.

He said he hasn't decided what to do with the flags.

Baltimore Smashes Dope-Peddling Ring

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore City and federal investigators said Tuesday they have broken up a dope-peddling ring in Baltimore with the arrest of 12 persons since Saturday.

Capt. Joseph F. Carroll, chief of the Police Department's narcotics bureau, said the arrests climaxed six months of undercover investigation, in which agents posed as addicts and bought $1,600 worth of heroin on Baltimore street corners.

Supplies of the narcotics came to Baltimore from New York and Washington, Capt. Carroll said.

Two Women, 'Canned Heaters,' Found Dead

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two women died Tuesday in a rundown apartment littered with empty wine bottles and canned heat containers.

One of the victims was identified as Mary Forks, 40, Negro. The other, also Negro, was about 38 years old but was not identified by name. Police said the women had been drinking canned heat.

The apartment had no windows, no lights but kerosene lamps and was littered with about 50 empty cans of canned heat.

Boston, in 1851, became the first city to have an electric fire alarm system.

Hopkins Library Project Given "Highest Priority"

BALTIMORE (AP) — Construction of a new $4.5 million library on the campus of Johns Hopkins University has been given "highest priority," the school's Board of Trustees announced Tuesday.

The board allocated $1 million of foundation funds for the building, designed to meet the needs of the university until beyond the year 2000.

Dudley Browne reported new street signs have been erected at Weires Avenue and Eleanor Street, Henry Drive and Shinnamon Drive, Braddock Street and Rye Street, Rye and Distillery Street and Rye Street and Lane Avenue.

Douglas Smith in a report on the zoning board, emphasized that all residents of the community must obtain permits for new construction.

Named to the permanent nominating committee are Mrs. Bess Buchanan, chairman; Albert Tosh, Allen Macy and Mrs. Florence Whitworth, who is chairman of the Board of Directors.

The group also voted a $50 contribution to the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company's fund drive and expressed appreciation to firemen for providing facilities for its meetings.

The board meets the third Monday of each month at 7:30 p. m.

Budgets Due In County By February 10

The heads of all departments have been notified by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to submit their budget estimates by February 10.

Last year the county board asked for the budget estimates early so that they could be analyzed carefully and with enough time so that any changes could be decided upon prior to the setting of the levy in April.

Commissioner John T. Mason, who has been handling the financial program for the board, said the county is "in good shape financially." He cited the tax collections of the past year of $3,533,682 as excellent. Additional money is being realized from the investment of tax monies pending their needs for operating costs of the county government.

Mason said that proposed school construction costs will be carefully considered and that the outlook generally is good.

Much work has been done in renovating the Court House, including exterior pointing and cleaning of the structure. Several rooms in the basement will be remodeled to provide office space for county agencies and commissions.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said the Roads Department, which is under his jurisdiction, has programmed several federal aid road projects and it is hoped there will be enough money available to buy much needed equipment. A certain amount of equipment will have to be replaced and some additional road construction equipment purchased.

Last year the county board provided for wage increases for county employes and also instituted the county library program. Despite the added costs, the county was able to cut the tax rate two cents per $100.

Although no one hinted at the possible surplus in the current budget, it is believed that there will be a sizeable amount available to be used in determining the new tax rate and budget.

Bulldog mascots have served with distinction in the United States Marines. One Leatherneck dog was awarded five campaign ribbons and the Bronze Star for World War II service in the Pacific. Another mascot rose to sergeant after his Quantico, Va., baseball team won the all-Navy championship.

Five Eagle Scouts Given Approval At Honor Court

Five new Eagle Scouts were approved along with two Silver Awards for Explorer Scouts at an Eagle Board of Review conducted by Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, Monday in the Scout house on North Mechanic Street.

John L. Towler, this city, council advancement committee chairman, said two of the young men are from Petersburg, two from Bowling Green, one from LaVale and two from Frostburg.

Approved for Eagle Scout, Scouting's highest award, were Barth Sites and Jerry Cowherd, of Troop 63, sponsored by the Petersburg Kiwanis Club.

Delton Johnson Jr. and Lester Boden Jr., both from Troop 80, sponsored by the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company; William Pritts Jr., Post 10, LaVale.

Passing requirements for the Silver Award, the highest honor for an Explorer Scout, were Wayne Lewis and Ronald Ward, of Air Squadron 42, sponsored by First Methodist Church, Frostburg.

Each of the young men will receive their badges in ceremonies conducted in their respective troops and posts.

The board of review was comprised of Towler, John C. Means, Cumberland, and James F. Jones, Frostburg, of the council advancement committee, and Willis V. Smith, council executive.

$10,000 Set Aside For Flood Fund

Included in the budget which President Eisenhower submitted to Congress Monday is a $10,000 item for the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection project.

The request was made by the U. S. Army Engineers for operation and maintenance, according to Rep. Harley O. Staggers of the Second West Virginia District.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, who is superintendent of the local flood control maintenance crew, said the amount is an annual estimated cost established by the Army Engineers for local emergency. Included would be a $2,000 figure which has been contracted by the Engineers with the city the past couple years for minor maintenance problems such as weed clearance.

In the past couple years, accumulations of rock and gravel in the flood control channel have been removed by Cumberland Cement and Supply Company without cost to the city and for the materials collected.

As an example of what the anticipated cost fund is for, should this service not be repeated, then the Engineers would be responsible and would pay for the removal of the stone and gravel.

When the local project was turned over to the city, it became responsible for maintenance. This cost, which includes a special crew, exceeds $30,000 annually.

Area Residents Win Prizes

Western Maryland residents scored a sweep of all first prizes in the fifty-second annual sweepstakes of the Maryland State Beekeepers Association at College Park last week.

Fern Wilson, a hobbyist, took six first places in white extracted, light amber extracted, light and dark combs, granulated honey and beeswax.

Paul McFarland won first place awards in light extracted and chunk, and John H. Lindner and John V. Lindner won top honors in amber and dark extracted honey.

A special award for the best entry in the senior class went to McFarland for his chunk entry.

Blinker Light Plan Supported

The South Cumberland Business and Civic Association, Inc., has expressed appreciation to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming for his plan to place a blinker light at the Oldtown Road-Virginia Avenue intersection.

Lawrence I. Marks, president, said "We are in full accord with this change, feeling it will lessen the hazard of this dangerous intersection."

Fleming also received a letter from Queen City Dairy by Jack Fossett, sales manager, thanking him for the appearance of Officer Charles Cubbage at the dairy's annual kiddy show. The letter praised Cubbage's work in connection with youth safety programs and the local firm pledged its cooperation in the child safety program of the city.

What's in it for a Volkswagen dealer?
(and why we're looking for a few more)

The Volkswagen is an unusually good car.

It's also a reasonably priced car. (That's why it's always sold at the full list price; never at a discount.)

Volkswagen dealers continually find the demand for VWs always greater than the supply.

In fact, the VW is the only car in the world that people are willing to wait months to get. And as a result, VW dealers sell more cars per dealer than any other dealer selling any other make.

In 1960, Volkswagen dealers across the country sold around 185,000 VWs (including station wagons and trucks). That's approximately 35,000 (or 23%) more than in 1959.

The VW dealer has more to sell than passenger cars alone. He sells a complete line of automobiles: sedan, sun roof, convertible, Karmann Ghia coupe and convertible, station wagons and trucks.

(You might be interested to know that for the past 2 years Volkswagen trucks have been the 4th best-selling trucks in the country in the 6,000 lb. gross vehicle weight category, which takes in 75% of the trucks sold in the United States.)

The Volkswagen dealer also sells service. And he can run a profitable service operation (without charging exorbitant prices) because the Volkswagen remains basically the same from year to year. Almost every new VW part will fit any year VW, way back to the earliest.

So the money a VW dealer invests in parts works 4 or 5 times as hard as a parts investment for cars that keep changing every year. And VW mechanics soon get to be experts because they don't have to relearn their jobs every year.

People know when they're getting a fair shake. More than 70% of the 500,000 Americans who own Volkswagens bring their cars back to their Volkswagen dealers for routine maintenance.

And many of them have been willing to wait all over again for their second and third Volkswagens.

This priceless word-of-mouth advertising by satisfied VW owners has created a reputation for honesty, integrity and dedication that is outstanding in the automobile business (or in any other).

Why are we telling you all this?

Because the Volkswagen factory is expanding and will soon be producing more cars. In the months ahead, we will be opening a few new Volkswagen dealerships in new areas, where Volkswagens are not being sold now.

Since we won't sell VWs unless Authorized VW Dealer Service is available, we are looking for people to establish these new dealerships in keeping with Volkswagen's high standards of service.

If you think you might be interested in an Authorized VW Dealership in Cumberland, write to: L. E. Harlow, G.S.M., Capitol Car Distributors Ltd., 5011 Lawrence Pl., Bladensburg, Md.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — It's a daring move, but Jack Warner has decided to film "Formosa" on the island of Formosa, one of the most potentially dangerous locales on the globe. Trouble from Red China could explode there at any minute—but it must not be imminent because Warner obtained permission from both Nationalist China and the government of the United States to make the picture in this trouble spot.

Anyway, I say that everyone connected with the movie is brave and optimistic and that goes for Robert Taylor, the star; Marion Hargrove and Allen Scott, the scripters, and producer Robert Fellows—all of whom will make the jaunt to Formosa.

Talk about being a business man these days, I had three numbers to call Rock Hudson — each of them at a business address. I wanted to ask him about "Somersault", which his Seven Pictures Corporation has just bought. It's an original story by Eleanor and Frank Perry, especially written for Rock, which he'll produce and star in, when he brings the Perry tale to the screen this summer. Henry Willson is associate producer.

Rock describes the story as a dramatic one with a light touch, about a Broadway director. You can be sure he'll get one of the top femme stars to play opposite him. There'll be no difficulty about that at all.

Don't pay any attention to all those rumors that Jennifer Jones is not going to be in "Tender is the Night." She'll start work in February and right now Jason Robards, Jr., who announced his engagement to Lauren Bacall last Friday, is very much in the picture.

It's ninety-nine and a half per cent settled that he'll co-star with Jennifer in this F. Scott Fitzgerald story for 20th. Jason has a big alimony bill to pay, and the money right now is very welcome.

Not only was I interested to hear that TV actress Ruta Lee gets the femme lead in the Adolf Eichmann story "Operation Eichmann", — but the role has been changed from his wife to his girlfriend! After all, it was the wife who was found with Hitler's butcher in Buenos Aires, not a girlfriend, so I asked "how come?" I was told his wife is still living and presumably might stir up some trouble.

I should think she might stir up more trouble about her husband being found with a girlfriend. However, that's the problem of producers Sam Bishcoff and Dave Diamond, and Allied Artists.

I was so pleased to receive one of the first copies of "Skyline", the book Gene Fowler was writing when he was tapped on the shoulder and called away. A note from his son Will says, "I am still working on my own book about Pop. It will be on the public's platter in about a year. God bless "That Young Man From Denver" (my book title), and the fine girl who loved Pop so well."

That "fine girl" is Will's mother and Gene's widow, Agnes Fowler.

What a wonderful and deserving compliment that Gene dedicated "Skyline" to Harry Brand, his friend of many years, and Hollywood's best loved public relations man.

Take heart — and hot oil treatments. Even professional waves turn fuzzy if you neglect your hair.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Which Home Permanent Looks Homemade?

If you are unhappy with the results of your home permanent, don't despair over your hair until you have retraced your own steps during the permanenting process. Practically every home permanent should be reasonably successful IF you have followed the manufacturers' directions. Instead of finding fault, yours may be a case of correcting faults—you own.

Home permanent manufacturers deliver explicit warnings against permanenting hair that is very dry, split or damaged, as it might be after overbleaching. The directions always recommend cutting off any remains of an old permanent before giving a new wave . . . and they ask anyone with sore or sensitive hands to wear protective gloves, or to postpone the wave before handling the chemicals.

It would seem hardly necessary to caution women with irritated scalps to wait before waving . . . but manufacturers mention it anyway. If they can't protect foolhardy customers from difficulties and dangers, such warnings at least protect the makers.

Before beginning a home permanent, read those directions and examine the illustrations on technique. Don't think you can trust your memory, just because you've given dozens of waves before, with the same brand. Directions are changed periodically, as manufacturers try to perfect their formulas for success.

Their experimental research and tests among consumers are never-ending. It's to their advantage as well as yours to keep the whole process as simple as it can be . . . holding errors and accidents to the bare minimum.

Now, if the "operator" is careless or inept, you can't blame the manufacturer. This is YOUR liability. And it's not quite fair to chide you too harshly, either, for attempting to perform an almost-impossible task. The acrobatics involved in cutting, thinning, parting, sectioning and rolling the hair properly are absolutely beyond most women . . . except, perhaps, for that Hindu goddess with the many arms and eyes.

So, invite an experienced friend to help you with your permanent. By pooling your patience together, the test-curling and timing and the tedium of repeated rinsing will be easier to take. You won't be tempted to cut corners and save time by skipping important steps or by bunching too much hair in the curlers.

Am I too late with this advice to rescue your kinky crown? Then, save the advice for next time . . . and save face now by calming that frizziness until you can cut it off, which may take several weeks for short hair. A professional beautician may be able to help you bear the interval of waiting with applications of neutralizer or a hot cap and colestro. Give your hair long hot oil soakings at home, too. Out in public, wear cover-up hats, turbans or veilings.

By the way, aren't you glad that the tall, brimless stovepipes are still stylish? Treat yourself to an all-flower or straw beehive for Spring, pulled all the way down to the ears. With just a frolicking fringe peeking out, no one will ever know your hair is playing hide and seek.

Sheriff's Pay Plan Studied

Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein discussed the proposed legislation calling for his salary to be increased from $4,800 to $5,400 at today's meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Haberlein said that published reports that he receives $1,000 expense money conveys an erroneous picture. None of the money is for his own expenses but is used to transport prisoners to state penal institutions and also to take inmates to mental institutions on occasion.

Commissioner John T. Mason asked Haberlein if any other county provides living quarters for their sheriffs. Haberlein said that some counties do provide these quarters.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said that during a recent meeting of the State Association of County Commissioners it was brought out that most counties pay their sheriffs more than Haberlein.

The error concerning the $1,000 expense money came from the manner in which it is listed in the budget for the sheriff's office.

California's San Bernardino County is so large that it could hold all of New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Delaware.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We bought a $35,000 home last June. In October some animal-lovers moved into the place next door. They bought it for $40,000 and they've just about turned this neighborhood into a barnyard.

These people have two dogs, three cats, bee hives, rabbits (eight last week probably 12 by now) a herd of chinchilla, a rooster and three pigs. We can take the dogs and cats and even the bees. The chinchillas are in a heated garage so they don't bother us, but that rooster and those pigs really do cheapen the neighborhood.

The pigs were cute when they were new-born but now they are just plain pigs. Usually they are penned up but they get out once in a while and wander around our property.

The rooster is the biggest nuisance of all. He crows at dawn and wakes up our entire household. We like the people and don't want to make trouble for them but it seems to me we should not have to put up with this just because we are good-natured. What do you suggest?—PEACE LOVERS

DEAR PEACE LOVERS: It's nice that your neighbors love animals but they should have a little love for their fellow man as well. Contact your local zoning commission. It may be that your neighbors are breaking the law. If they are within their legal rights you are justified in complaining about the trespassing pigs and the rooster who is disturbing the peace.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl is never ready on time when I pick her up for a date. Sometimes I have waited as long as 40 minutes for her. She's 19 and old enough to organize her life a little better.

It's very embarrassing when I go to pick her up because her mother and father don't speak English very well and they just sit there and look at me. I try to make simple conversation but they just hunch up their shoulders to let me know they don't understand. My girl's younger sister is a real pest and she makes me uncomfortable by asking personal questions.

Please don't advise me to break up with her because she's very lovely and this is her only bad fault. Just melp me find a solution.—SHINY TROUSERS

DEAR SHINY TROUSERS: Tell your girl that from now on you will give her 10 minutes to appear on the scene. If she isn't ready, send word with the pest that you'll be back in half an hour. Then leave and return in 30 minutes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've cried so much over this problem the tears would sink a battleship. Please help me. I went with this bachelor for five years. We talked of marriage and I was positive he was serious about me. My folks even treated him like a member of the family. Last week he told me he wasn't good enough for me and I'd better find another fellow who would be a good husband — the kind I deserve.

I've told him that I'm perfectly willing to take him with all his faults because I'm not perfect either. He says "No — you deserve better." Please, Ann, tell me what to do.—CLARA

DEAR CLARA: A bachelor who would take five years of a girl's time and then tell her he isn't good enough for her is probably right. He isn't. Forget him and learn from this bitter experience.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Tax Payment Plan Backed By Director

A plan to solve the problem of having to pay more federal income tax than was deducted was promoted here yesterday by Irving Machiz, district director of Internal Revenue Service for the Baltimore District.

In many cases when the time of the year rolls around for the wage earner to pay his federal income tax, he finds that the amount of tax withheld from wages is lower than the amount of tax due at the end of the year.

Machiz said the worker sometimes is unable to pay the additional amount due when he files his income tax return and thus becomes delinquent. This necessitates a wage levy for collection purposes in quite a few cases.

To cure this problem, Machiz suggests that the wage earner drop one or more of his exemptions.

For each exemption taken off the wage, a return of approximately $120 a year is realized.

If that does not cure the problem, Machiz said, workers may enter into an agreement with their paymasters to increase their tax withholding further by amending their Form W-4.

The director urged employers to encourage their employes to take advantage of these two devices so as to prevent their becoming delinquent and thereby eliminate wage levies.

He emphasized that dropping exemptions for tax withholding purposes does not mean that taxpayers lose these exemptions. It is merely a device for increasing the amount of tax withheld. The exemptions can be claimed for tax computation purposes when taxpayers fill out their returns.

Men Are Held For Car Theft

Appearing before Commissioner Avirett were Walter Neverkewitz Jr., Brooklyn, and Franklin C. Riley Jr., East Berlin, Pa.

Following the hearing when charges were placed against them for taking the car from New York, the two men were returned to the Allegany County Jail.

A U. S. marshall will pick them up for transportation back to New York for trial.

The pair was apprehended on Route 40 at a service station west of Grantsville by Tfc. Glen Folk on Saturday and taken to the County Jail.

They were turned over to the local FBI agent yesterday for their appearance before the U. S. Commissioner.

Church Assigns Missionaries Here

Elder Dale Gold and Elder Cont Jones, missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), have been transferred to the Cumberland area.

Both elders were attending universities when they were called by their church to spend two years as missionaries.

Elder Gold, of Sandy, Utah, was studying engineering at the University of Utah, and Elder Jones, of Montpelier, Idaho, was also an engineering student at Brigham Young University.

Both men are a part of a group of 8,000 young people who devote two years of their time at their own expense telling others about the Mormon Church.

Dogged persistance in interference bidding by defenders is many times apt to prove highly enlightening to declarer when he is confronted with involved problems of dummy management. Observe how South in today's hand gained the necessary clews from East's "operations."

South's two spade bid and North's raise were fairly standard and East participated with a call of four clubs. East had no offensive aspirations, but hoped to lay the foundation for a sacrifice if West could support that suit. However, his five heart bid seems somewhat futile and tends to provide declarer with a "road map."

West's lead of the three of clubs was an abvious singleton and it appeared that declarer must lose a club and heart and go down to a one trick set. However, he saw a ray of hope if East had exactly a five card heart suit.

South played one round of trumps and temporarily abandoned the suit when East showed out. He led the ace and king of hearts and was relieved when West followed to the second round. He then cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. He now played the king of spades, and a low spade to the queen. On dummy's remaining diamond declarer let go a heart from his own hand and West, who is now known to have nothing but diamonds, was in the lead. On the forced return declarer ruffed in dummy as he discarded the losing club from his own hand.

Early Payment Of Liens Cited By Mrs. Roeder

Payments on liens filed for street and sewer improvements are quite gratifying, according to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner.

She said at least 75 per cent of the citizens are paying their liens during the interest-free period and that another 20 per cent are making payments for the improvements.

Citizens have 60 days after the date of billing to pay liens at par. Interest at the rate of ½ per cent a month is charged after the 60-day period expires.

During December, $3,119 was collected on paving liens and $110 on sewer liens.

Some of the lien accounts are in splendid shape. For instance, all but $2,110 of the $69,200 of liens for Frederick Street improvements has been paid.

All citizens of the city have a stake in the prompt payment of liens, since receipts are placed in the revolving fund which is used to finance future projects.

School teachers and employes of state agencies are pushing for more pay, too.

The Senate also received the long-talked-of quest by Mayor J. Harold Grady of Baltimore City for authority to impose a one per cent tax on earnings.

Residents of the city would be taxed no matter where they earned the money and non-residents if they received compensation in the city.

The net profits of business concerns also would be taxed.

Senate President George W. Della, D-Balto 6th, also revived an old bone of contention between labor and management.

Would Limit Definition

He sought to limit the definition of a labor dispute in the law on jobless benefits to a strike or other refusal by an employe to work.

At present, jobless payments are denied anyone whose "unemployment is due to a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute."

What exactly constitutes a labor dispute has been in dispute between organized labor and management. In several court cases, management has won its argument for seeking a denial of jobless payments to workers laid off.

Other proposed legislation received Tuesday would require dealers to give a warranty on new cars and make doctors immune from damage suits for treatment at an accident.

Del. Lester B.Reed, R-Allegany, offered the bill in which dealers would guarantee new motor vehicles for 90 days or 4,000 miles.

Sen. Frank E. Shipley, D-Howard, sought to protect doctors from being sued for negligence or malpractice by persons they treated in an emergency. Shipley is a doctor.

Area Firm Bids Low On Rt. 40 Climbing Lanes

A Hagerstown firm was the apparent low bidder yesterday for the construction of climbing lanes on U. S. Route 40 from near Frederick toward Hagerstown.

Bester Long, Inc., Hagerstown, submitted the apparent low bid of $193,443.75 for constructing the additional lane on hills from three miles west of Frederick a distance of 6.7 miles toward Hagerstown.

Four other firms submitted bids which were opened by the State Roads Commission in Baltimore yesterday. They are:

Flintkote Company, New York City, $211,658.75; C. William Hetzer, Inc., Hagerstown, $233,486; Frederick Asphalt Products Company, Frederick $234,690 and E. D. Plummer Sons, Chambersburg, Pa., $236,400.

It was the first Western Maryland highway project advertised by the SRC in 1961.

The climbing lanes are being built so slow-moving traffic can move to the right and permit faster-moving vehicles to pass.

not want one "played off" against the other. They also believe that their requested pay increase should be provided by the county regardless of what the state legislature does in granting state-wide teacher pay increases. These state-wide boosts will not help Allegany County in relation to the other Maryland counties, most of which are ahead of this county in salaries.

Four of the five school board members were present to vote on including the salary increases in the budget which will be prepared by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster. They include J. Goodloe Jackson, president; T. Donald Shires, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Mrs. Richard Winer. Kenneth R. Malcolm, the fifth board member, expressed sympathy for the teachers' appeal but had to leave the meeting before the vote was taken.

Other members of the legislative committee at yesterday's meeting besides Mr. Kelly and Dr. Haines were Miss Sara E. Wright, Miss Dorothy Willison, Robert T. Thomas, Roy E. Pepper, president of the association; Thomas M. Wagner and James D. Preaskorn.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID's unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for expectant mothers. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID today! INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢

A Less Gloomy Economic Outlook

Some business experts who have taken a second look at the economic picture lately find it is not nearly so gloomy as it first appeared. It is a notable fact that where the views have changed, consumer psychology and not dry statistics has been the influencing factor.

The latest study along this line is a report by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center on consumer attitudes. It found that while a part of the buying public may be uneasy about the immediate future, it is not nearly so jittery as some economists in the forecasting business.

Public uncertainty is a by-product of changeovers in national administrations. The survey estimated that buying caution generally is likely for a while. Apparently consumers are taking a wait-and-see position until the new administration settles down.

But there doesn't seem to be much doubt about public acceptance of the 1961 line of autos. Researchers found that intentions to buy new cars are as high today as at any time since late 1956. This disproves the belief held by some business experts that perhaps Americans have too much of nearly everything. There seems to be no limit to the public's desires.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Farewell To A Presidency

President Eisenhower has been, in many ways, a fortunate man. Throughout his Presidency, the people had a large measure of confidence in his moral qualities. He was, however, not given a Congress of his own party, not since the 83rd Congress. His authority within his own party was never challenged, yet rarely exerted. His only real quarrel was over Senator Joseph McCarthy whom he managed to reduce from a leading national figure to a disciplined Senator who felt himself betrayed by his party and even his friends and died of it.

The principal positive achievement of the Eisenhower Administration was that he managed to maintain the peace. But the price has been so enormous that one might almost say that his was a peace at any price. It was during his eight years that Soviet Russia achieved victory after victory in many fields and the United States took insult after insult in many areas.

Nevertheless, this did not impair Eisenhower's personal popularity; in fact, every insult hurled at him in South America where Vice President Nixon was abused, in Tokyo where Red China provoked demonstrations against the President, at the Paris Summit Conference where Eisenhower was treated with malicious shamelessness, in the United Nations where Khrushchev hurled boorish imprecations at him—all these and more won him an increasing measure of sympathy within the United States.

Outside the United States, however, American prestige suffered because many nations believed that the United States accepted the insults of Castro and the proddings of Nehru, Tito and Nasser since we had become afraid of Soviet Russia. And in international relations, the country that is afraid is regarded as already defeated. This is particularly true of the patience the Eisenhower Administration showed to Castro.

The Sherman Adams affair left Eisenhower's reputation untouched. Presidents Grant, Harding and Truman suffered popular displeasure for similar escapades, greater or lesser in degree. But Eisenhower's reputation remained untarnished.

It is true that his golf playing became a national joke but not more than Theodore Roosevelt's strenuous life or Herbert Hoover's handball court or Franklin D. Roosevelt's swimming pool. It was generally assumed that the President required exercise but no one could quite understand how he managed to get all his work done, if he did.

It was also recognized that President Eisenhower did not understand all the complexities of our government because he had been in the Army, out of the country, for so many years. It was, however, accepted that for this very reason, he knew how to delegate authority and responsibility.

During the life-time of John Foster Dulles, it was generally assumed that he managed our foreign affairs without much consultation either at the White House or the State Department. He laid down policy and acted on it and the President did not seem, in his press conferences and elsewhere, to know too much about it. After Dulles died, Eisenhower managed his own foreign policy which often brought him criticism.

Similarly, in the Treasury, his first Secretary, George Humphrey, was believed to be a great authority on money; he had long managed and financed big business and it was not expected that the President would offer him too many objections. Subsequently, this post was taken by Robert Anderson of Ventures, Ltd., a Canadian mining and oil enterprise. He also has been regarded as a man who understands money and therefore, the President, who has no proficiency in economics, did not interfere much with the Treasury.

President Eisenhower, having been accustomed all his life to staff work, in the Army, found it not too difficult to organize the White House and the Cabinet in the same manner. The fact that our structure of government was differently designed did not seem to trouble him. What actually did develop during this Administration is that much authority was delegated and this seemed to please the President who believed that this country really needed two Presidents, or two Vice Presidents. What he had in mind was a Head of State and a Prime Minister. Our Constitution has not provided for that.

President Eisenhower leaves office a popular man, secure in his position, possessing more wealth than he had when he entered the White House, but without a speck of scandal. His farm will become a center of attraction and many will visit it. Ike Eisenhower is, indeed, a fortunate man.

U.S. Catholics At Inauguration Will Be Able To Eat Meat Friday

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—There's an interesting minor precedent being made by Catholics on Jan. 20, aside from the major precedent of inaugurating a Catholic president for the first time in history.

That precedent is a special dispensation that Catholics attending the inauguration may eat meat on that day.

It being a Friday, members of the Catholic faith ordinarily would not be permitted to eat meat. However, picking up a fish luncheon or a fish dinner is going to be so difficult on the hectic Friday that sees John Fitzgerald Kennedy made the 35th President, that a special dispensation will be permitted Catholics.

The time between the oath at the Capitol at noon and the start of the inaugural parade will hardly be enough for the thousands of visitors now thronging Washington to get anything other than a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee. So if the Catholic visitors partake of a little ham or a hot dog or even a roast-beef sandwich, they'll be given special dispensation.

Oil Lobbyist And Navy

If President-elect Kennedy had switched the appointment of his secretaries of the Army and the Navy a lot of his Senate supporters would be happier. As it is, he has appointed one of the top oil lobbyists of the USA, John B. Connally, to be Secretary of the Navy, a branch of government which is the biggest oil purchaser in the world.

If he had been made Secretary of the Army, Connally, an able lawyer and the campaign manager for Lyndon Johnson, would have no problems. But in appointing Connally Secretary of the Navy, Kennedy has put Senate colleagues on the same embarrassing sopt that Harry Truman put Senate Democrats when he appointed his close friend, Ed Pauley, to a lesser post—under Secretary of the Navy. Pauley is able, honest, loyal—but an oilman. Even close Democratic friends of Mr. Truman's opposed him. Truman bowed. Pauley's name was withdrawn.

The case against Connally is even stronger, first because he will be top man in the Navy, not under secretary; second, because Connally has been much closer to the oil-gas companies than Pauley. Pauley is an independent operator. Connally was the attorney and lobbyist for a group of oil-gas companies which raised $1,500,000 in 1956 to lobby the natural gas bill through Congress.

Connally was the mainspring of that lobby, helped direct the expenditure of its funds, masterminded the battle on Capitol Hill. Almost every important gas-oil company in the nation contributed to this lobbying fund, thereby also paying for Connally's professional services.

Yet Connally, as Secretary of the Navy, not only will buy more oil than any other man in the world, but will be charged with the supervision of one of the greatest oil reserves in the world. He will have to decide whether to lease certain areas to avoid loss from adjacent wells, and if so which companies to lease to. Inevitably some will be his old lobbying associates.

Since this column has reported on the oil influences around President Eisenhower, it's only fair to report on the oil influences around incoming President Kennedy.

Tremendous Oil Domain

As Secretary of the Navy, Connally would supervise 23,700,000 acres of oil land, plus 156,113 acres of oil shale reserves. Here is a brief breakdown of this vast property now governed by the U. S. Navy:

1. Elk Hills, Calif.—46,095 acres of proven oil land of which the Navy owns 81-7 per cent, Standard Oil of California owns 18-3 per cent. This is part of the area which got involved in the famous Teapot Dome scandal during the Harding administration when Edward Doheny delivered $100,000 in a little black bag to Albert Fall, then Secretary of the Interior.

2. Buena Vista Hills, Calif. — 30,181 acres, owned one-third by the Navy and two-thirds by private companies. Since Navy holdings are checkerboarded with those of private companies, the Navy, to protect loss from offset drilling, has leased 17 plots of land to seven operators. They are: Standard (Calif.), Richfield, Union, Socony, Honolulu Oil, General American Oil of Texas, and Tidewater.

Most of these—through their executives — have been heavy political contributors to both lobbying and political campaign funds. Most of their money went to Eisenhower. However, Connally at that time was on their side of the fence. He was a big Ike booster, did his best to defeat Adlai Stevenson.

3. Teapot Dome, Natrona County, Wyo.—9,481 acres. This also figured in the famous Harding oil scandal. Four years ago, MKM Oil and Trigood Co., both of Casper, started a new development along the eastern boundary of the Navy's holdings.

So the Navy started offset operations to prevent its oil from being drained off. It let a contract to Intex Oil of Bakersfield, Calif. This is the kind of decision Connally would have to make as Secretary of the Navy—namely, whether to lease or not, and if so to which private company.

4. Arctic Slope of Alaska — 23,680,000 acres. All Navy owned, with no private drilling in the area except for Colorado Oil and Fuel which, however, has to keep two miles away from the Navy reserve.

The Navy's oil shale reserves include 41,353 acres near Rifle, Colo., 92,160 acres in Carbon and Unitah counties, Utah, and another 22,600 acres near Rifle. None of it is being developed.

Note—It will be interesting to see how certain members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which must first pass on Connally's confirmation, vote. Republican Sen. Glenn Beall of Maryland received a $3,000 oil contribution in his 1952 election. The son of GOP Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut is head of the Zapata Company, which operates valuable offshore oil lands.

Truly Conservative Leaders Make Changes

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

In his farewell message to the Congress, President Eisenhower declared that he and his administration had "carried America to unprecedented heights." Since the President is neither a fool nor a hypocrite, this summary of the present national situation is at first somewhat bewildering.

After all, unemployment has now reached a level unprecedented in the last twenty years. The dollar, whose soundness has so preoccupied the President, has reached a low on the world markets unprecedented for thirty years. According to the suppressed soundings taken by the President's own subordinates, the standing of the United States abroad has also reached a low unprecedented in recent history.

Add Laos, Cuba, The Congo, Berlin and a few other critical situations, which form an unprecedented pattern of arrogant Soviet challenges on every front to U. S. and Western Interests.

In these unhappy circumstances, what did the President mean?

The answer, or perhaps a considerable part of the answer seems to be indirectly provided by the story of the cook-out. It has taken almost a year to seep outwards, from the closed administration inner group into semi-general circulation in Washington. But it is an authenic and remarkable story, which still casts much light.

The time, then, was the tense evening after the great explosion of the Summit meeting in Paris. Long previously, a private dinner for the President had been scheduled at the American Embassy on the Avenue D'iena and now, with the Strategic Air Command alerted and Khrushchev's bellows of rage ringing in every ear, the invited high officials somewhat haggardly assembled in accordance with the unchanged schedule.

But the President, although his policy lay in ruins all around him, was very far from haggard. On entering, as though to prove his easy normality he genially suggested to the Ambassador and Mrs. Houghton that it would be nice if he cooked steaks for the whole dinner party with his own hands.

Since French chefs do not admire deep freezes, the Embassy contained no steaks to cook. But the vast machine of the Eisenhower staff went into rapid action. A PX officer was found. A PX was opened. Steaks were provided. The President cooked them. There was only a single hitch. One lady in the company found that the steaks were somewhat too strongly seasoned with political disaster, thus she displeased the President by her poor appetite for his culinary handiwork.

At first glance, there is something downright surrealist in this general picture of the President of the United States passing the tensest single evening of his eight years in office cooking steaks for his chief subordinates. But in fact, this episode was no more than an exaggeration of many other episodes of the Eisenhower years.

President Eisenhower, it is plain, is one of those men who perfer to deal with difficult problems and dangerous situations by displaying massive unconcern, and meanwhile hoping that time will remove the difficulties and denature the dangers. This hope, of course, is sometimes justified. It was justified when the Summit collapsed. The ensuing Soviet move at Berlin, which the high American officials thought entirely possible and the British positively expected, was never made after all.

In former eras — even in the formative years of Dwight D. Eisenhower — the tactic of refusing to be greatly stirred by events was also a sound conservative tactic. "Wait and see, and look as though it did not matter meanwhile," was far from a foolish watchword when the tempo of history was slower, and history's tendencies were less catastrophic.

But this watchword ceased to be safely applicable in the years between the first and second world wars. Truly conservative leaders — men who truly wished to conserve the good things of the existing order with a minimum of change — were forced to adopt a different style of action.

Confronted by forces of change too strong to be wholly resisted, the truly conservative leaders hed to become more agile. They had to make small changes in order to avoid great changes. They had to recommend small sacrifices in order to avoid great losses. It was no longer prudent, no longer conservative, to stand pat.

This is the reason, of course, why Winston Churchill will be remembered as the great conservative of the Twentieth Century, whereas Stanley Baldwin and Neville Chamberlain, the alleged conservatives who led Britain to disaster, will never again be called conservative in the honorable sense of the word. This is the reason, too, why the creed of American conservatism badly needs re-thinking at the end of the Eisenhower years and not by Senator Goldwater either.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

INAUGURAL DRESS — The Inaugural Committee has sent out informal memos to governors, high political appointees, and distinguished individuals concerning proper dress for the Kennedy inauguration.

For the big event itself — the swearing-in ceremony — it will be top hat and striped-pants morning clothes for the men, short formal dress for the ladies.

The Inaugural Ball will prefer white tie and tails for the men, short or long gowns for the ladies, but black tie will also be acceptable for all but the most important males.

For the Gala, where Frank Sinatra and his Hollywood pack will try to erase the Democratic debt with entertainment, it will be black ties for the men, short theater gowns for the ladies.

For the rest of the functions, business suits and street dress will be acceptable, unless milady has an unusual hat or hairdo she wants to display.

ETERNAL ALLEN — George E. (for Eternal) Allen, is preparing to establish a position of cozy intimacy with the incoming Kennedy administration.

Through the years—and several administrations — Allen has succeeded in becoming a welcome figure to Presidents Eisenhower and Truman. That was quite a trick, as two more unlike individuals would be hard to find.

Allen played poker with Truman and bridge and golf with Eisenhower, and managed to entertain them both with the brand of witty stories they liked best. In the process he rose from a local hotel manager to a member of many boards of directors and a name to be conjured with in Washington.

Now, reports have it, with the unique sport favored by the Kennedy clan, Allen is said to be reading a book titled "Tag Football."

Wise Wife Takes Back Seat To Her Husband

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Most couples are happily married and reflect their compatibility in the stability and well adjusted personality of their offspring. This is amazing, considering that the husband and wife often come from different environments, social standing, racial groups, and educational backgrounds.

In some families the wife has the stronger character, even though the husband wears the pants. To paraphrase Confucious: Boy woos girl, wedding bells, girl plays subordinate role like dutiful wife until she finds husband not too smart. In the circumstances, the wearer of the pants may change horses in the middle of the marital stream.

But this does not always happen, according to the Seattle psychiatrist, Dr. Walter J. Garre. The strong wife may love her husband so much she prefers to take a back seat to keep him happy and the family together.

When she finds her mate deficient in ego strength (in the language of the psychiatrist), she plays a subordinate role deliberately to elevate the man's sense of his own value. This boosts his morale and she, too, derives satisfaction from doing something for the one she loves.

But this effort represents a sacrifice on her part even though it increases their self-esteem. The marriage may collapse if the burden becomes too great. On the contrary, the marriage will be successful when the partners derive mutual satisfaction by filling in for each other's deficiencies and supplying each other with the background for the other's importance.

This may be the basis for the old saying that opposites attract. But such a situation does not lead to the ideal marriage because at least one partner is emotionally insecure. The stability of the home is affected, with consequent damage to the personality of the children.

CURLING FINGER

G. H. W. writes: My mother is 87 years old and troubled with the middle finger of the left hand curling into the palm. For a while she was able to straighten it out with massage, but now this doesn't work. What can this be?

REPLY

It may be a trigger finger, in which case the tendon is involved, or Dupuytren's contracture, in which scar tissue develops in the palm of the hand. Diagnosis of conditions of this nature is easily made by examining the hand. Why not consult your mother's physician?

EMOTIONAL ASTHMA

I. C. writes: Is psychosomatic asthma due to a feeling of insecurity?

REPLY

Yes, but insecurity is only one of many emotional origins of nervous conditions. Anxiety, fear, frustration, worry, and envy are other possibilities.

SORE JOINTS

F. F. B. writes: What is arthralgia?

REPLY

Pain in and around a joint.

FEARS VIRILITY

M. C. writes: Do the new birth control pills masculinize women, causing a deep voice and hair on the face?

REPLY

Not when taken properly.

OMIT IRRITANTS

E. W. writes: Does the diet have any influence on an irritable bladder?

REPLY

Not a normal diet. On the other hand, too much alcohol or spices as well as berries, tomatoes, and carrots may increase irritation.

To the limit of space questions pertinent to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

During its 20 to 30 years of life, a grizzly bear may eat anything from ants to beached whales. It relishes meat, fresh or carrion, but devours considerably more vegetation. To break the winter fast, a grizzly begins on new grass, grazing as contentedly as a cow.

The Caribbean island of Jamaica owes its breadfruit crops to Captain Bligh of HMS Bounty fame. The Pacific plant was imported as an inexpensive starch food for slaves.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Miss Chou Chou Horntoot reports that she met a famous writer on international affairs charging down Madison Avenue with a bulky package under his arm. Asked to account for his haste, he explained, "I've just finished the last chapter of my new world history, and I want to get it to my publisher before some new damn thing happens."

Spotted on a gravestone in Cape Town, South Africa: "In memory of our father: gone to join his appendix, his tonsils, his kidney, his eardrum, and a leg erroneously amputated by an interne who craved the experience."

Poem composed by a 9-year-old student at a Friends' School:

But it certainly can make you

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The bellmen recognized him in the lobby of the Beverly Hilton. They nodded and smiled. He removed the cigar from his mouth and smiled. No words were spoken. The man wanted to remain at the big Hollywood hotel in a status called incognito. He looked like Jack Paar. He smiled like Jack Paar. He was as nervous as Jack Paar. He was Jack Paar.

So he signed the register: Mr. Primrose Magoo, and then swung the register around so that the assistant manager could look at it. The man looked at Paar and at the name. "Yes, sir," he said. He hit a bell. "Boy, please take Mr. Primrose Magoo to his suite." Paar smiled apologetically.

"It's just that I don't want the phone ringing all the time," he said. The assistant manager smiled understandingly. Paar smiled. "You know," he said, "the phones, the autographs—all I want is peace and quiet." The assistant manager watched him walk to the elevator behind the the boy and the luggage.

Jack Paar looked over the rooms. They were beautiful. Good view of Twentieth Century Fox's oil well. Nice furniture. Cheerful decor. The boy raised the blinds, turned on the air conditioning, switched the bathroom light on, put the baggage on the racks, and held out his hand. Paar tipped him.

Then he picked up the phone. "In case anyone calls me," he said. "I'm Primrose Magoo." There was a silence. "You're who, Mr. Magoo?"

"Magoo. Magoo. I'm not Jack Paar to anybody."

"Of course, Mr. Magoo," the operator said sweetly. "The listing just came in. It says Primrose Magoo. Why would anyone who wants you ask for Mr. Paar?"

"Never mind," he said. "Just give me long distance." He got the operator and called the National Broadcasting Company in New York. "Mitzi," he said to his assistant. "I'm at the Beverly Hilton in Los Angeles. Yes. It's me. In case you want me, just ask for Mr. Primrose Magoo. What? Primrose, dammit. Like the flower. Magoo. You don't have to know how to spell it, dear. Just ask for it and I'll pick up the phone. Anything new? . . ."

Mr. Paar, who is as sensitive as Miss America with a chin pimple, sat. No phone calls. No autograph hounds. No knocking on the door. Nothing. "This," he said to himself, "is great. Simply great." He phoned a few members of the cast in other rooms. "In case you want me, just call Primrose Magoo. What? I wish you were that funny on the program, pal."

He sat. Nothing. He fidgeted a little. Nothing. He tried a newspaper. Nothing. He went into the bathroom and tried the faucets. The hot water ran hot, the cold ran cold. He examined the closets. On the hat shelf was a Bible autographed by Cecil B. DeMille. He looked out the window and rocked on his heels. Nothing. The oil well was still there.

Paar decided to call Mrs. Paar back home. A good idea. He picked up the phone and panicked. What was the home phone number? How ridiculous not to remember. It was Deerfield something or other. How many numbers could little old Bronxville have? He put the phone back on the cradle. The number would not come.

It was unlisted. Oh well. He picked up the phone again. "Honey," he said. "Get me information in Bronxville, New York. Yes. Bronxville." He waited and spun the cigar slowly in his mouth. "Hello, Bronxville information? Good. This is Jack Paar. I'm out in California and I can't remember my home phone number. Can you —

"Oh, come on. I know it's unlisted. It's my number. Excuse me? You listen to the program? Well, that makes everything [illegible] the [illegible]? I'm Jack Paar. Sure. I just [illegible]— You can't. Now look here, Miss. It happens to be my phone and I pay the bills and I want that number. Why don't you ring Mrs. Paar and ask her if she wants to speak to her lawful husband? You can't?

"This is too much. Tell you what you do, Miss. Now don't hang up. I know that rules are rules. I can even tell you what the number used to be before I changed it. Once it was Deerfield 7-7187; once it was Deerfield 7-9299. Excuse me? No dear. That's what I want you to do. If I remembered, would I be on my knees begging?

"All right. Okay. If you want to make sure that this is Jack Paar speaking, call me back right away at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills, California. Just call right back. Call collect. I'll pay for it. Then you'll be sure.

"What dear? Oh no. Just ask for Primrose Magoo." . . .

Congressman Should Stay Hungry Man

Even Districts Good For People

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Rep. Ken Hechler, D-WVa, believes it's a good idea to have congressional districts balanced as evenly as possible between Democrats and Republicans.

Hechler's reasoning is that "a hungry congressman is a better congressman" and that an incumbent representative will work harder when faced with strong opposition. And Hechler said he doesn't want a bed of roses in his own bailiwick.

"I hope that in any redistricting nobody tries to make the 4th District a safe district," said Hechler, who just began his second term as the 4th's representative in Washington.

Hechler's remarks were contained in a statement issued after a meeting with other officials to discuss redistricting. Because of West Virginia's population decline over the last decade, the State will lose one of its six congressional seats in 1962. It will be up to the legislature to draw the new district lines.

West Virginia Legislature Awaits Address

New Governor To Speak Today

By BILL BARRETT
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Legislature went through only a few routine motions Tuesday, its members obviously looking ahead to a noonday address Wednesday in which Gov. W. W. Barron will outline his legislative program.

The House and Senate will meet in joint assembly to hear the address, Barron's first since his inauguration Monday.

A Senate - passed bill extending the sales tax increase voted last Friday from July 1 through Aug. 31 was handled in routine fashion Tuesday in contrast to last week's hurried-up action on the companion bill that is already in effect.

Majority Leader W. T. Brotherton, D-Kanawha, moved to dispense with committee reference and moved the measure along on the calendar. It will come up for a final vote Thursday with little doubt about passage.

Pay Hike Questioned

There was a minor squabble over a House resolution originating in the Rules Committee calling for appointment of 149 attaches during the current session. Del. Nell Walker, D-Fayette, questioned it.

Del. J. E. Watson, D-Marion, speaking for the Rule Committee and Speaker Julius Singleton, said the number was one more than the 1959 session and that only in four instances had increases in pay been allowed. These were $5 a day hikes for clerks and assistant clerks of the powerful judiciary and finance committees.

"The increases were authorized in order that we could obtain qualified personnel for these positions," he said. They are to be paid $25 and $22.50 a day respectively.

Watson further said that with Singleton's concurrence the committee had issued an ultimatium to attaches that if they failed to show up for work, without valid reason, they would be dismissed immediately.

"We believe this will have a bearing on the effectiveness of the session and an economy within the legislature," he said.

Mrs. Walker had questioned the increases in view of the adverse economic condition of the state and suggested "economies are needed within the state government and the best place to start is right here in the legislature."

However, she accepted Watson's explanation and the resolution was adopted unanimously.

Handlan Vote Delayed

The House also adopted, and sent to the Senate for concurrence, a resolution calling for distribution of Salt Sulphur Mineral water from Webster Springs on the 1963 State Centennial exhibition train.

Meanwhile, the Senate held over for another day final action on a motion by Sen. Joseph Handlan, R-Wood, to amend Senate rules by providing for open session when executive appointments are considered.

The senators also sent to the finance committee for further study a resolution by Sen. William Tompos, D-Hancock, calling for an interim committee study of public utility regulations. Sent to the roads committee was a House - approved resolution calling for placing of a "Land of Opportunity" slogan on motor vehicle license plates.

Both chambers adjourned to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, 30-minutes in advance of the time Gov. Barron is scheduled to address the joint assembly.

Gov. Barron Fills Two W. Va. Jobs

Hanley, Bassett Get Appointments

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron named two more department heads for his new administration Tuesday—Cletus B. Hanley as workmen's compensation director and Clement R. Bassett as employment security director.

Hanley, a Charleston attorney in private practice since 1957, held the same post during the last year of the Marland administration in 1956. He succeds C. R. Nutter in the $8,000 a year post.

Bassett, an attorney from Welch, served as an assistant attorney general under Barron during the past four years. He replaces Isaac McNeel at a salary of $9,000 annually.

A 37-year-old Charleston native, Hanley received his law degree at the University of Louisville in 1951 and took a job as right-of-way attorney with the State Road Commission.

The following year he became an assistant attorney general, a post he held until Gov. William C. Marland named him compensation commissioner in December, 1955.

The department he will head administers the law which provides benefits for injured workmen and survivors of persons killed in industrial accidents.

Bassett, a West Virginia University law graduate, worked for the Federal Trade Commission and as a trial examiner for the Public Service Commission before joining the attorney general's staff four years ago. He is 39 years old.

The Employment Security Department, one of the largest in state government, administers jobless benefits for unemployed workers.

By TED TROXELL

A deliriously happy bunch of Bruce High School fans put the durability of the new Allegany gymnasium to the test last night after their Bulldogs nipped the spacious arena's permanent residents, the Allegany Campers, in a 70-69 battle that was a thriller all the way.

Not since the two teams began their series back in 1929 had Bruce won on Allegany's floor, so it was only natural for the large crowd of Tri-Townspeople to go wild when the buzzer sounded to end the dramatic struggle.

The outcome of that game, along with Fort Hill's 60-42 triumph over Mt. Savage, throws the WMI League race into a triple tie for first place, with each of the top three clubs sporting 3-1 records. In last night's other league game at Frostburg, Beall racked winless Valley, 70-54.

Bill Wiltison, sharpshooting guard around whom the fortunes of Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs revolve, turned in what was undoubtedly his finest performance during his four seasons as a regular at the Westernport school.

Wiltison Gets 16 Goals

Wiltison hit on a 25-foot jump shot that pulled Bruce into a 9-9 tie after the Bulldogs had trailed, 9-2, and from then on he was ready. Firing away from all angles with deadly accuracy, the 5'10" senior pumped in 16 field goals, and directed the Bulldogs' offense with all the poise needed to withstand the pressure of a tight ball game.

Several times during the third period Bruce upped its lead to nine points, but the Campers came back strong in the final quarter, the last four minutes of which had most of the fans on their feet. Allegany never cought up in those hectic closing moments, coming to within one point twice—at 68-67 and then again at 70-69.

With 2:08 remaining, Gary Mulligan scored on a fall-away jump shot on which he was fouled. The free throw, which would have tied it up, missed and was rebounded by Bruce. There was one minute left when Wiltison, all alone under the basket on an out-of-bounds play in the Bulldogs' backcourt, got the ball and tossed in what proved to be the clincher.

Campers Lose Ball

A set shot by Wayne Shook just seconds later made it 70-69. With Bruce in possession, Ken McDowell was fouled with 40 seconds to go. Alco's Bob Gaffney rebounded McDowell's misfire and the Campers called time out. When play resumed, Shook got off a set shot that failed to connect. A scramble under the basket resulted in a jump ball and when the Campers' Merv Pope caught his own tip, the Bulldogs took over and held the ball for the final 12 pulse-pounding seconds.

Wiltison, whose jump shot with 10 seconds gone in the third quarter gave Bruce the lead for the first and last time (the score was tied thrice), fired away 29 times in all. His 16 field goals and three free throws gave him 35 points for the night, one that neither he nor Bulldog followers will forget for a long time. He was amazingly consistent, scoring eight points in every period but the second, in which he tallied 11.

Shook was Allegany's leading scorer with 21, followed by Mulligan, Gaffney and Pope, with 15, 14 and 11, respectively. McDowell, with 12 tallies, was Bruce's only other cager in double figures. The Bulldogs hit on an even 45 per cent of their shots, 27 for 60, while Allegany canned 26 of 68 for a .382 percentage mark.

While Bruce was snapping Allegany's remarkable home court winning streak last night, another skein which spans eight years was kept alive at Fort Hill, where the Sentinels have never lost to Mt. Savage since the latter school was opened.

Four In Double Figures

The Sentinels, with four players in double figures, out-field goaled the Indians, 22-12. Jim Rice, Glen Shipway and George Twigg each collected a dozen points, while Bill Colbert chipped in with 10. Mt. Savage freshmen Bob Robertson and Ralph Wilson accounted for 36 of the 42 points scored by the visitors. Roberston converted 14 of 18 shots from the free throw line.

Beall's one-two scoring combination of Jim Evans and Marshall Hamilton paced the Mountaineers to their easy win over the hapless Black Knights.

Evans scored 23 points and Hamilton was right behind with 19. Taking game scoring honors, however, was the Knights' Wayne Johnson, who tossed in 10 field goals and added seven fouls to wind up with 27.

NEW ASSISTANT—Joe Moss, West Texas State assistant football coach, has been named assistant coach at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colo. He will start his new duties Feb. 1 after one season at West Texas and three at Texas Tech as an assistant. Moss is a former Ridgeley High School and University of Maryland football star. Dukes Lose, 64-53

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Cincinnati jumped to an early 16-point lead over scrappy Duquesne Tuesday night and made it stand up for a 64-53 victory, despite a strong second half comeback by the Dukes.

The game was marred by several near fights between the players touched off when Duquesne's Mike Rice caught an elbow in the mouth while going up for a rebound and had to leave the game. Cincinnati's Bob Wiesenhahn was ejected from the contest during a mele that followed.

First entry in the 500-mile automobile race next May 30, that of Don Branson, will include a "roadster" car with the cockpit to the right of center and the engine mounted in a horizontal position on the left side of the chassis.

Daley Rejects A's Contract

Bud Says Salary Is Insufficient

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Bud Daley, 28-year-old lefthanded pitching ace of the Kanas City Athletics, has fired his 1961 contract back to new General Manager Frank Lane unsigned.

"I told Lane that the salary offered was insufficient," Daley said. "I was offered a slight raise, but it was so slight that it wasn't worth the paper it was written on. We're a long way off and Lane will have to come up with a substantial raise before I sign."

Daley, in two years as a mainstay on the Kansas City pitching staff, has won 32 games. He had a 16-13 record in 1959 and was 16-16 last year.

West Wins NBA All-Star Game

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (UPI) — Oscar Robertson, Bob Pettit and Clyde Lovellette led a torrid early drive that gave the West Stars a 28-point first-period margin which enabled them to coast to a 153-131 triumph over the East Tuesday night in a record-shattering National Basketball Association All-Star game.

A sellout crowd of 8,106 in War Memorial Auditorium watched the West turn in a superb shooting exhibition and bottle up both Wilt Chamberlain, the league's leading scorer, and Bob Cousy, the "old pro" of these all-star classics.

LaSalle Beats Paw Paw 75-48 For Ninth Straight

Piedmont, Moorefield, W. Va. Deaf, Ft. Ashby Also Win PVC Tilts

LaSalle High's Explorers chalked up their ninth straight victory last night at the expense of the Paw Paw High Pirates, 75-48, to remain unbeaten in the Potomac Valley Conference with a 4-0 record.

Five LaSalle players scored in the double figures as the Explorers swept the series with the Pirates at Paw Paw. LaSalle won the opening clash at Cumberland 69-45 earlier this year.

The Pirates dropped their fifth game and are now 4-3 in the conference while the Explorers upped their season's mark to 10-1.

Sloan Leads Scorers

John Sloan topped the LaSalle scoring with 17 points and teammates Gary Blake, Phil Barbe and Carroll Wilt chipped in with 15 each. Mike Long added 10 points to the LaSalle total.

Tom Malcolm was the big gun for the Pirates who trailed 17-15 at the first quarter but steadily dropped behind thereafter. Malcolm scored 23 points in a losing cause with 10 goals and 3-5 at the foul line.

In the preliminary game at Paw Paw the LaSalle Jayvees defeated Paw Paw Junior Varsity, 46-25.

In a PVC battle at Piedmont, Coach William "Huck" Miers' Lions evened their season's record at 5-5 with a 61-46 triumph over the Ridgeley High Blackhawks. The loss was the sixth in 11 conference games for Ridgeley who earlier had beaten Piedmont at Ridgeley by a 50-42 score. The Lions are now 3-4 in the PVC.

Piedmont Is Victor

Piedmont hopped off to a big lead in the first quarter and increased it to as much as 25 points. Vincent Fagan with 25 tallies and Robert Shook with 21 led the scoring for Piedmont. Francis Lambert, second to Paul Price of Fort Ashby in PVC scoring this year, added 20 points to his total for Ridgeley. Del Schoonover had 18 for the losers.

The Piedmont Jayvees defeated the Ridgeley Junior Varsity in the preliminary game, 44-37.

At Fort Ashby Paul Price dumped in 33 points, including 15-23 at the foul line, to lead the Eagles to a 70-59 verdict over the hapless Romney High Pioneers.

Price hiked his conference scoring lead to 64 points with 279 tallies in nine games, a 31.0 average. Ridgeley's Lambert has 215 points in the conference scoring race.

The loss was the seventh in a row for Romney's once-proud Pioneers who last year captured the state title with an undefeated season, and it enabled Fort Ashby to sweep the series this season. The Eagles won at Romney on December 8 by an 80-59 score.

Win At Foul Line

Romney trailed 13-12 at the close of the first quarter but dropped behind as much as 10 points in the second stanza before rallying to a 27-24 deficit at halftime. Fort Ashby then pulled away in the second half on the strength of 24 for 36 free throws. The Pioneers outscored Fort Ashby, 24-23, from the field, but lost the game at the foul stripe.

The win was the eighth this year for Fort Ashby and made their PVC record 7-2. Romney is now 1-8 in the conference.

Fort Ashby's Junior High team defeated the Romney Junior High quint, 40-32, in the preliminary affair.

In another PVC engagement, the West Virginia School for Deaf cagers registered their second win in the conference with a 65-53 victory over Capon Bridge who lost its fifth straight in the league.

Coach Al Rubiano's cagers are 2-4 in the conference while Capon Bridge is 0-5 for the PVC and 2-6 overall.

Rova Thorne led the scoring parade with 34 points for Capon Bridge before fouling out with two minutes to play.

The Jackets poured in 30 field goals to romp home easily. The loss was the third this year for Wardensville which is 2-2 in the conference.

Doug Yankey and Robert Redman shared 43 points for the winners while Dixon Orndorff paced Wardensville with 28 points before fouling out in the fourth quarter.

April Skies Cops Feature At Hialeah

Hartack Has Winner In Royal Poinciana

HIALEAH, Fla. (UPI)—Jerome Derenzo's favored April Skies, under a heady ride by jockey champion Bill Hartack, took the lead at the head of the stretch Tuesday to romp to a three-length victory in the $25,000-added Royal Poinciana handicap.

Carrying top weight of 129 pounds, the flashy four-year-old gelding was well-placed at the start, ran a steady second to the head of the turn for home and then moved away from the field to give the winner's share of $21,482 to his Needham, Mass., owner.

All Hands, owned by Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim, former ambassador to Cuba, finished second, a length and a quarter ahead of the third place Matthias, owned by W. S. Miller, chairman of the Illinois Racing Commission.

April Skies covered the six furlongs of Hialeah's opening day feature in 1:11 3-5ths, two and 3-5ths seconds over the track record. The dark bay speedster returned $7, $4.40 and $3.10 for a $2 bet across the board. All Hands rewarded his backers with $13.40 and $5.80 while Matthias paid $2.60 for show.

Supreme Court Steers Clear Of Racing Dispute

Hearing On Dates Set For Jan. 20

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The State Supreme Court refused Tuesday to interfere with a lower court hearing set for Jan. 20 in a dispute over dates for horse racing at two Charles Town tracks.

One of the tracks is Shenandoah Downs. The other is known as the Charles Town track.

Last month the State Racing Commission rejected applications by both tracks for 1961 racing dates because they conflicted. Later the commission suggested dates which did not conflict — April 8-May 20 and July 20-Sept. 16 for Shenandoah Downs and May 22-July 19 for Charles Town.

Then the Charles Town track applied in Jefferson County Circuit Court for an order to require the commission to meet and fix those dates. Circuit Judge Gray Silver Jr. subsequently directed the commission to appear Jan. 20 and show cause, if any, why it should not be required to hold such a meeting.

In the Supreme Court case, the operators of Shenandoah Downs sought to prohibit further proceedings in the case in Silver's court, contending it lacked jurisdiction. It was this petition which the Supreme Court refused to consider.

Joe Moss Joins Air Force Academy Coaching Staff

Ridgeley High Grad Named Football Aide

Former Maryland Star Moves From West Texas State

Appointment of Joseph Charles Moss, 30, former Ridgeley (W. Va.) High School and University of Maryland grid star, as assistant football coach at the Air Force Academy was announced yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Colorado Springs, Colo.

Moss, who had served as assistant grid mentor at West Texas State, Canyon, Texas, last season, and Homer Smith, 27, as assistant at Stanford for the past three years, will replace airmen on the coaching staff who are being reassigned.

They will succeed Maj. Roy Anderson, freshman football coach, and Capt. Tom Bakke, end coach.

A native of Elkins, W. Va., Moss played football and basketball at Ridgeley High School for three years under Coach Jesse Riggleman and was graduated in 1948. The 1947 Ridgeley eleven won the P. V. C. championship, finished with a 6-1 record and Moss headed the conference scorers as backfield star of the Blackhawks.

Played Under Tatum

Joe played a regular tackle position at the University of Maryland in 1949, 1950 and 1951 under Coach Jim Tatum whose teams won 26, lost three and played one tie and won two bowl games. The 1949 Terps beat Missouri, 20-7 in the 'Gator Bowl and the 1951 team, which won ten and lost none, defeated Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, 28-13.

After he was graduated from Maryland he served as one of Coach Tatum's assistants.

In Canadian League

In 1951 Moss played for the Washington Redskins of the National Football League and the following year he was with Ottawa in the Canadian Football League. While in military service in 1954 Joe starred with Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C. Prior to taking over as assistant coach last year at West Texas State, Moss held a similar position at Texas Tech, Lubbock.

Moss is married and has a son and daughter. His wife was Betty Gulick, formerly of Cumberland. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moss, reside at Hagerstown where Mr. Moss is employed by the city. The Moss family moved from Elkins to Ridgeley in 1942.

Sister Resides Here

Mrs. Mildred Swick, 12 Virginia Avenue, is a sister of Joe Moss, and is the proud possessor of the shirt that her brother wore in the Sugar Bowl game on New Year's Day 1952. She also has many other souvenirs that Joe collected during the days he played college and professional football.

Postpone Fight

BAD SCHWALBACH, Germany (AP) — Peter Mueller underwent an emergency appendectomy Monday night, forcing an indefinite postponement of his title fight with Erich Scheoppner.

Schoeppner, German and European light-heavyweight champion, and Mueller had been scheduled to fight Feb. 5 in Dortmund. Mueller was reported in good condition Tuesday.

Mazeroski is one of the top second basemen in the major leagues. Bill was scheduled to appear at a Dapper Dan dinner several years ago but a death in his family forced him to cancel the trip.

Baseball Briefs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Veteran catcher Del Rice, a 38-year-old free agent, has signed a 1961 contract with the Los Angeles Angeles of the American League, general manager Fred Haney announced Tuesday.

Rice played for Haney for four years with the Milwaukee Braves from 1956 through 1959. Last year he was with the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Kansas City Athletics outfielder Hank Bauer, the first member of the American League baseball club to come to contract terms under its new ownership, vowed Tuesday not to play the 1961 season in spring training.

Bauer said part of his trouble with the A's last season, when he batted .275, was that he played too much in spring training.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Tuesday the signing of pitchers Earl Francis and Tommy Sisk, both righthanders who worked for Pirate farm clubs last season.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies announced Tuesday that shortstop Joe Koppe became the 10th player to sign for the 1961 season.

Koppe suffered a fractured right wrist in a collision with Tony Curry last June chasing a pop fly in short left field.

He was out of action June, July and August and returned to the lineup briefly in late September.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sam Jones, winningest pitcher on the San Francisco Giants' mound staff for the past two years, Tuesday returned his signed contract for 1961.

Jones, who won 21 games in 1959 and 18 last year, became the second member of the squad under contract. Harvey Kuenn, obtained in a trade with Cleveland, already has agreed to terms.

Stadium Will Be Ready For 1962

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Wagner said Tuesday there is no doubt that New York will have a new 55,000-seat stadium in Flushing Meadow Park in time for the new National League team in 1962.

The mayor's optimism was not reflected, however, by Lawrence Gerosa, comptroller. Gerosa said he still has reservations on financial details and observed that if construction had started last fall "they would have had to work overtime to finish it in time for the 1962 season."

It has been estimated that the actual construction cost will be $15 million and that architectural and enginering costs will add $1.2 million.

Charnley Outpoints Gresham In London

LONDON (AP)—Dave Charnley, European and British lightweight boxing champion, easily outpointed Gene Gresham of Detroit in 10 rounds before a crowd of 5,000 at the Streatham Ice Rink Tuesday night.

Charnley weighed 137¾ and Gresham 137¼.

Cashen Named GM

BALTIMORE (AP) — J. Frank Cashen has been appointed general manager of Baltimore Raceway, President C. William Hetzer announced today.

He succeeds M. Joseph Lynch who resigned to accept the position of executive director of harness racing for the state of Pennsylvania.

Archie Moore, Schoeppner To Meet In March

Light-Heavy Match Set For New York

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Archie Moore and unbeaten Erich Schoeppner of Germany were matched Tuesday for a light-heavyweight championship fight at Madison Square Garden in New York, March 20 or 21, it was learned.

Although the 15-round bout will be staged at the Garden, it will be promoted by Feature Sports, Inc., a rival to the Garden Corporation.

Moore of San Diego, Calif., 46, still is recognized as the world's 175-pound champion in New York, California, Europe and the British Empire. Brown - haired, blue-eyed Schoeppner, 24, is light-heavyweight champion of Europe.

Moore and manager Jack (Doc) Kearns finally accepted the match Tuesday on a straight percentage basis in order to sign before Thursday's deadline, set by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Had he not signed by midnight Thursday, the commission would have vacated his title. The National Boxing Association vacated Archie's crown last Oct. 25 because of his long delay in making a defense. New York is not an NBA member.

Archie hasn't risked his championship in 19 months, although before that he set a record of nine defenses for light-heavy weights, since he won the title from Joey Maxim, Dec. 17, 1952.

His last defense was on Aug. 12, 1959, when he knocked out Canadian Yvon Durelle in the third round of their second title fight at Montreal. The champion of each division supposedly is required to let not more than six months elapse between defenses.

Chicago Added To NBA; Pitt Team Considered

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The National Basketball Association Tuesday added Chicago as its ninth club for 1961-62 and indicated Pittsburgh might become the 10th team. The owners also agreed to set up a player pension plan.

Final action on Pittsburgh was deferred until midnight (EST) to permit further telephone negotiations between Maurice Podoloff, league president, and John Harris, head of the Pittsburgh group. At least one third of the $200,000 franchise fee must be paid and the balance guaranteed by March 15.

Chicago was admitted at an afternoon session when the franchise free requirement was met by Max Winter, Dave Tregar and Sam Karlov, all of Chicago.

WVU To Meet Pitt Tonight

Mountaineers Seek Their 11th Victory

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — West Virginia — its surge toward national ranking temporarily stalled by a loss to Villanova — expects to get back on the winning trail when it meets a so-so Pitt team here Wednesday.

The Panthers, West Virginia's oldest rival, have won six games against the same number of defeats, but number a good Purdue team among their victims. Both Pitt and West Virginia beat Syracuse by some 20 points.

The Mountaineers, 10-3 for the season, saw their eight-game win streak stopped by Villanova at Philadelphia last Saturday, 82-77.

West Virginia's 86.8-point scoring average ranks fourth nationally, and sophomore whiz Rod Thorn is climbing with his 21.6 average.

Coach George King's squad has generally been at its best on the road, knocking off such strong teams as Wake Forest, Tulane, Memphis State and George Washington before coming a cropper against Villanova.

Pitt, which has lost six straight games to West Virginia here, is led by forwards John Fridley and sophomore Ben Jinks.

College All-Star Game Is Canceled

NEW YORK (UPI) — The annual East-West College All-Star basketball game, sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune in aid of the fresh air fund, will not be played this year because of schedule changes in other post-season tournaments.

Both the National Collegiate championship and the National Invitation finals will be held a week later than usual, on March 25, the Saturday usually reserved for the East-West game.

The East-West game is expected to be resumed next year with its 14th competition, the Herald-Tribune said.

Floyd Patterson Gets Neil Plaque

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson, the first man to regain the world heavyweight title, received the Edward J. Neil memorial plaque Tuesday night as "fighter of the year" at the 35th annual dinner of the Boxing Writers Association.

It was Patterson's second Neil award. He also won it in 1956 when he became the youngest heavyweight king in history. His feat of winning back the title by knocking out Ingemar Johansson last June 20 established him as the outstanding boxer of 1960.

Keyser To Test Martinsburg's Unbeaten Five

Bulldogs Are Hosts In Game Tonight

Keyser High School will battle Martinsburg High School's undefeated Bulldogs tonight at Martinsburg.

It will mark the first meeting of these triple A West Virginia schools this season.

Coach George Whitacre's quint owns an 8-0 record which includes wins over Fort Hill, Allegany, North Hagerstown, South Hagerstown, Frederick and Waynesboro.

"Eck" Miers' Golden Tornado is playing .500 ball, having won five and lost five. One of the losses was a 77-64 decision to Allegany which went down before the Bulldogs to the tune of 77-71.

Martinsburg plays a return game in Keyser February 17.

After the close of the regular season Martinsburg and Keyser will battle it out for Class AAA honors in Section 6. They are among the 12 triple A schools in Region Two.

Bill Elias To Take Grid Coaching Job At Virginia

GW Mentor To Succeed Voris

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bill Elias, George Washington University football coach, has decided to take the head coaching job at the University of Virginia, it was announced Tuesday.

Robert K. Faris, George Washington athletic director, said Elias notified him late Tuesday that he was moving to the Virginia school. Elias was offered the job at a meeting with Virginia President Edgar F. Shannon at Charlottesville, Va., Monday night.

Elias conferred with Faris when he returned from Charlottesville Tuesday. He later met with George Washington acting President Oswald S. Colclough for 40 minutes.

Elias took a walk to think things over before telephoning his decision to Faris.

The 35-year-old Elias went unbeaten in his last six games during his first year as head coach at George Washington. He had a season's record of 5-3-1. A tie with Boston University and a 20-6 upset victory over the Air Force were among the streak after defeats in the first three games.

Virginia, meanwhile, ran its winless streak under coach Dick Voris to 28 games, giving Voris a three-year record of 1-29. The 28 consecutive losses equalled the national collegiate record.

Elias is no stranger to Atlantic Coast Conference teams which have used Virginia as a doormat three years. He starred as a quarterback for the University of Maryland before becoming head coach at the Richmond, Ind., high school.

Elias moved to Purdue University of the Big Ten Conference in 1953 and stayed there until moving to George Washington in 1959.

McMahon To Coach Kansas City Quint

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Owners of the Kansas City entry in the new American Basketball League announced Tuesday that Jack McMahon, former star at St. John's University in Brooklyn, has been hired as coach.

At the same time, it was announced that the Kansas City team in the eight-club league will be known as the Steers.

Owners Ken Krueger and Bud Hoeber, both St. Louis real estate men, said the 31-year-old McMahon was chosen from a field of "six outstanding candidates." He played eight years of professional basketball with the Rochester Royals and St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Association.

Opening Round To Start February 11

The quarter-final round will begin at 1 p. m., Saturday, February 11, with the semi-finals scheduled for Saturday, February 18, and the consolation round and finals slated for Tuesday, February 21.

Drawing for the pairings will be made Saturday morning, January 28, at 11 o'clock in the Keyser gym. Stocks Decline Sharply In Sizable "Correction"

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks tumbled on the New York stock exchange Tuesday in their first sizable "correction" in two weeks.

Volume, dropping below the 4 million share level for the first time since Jan. 4, fell sharply along with the prices to 3,830,000 shares from 4,510,000 Monday.

Chemicals, steels, non-ferrous metals, oils and many aircrafts finished lower but plenty of late support found its way into the electronics, rails, business machines, vending stocks, department stores and special situations.

DuPont plunged 6½ points and took the biggest blame for the Dow-Jones industrial average falling 4.23 to 628.96. Also responsible were Alcoa off 1⅜, Eastman Kodak off 1⅛, General Electric off 1¾ and United Aircraft off 1⅜.

Rails gained 1.17 to 141.14 thanks to B&O which gained 1⅝. Utility stocks lost 0.35 to 102.09 with Panhandle down 1⅛ for the big mover here.

A total of 1,269 issues were traded, including 456 gainers and 572 losers. New highs came to 34. There were two new lows.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — A late burst of commission buying propelled most soybean futures to new highs for the season again Tuesday on the Board of Trade.

Wheat was mixed, and other grains closed mostly lower.

The final bell saw wheat off ⅝ to up 1⅛, corn unchanged to off ⅝; oats unchanged to off ⅜, rye off ¾ to up ⅛, soybeans off ¼ to up 2⅜ and drummed lard off 7 to up 2 points.

Soybeans ran into heavy profit - taking late in the session after rising more than 7 cents Monday. Trading was very irregular. The late rally was supported by climbing meal and oil prices.

Corn eased in quiet and mixed trading. An eastern house sold July. Britain bought about 400,000 bushels.

Export subsidies were granted on 1,210,000 bushels of corn, 301,764 bushels of oats and 71,000 bushels of rye.

Oats rallied partially from an early drop. Commission houses sold while cash interests bought nearby contracts. European countries purchased a total of 670,000 bushels.

Rye lost more than a cent on early commission selling.

Outside markets were mostly lower.

Swings In Bed

LONDON (UPI) — Joseph Yahuda, 60, sleeps in an electric bed that swings him for his health, the medical magazine Lancet reported Tuesday.

Yahuda is an expert on Greek and Hebrew and discovered that the ancient Greeks used swings for medical treatment. He claims the swinging bed sets his body cells in motion, releasing unwanted materials.

Work Is Needed On Area Bridge

Harold J. Snyder, district engineer for the West Virginia State Roads Commission at Keyser, has informed the Allegany County Board of Commissioners that the bridge between Piedmont and Luke is in bad condition and needs repainting and repairs.

Snyder submitted a report on the bridge showing that it would require $5,250 to sand blast, repair and repaint the structure. The cost of the work would be borne jointly by West Virginia and Allegany County.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said he would submit the report and letter to Harry Skelley, roads supervisor, for a check and report back to the board.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Never immerse costume jewelry in water; cemented stones are apt to come loose. To brighten such pieces, clean them quickly with a soft brush dipped in warm suds.

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Harry Reiber wishes to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to all their friends, relatives and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during their bereavement. They also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars, the pallbearers and the minister, Rev. Thomas Mitchell. To all others who in any way rendered assistance, they are indeed grateful.

THE FAMILY

In Memoriam

In memory of our son Paul (Pete) Bennett whom God called home 9 years ago, Jan. 18, 1952.

Nine years ago God called him
Through his Heavenly, Holy door
And I'll meet him in that City
More perfect than before.
God knew how hard it was
To watch him in his pain,
For He had a Son who suffered too,
And now He lives again.
Dear "Pete" you're in God's garden
Of beauty and of rest;
You're with the many Angels
Whom God does love the best.

Mommy, Mom, Woody and
Mary Ann

Postmaster Named For Windber

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday sent to the Senate the nomination of Marion E. Hopkins as postmaster of Nanjemoy in Charles County, Md.

Other postmaster nominations included Charles K. Bantley at Windber, Somerset County, Pa.

Old Hand To 'Call Tune' At Inauguration Friday

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

The first person to call the tune in the new Kennedy administration will be bald, beaming Meyer Davis, an old and sure hand at galvanizing political big shots into graceful action.

Impeccable in white tie and tails and beatific smile, Davis will wield the baton at next Friday's multiple inauguration balls for President John F. Kennedy in Washington's National Armory and Sheraton Park Hotel.

As musical director for the inauguration, Davis will shuttle back and forth among the bandstands with his own 45-piece orchestra, coordinate the down beats of eight other bands, decide when the distinguished guests should waltz and when they should rhumba, sort out the cues for the arrival of the president and vice president, and, in general, try to keep the balls from becoming brawls.

With 12,000 revelers expected at the Armory and other thousands at the hotels, this is no small assignment.

But to Davis, the pied piper of high society, it is no more difficult than helping John D. Rockefeller Jr. push a piano across a crowded room (because he didn't like the location of the band) or persuading Harry Truman that, no matter how much he hated it, people expected to hear the "Missouri Waltz."

Diplomacy is his beat, along with the fast foxtrot and the cha cha.

For Davis, this will be his seventh inauguration ball and, counting White House parties, the seventh president he has serenaded.

He can remember Warren Harding doing the one-step to "La Paloma." Calvin Coolidge imitating train whistles on the harmonica. A Herbert Hoover aide halting a White House party in mid-number because he had instructions the music must end at 1 a.m. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt leading a square dance in the East Room. Dwight and Mamie Eisenhower exchanging shy smiles over "Down Among the Sheltering Palms," their song from courtship days.

Davis and his music will be no strangers to the new President and his First Lady. He played for their wedding reception at Hammersmith Farm in Newport, R.I., and for Jackie's coming out part at "Merrywood," her family's estate in McLean, Va.

Mrs. Kennedy, he says, "is an exquisite dancer, graceful, charming, with a lovely figure."

And the President? 'Well, let's just say he tends a bit toward the conservative."

The dancing skills of the Kennedys will not be at issue.

"The President," Davis explains, "never gets to dance at his own ball. I guess the Secret Service men wouldn't stand for it. But quite frequently the vice president may get out on the floor. I remember that Nixon did quite a bit of dancing. He's quite adept at the waltz, you know."

Inaugural balls also differ in quite a few other respects from the usual high society functions.

Solons Agree On Teacher Pay

Little Change In James Plan Seen

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Leaders of the Maryland Legislature apparently reached agreement late Tuesday on a limited pay raise for Maryland school teachers in line with the fiscal program recommended by the Legislative Council's James Committee.

It was reported after a late afternoon meeting of Democratic leaders in the assembly that they would accept an aid-to-education program of some $6.4 million, as proposed by the council's Committee on Taxation and Fiscal Matters, and add some $200,000 to it to benefit Baltimore County.

Legislators from Baltimore County, headed by House Majority Leader Gordon Boone, had been leading a fight to revise the program and grant schoolteachers a larger general salary increase.

Baltimore County had stood to receive only school construction money under the proposal by the committee, headed by Sen. William S. James, D-Harford. Details of what adjustment will be worked out were not immediately learned.

The legislative leaders of the House and Senate met behind closed doors for more than two hours this afternoon. A representative of the governor's office attended the hearing. Tawes had said he would be willing to accept a compromise in the James plan as long as it did not greatly exceed the amount recommended by the committee.

The bill as introduced calls for a $3,368,763 to be distributed to the counties and Baltimore City for operating costs and $3,059,313 for aid to school construction.

The agreement reportedly arrived at late Tuesday deals an apparent set-back to hopes of teachers for a general pay increase in the neighborhood of $11 million.

Obscene Literature Bill

Meanwhile, a so-called "last effort" to keep literature deemed obscene away from children in Maryland went over a hurdle without a hitch.

The House of Delegates gave quiet, semi-final approval to a bill that in the past evoked strenuous resistance.

Opponents said they still didn't like the idea of censorship implicit in the bill and still considered it unconstitutional.

However, for the moment they were willing to remain silent on word from Del. Francis X. Gallagher, D-Balto 3rd, that this would be his last effort to try to write a law that will satisfy the Supreme Court of the United States.

The court last year rejected a Maryland law passed in 1959.

Gallagher, a principal supporter and draftsman of that bill, said the substitute he is offering this time was drawn along lines suggested by the Supreme Court.

It makes it a misdemeanor to knowingly sell, give, display or advertise for sale to anyone under 18 literature that would be considered obscene for minors.

Soundness Questioned

Opponents feel this approach also will be held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court if tested because in effect it sets up two degrees of obscenity — for adults and minors.

"It seems that proponents won't be satisfied until they obtain a final judicial declaration that literature for minors can't be censored," said an opponent.

There were only two negative votes voiced when the House Judiciary Committee gave the obscene book bill a favorable report. No word of opposition was voiced when it was given full House approval, although it still could be raised on final vote, perhaps later this week.

The bill makes no effort to define "obscene" or how a book is to be judged. The penalty for offering one to a minor would be a fine up to $200 and imprisonment for a year.

While the book bill was progressing, a $500 pay raise for State Police joined the contest for state money. The proposal that failed in the 1959 session was brought back by Dels. William J. Myers and Harry J. McGuirk of Baltimore's sixth district.

Legislature At A Glance

By The Associated Press

Teachers — House and Senate Democratic leaders reached apparent agreement to go along with recommendations of the so-called James Committee for $6.5 in aid-to-education for schools instead of embarking on a separate program of school teacher salary increases.

Obscene Literature—The House gave semi-final approval to a bill making it a misdemeanor to provide minors with obscene literature.

Salaries — A $500 increase for State Police was proposed in the House of Delegates.

Drugs — A bill to let the State Health Department regulate the sale of drugs now obtainable without prescriptions was given a two-hour hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee, which deferred action until it can hear from federal authorities.

Physical Fitness — The House Ways and Means Committee approved a resolution asking the governor to set up a commission for a study of how to improve the physical fitness of Maryland youth.

Youths Found Guilty In Junk Thefts

Three Given Fines, Two On Probation

Five area youths yesterday were found guilty in a series of thefts from two junkyards in Cresaptown which occurred during the past several months.

Three of the youths, Edward D. Miller, 19, Fairgo; Gene R. Martz, 19, Cresaptown, and James E. Hetrick, 19, Cresap Park, were found guilty of petty larceny, while two 17-year-old boys who were involved in the case were found guilty of being delinquent minors and were given suspended sentences.

The combined hearing was held before Magistrate Paul W. Barnett.

Magistrate Barnett fined Miller $200; Martz $100 and Hetrick $50. He also ordered Miller, Martz and one of the juveniles to make restitution of $181 to the owners of the junkyards for the junk which was stolen and later sold by the youths.

Martz and Hedrick were released from the County Jail after paying their fines and Miller was committed to the jail for 60 days in default of his $200 fine.

Another youth who was arrested in connection with the case, Ernest W. McKee, 19, Cresaptown, was found not guilty of the larceny charge by Magistrate Barnett.

Yesterday's case was prosecuted by Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney.

Sgt. William F. Baker and Tfc. Milton G. Hart, criminal investigators for the State Police, arrested the youths Monday.

State Police said the youths visited the two junkyards on about 10 or 11 different occasions and took items which included car radiators, vises, batteries, car radios and heaters, and car transmissions.

The latest theft occurred last Wednesday night when 15 car radiators were stolen. Police later recovered them where they were hidden in a section off Winchester Road.

Rec Program Sets New High For Attendance

Attendance in the recreation program sponsored by the City of Cumberland climbed to another record breaking height, according to the 1960 report of the City Recreation Department.

The annual report, released yesterday, showed that 164,250 persons took part in the various acctivities provided by the Recreation Department.

C. Eugene Mason, director, said the attendance record indicates a continually growing need for recreation activities during leisure time and that the need exists throughout the year.

"Recreation is such an important part of our daily living," he said, "that the opportunity for it cannot be left to chance — it needs to be carefully planned to meet the challenge ahead."

The report shows the department spent $26,854.91 during the past year for its varied activities.

Details of the activities and service program are given in separate sections of the report.

Retail Merchants Meet Tomorrow

The Retail Merchants Association will hold a dinner meeting tomorrow at 6:45 p.m. in the Fort Cumberland Hotel.

All downtown merchants have been invited to attend, but must have reservations which may be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce office.

The meeting was called to discuss the advisability of a second night opening here.

The Downtown Parking Association has scheduled a brief meeting immediately following the business session.

Arthur Ramey Will Retire On January 31

Became Supervisor Here In 1934

Arthur G. Ramey, who has served as supervisor of transportation in the Allegany County public school system ever since 1934, will retire effective January 31, Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster informed the County Board of Education yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Ramey, who has been connected with the Allegany County public school system ever since 1924, is retiring because of ill health.

The retiring supervisor came to Frostburg in 1924 from Charles Town, W. Va. and taught mathematics at Beall High School for 10 years. From 1927 until about 1947 he officiated at most of the important high school football games played in Cumberland.

Held Various Posts

In 1934 he became supervisor of pupil personnel as well as supervisor of transportation. In 1946 he became supervisor of physical education as well as transportation but relinquished the pupil personnel duties to Homer S. Higgins then. Since 1956, when Robert E. Pence became supervisor of physical education, Mr. Ramey has concentrated on the transportation position.

During his service as supervisor of physical education, Mr. Ramey attended seven or eight conventions of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations. He also was one of the leaders in the organization of the State High School Athletic Association in 1946 and was its president in 1952. He was instrumental in bringing a number of nationally-known persons here to conduct football clinics.

A graduate of Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia, he did graduate work at the University of Virginia, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Columbia University, The Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland.

He was a Naval aviator in World War I and reached the rank of lieutenant commander when he was discharged in the fall of 1919.

Other Action

In other routine action, the Board of Education approved the use of three auditoriums. The Junior Woman's Civic Club received permission to use the Fort Hill High School auditorium for a variety show on the nights of February 24 and 25. It will be for the benefit of Friends Aware of Handicapped Children

Use of the West Side School auditorium on Wednesday, February 23, was granted for a joint concert by two junior music clubs, the Golden Instruments and Happy Harmony clubs for the benefit of parents. The Lonaconing City Band was given permission to use the Valley High School auditorium for a rehearsal February 19 and concert on February 22. At the concert the band will receive flags from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion.

Contracts for two new teachers were approved. They are Neil Toey, now at Valley High School, and Mrs. Phyllis Raines Harrison, Westernport Elementary School.

Approval was given to the payment of bills totalling $17,980.31.

Home Entry Cleared By City Police

A breaking and entering and larceny which took place here in August 1960 has been cleared, city police said.

Two teen-age youths who were involved in the case have been sentenced to the Maryland Training School for Boys, said City Police Detective Captain James E. Van.

John Kelly of White Avenue reported to police on August 11, 1960 that someone had ransacked his home while he was away. A quantity of canned food and soap were taken and two bottles of beer were drunk by the intruders who placed the empties back in the refrigerator.

Meanwhile, said Captain Van, two other minor boys will be given a hearing at 1:30 p. m. today in Juvenile Court in connection with the breaking and entering and theft of two guns from a local home.

Yesterday Captain Van and Detective Thomas J. See went to Meyersdale, Pa. and recovered a 16-gauge shotgun which had been sold to the proprietor of a tavern there.

The other gun, a 30-30 caliber rifle was recovered at a local store. They were reported taken from the home of Liola Myers, 2 South Terrace, after entry was gained through a rear window earlier this month. The guns were valued at $90.

Girl Scout Charter To Be Presented

The Bedford Road Optimist Club will meet today at 6:30 p. m. at the Bedford Road Fire Hall.

Miss Olive M. Hurlburt, executive director of Shawnee Girl Scout Council, Mrs. Raymond Chaney and Mrs. Virginia Brant will attend the meeting for the presentation of the renewal of the club's Girl Scout charter.

Speedliner Hits Truck, Kills Man

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP)—The driver of a pickup truck was killed Tuesday when the truck was rammed by a train, but the driver of a car being towed by the truck was unhurt.

State Police said Norman L. Olinger, 56, of Hedgesville, W.Va., was killed instantly when his truck apparently stopped on a grade crossing and was struck by an eastbound locomotive of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Olinger's truck was towing a car driven by Gilbert Stotler, also of Hedgesville. Stotler was not injured but was taken to a hospital for treatment of shock.

The accident occurred about eight miles west of here near Hedgesville.

The train was the Daylight Speedliner, a commuter from Pittsburgh to Baltimore with about 200 persons aboard. The engineer was identified as Earl Keyser of Cumberland.

Police said Olinger was an employe of the North Mountain Brick Yard, located near the scene of the accident.

1961 Maryland Highway Maps Are Available

Recreational facilities of Western Maryland are featured in the 1961 edition of Maryland's official highway map.

Copies of the tourist map have been received here and may be secured free at the State Roads Commission's district office on Braddock Road.

Maryland's western counties, the SRC says, form one of the nation's most attractive and exciting mountain playgrounds.

The region is known for its glorious views from modern highways which run along tree-lined mountain tops.

Western Maryland, the SRC says, is a year-round vacation paradise and at the same time plays an important part in contributing to the industrial and economic strength of the nation.

C&P Telephone Communication Area Expands

Direct Dialing Plans Approved

Western Maryland's communications system continued to expand and improve during 1960, according to T. W. Dwyer, district commercial manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

Nearly 68,000 telephones are now in use in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties. This is an increase of about 2,200 during 1960 and more than 20,000 during the past five years, Mr. Dwyer said.

C&P Company officials said plans for further expansion of direct dialing of long distance calls were approved during 1960 and equipment installations will be completed in 1961. At present, Cumberland residents may dial station-to-station calls over the nationwide long distance network.

Residents of Western Maryland made more calls during 1960 than ever before. The new peak was 122,100,000 as compared with 70,500,000 for the year 1955.

Among the large improvement projects completed last year in this area were the opening of a new exchange at Oldtown at a cost of $120,000 and a $100,000 addition to the dial equipment in Cumberland.

For improving the outside cable and wire network in Western Maryland, C&P spent over $800,000 in 1960. One of the largest jobs was putting up new cable across Backbone Mountain between Oakland, Kitzmiller and Piedmont, W. Va. The entire communication network in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties was expanded by providing more circuits between all exchanges to handle an increasing volume of calls.

Telephone service for cars and trucks was extended to Western Maryland in 1960, when a mobile radio transmitting and receiving tower was completed on Fairview Mountain. Vehicles traveling across the state from the vicinity of Town Hill to Ocean City may now make and receive telephone calls en route.

For the state as a whole, Mr. Dwyer said telephones in service reached an all-time peak of 1,303,000 at the end of 1960. He pointed out that while the census shows the population was increasing 32 per cent over the past 10 years, telephones more than doubled in number.

The company is now planning construction expenditures of more than a quarter of a million dollars during the next five years to further improve and expand Maryland's phone system.

25% Of County Teachers Have Master's Degrees

Only two other Maryland counties have a higher percentage of teachers with master's degrees than Allegany County, according to one of the statistical tables included in the 93d annual report of the State Board of Education showing the condition of the public schools of Maryland for the year ending June 30, 1959.

The report just released shows that 165 or 25.6 per cent of Allegany County's teachers as of October 1958 had a master's degree. That's 6.1 above the state average of 19.5 per cent with master's degree

Talbot County on the Eastern Shore and Montgomery County near Washington are the only counties with a higher percentage of master's degree teachers. Talbot led with 47 or 28.3 per cent. Montgomery County had 742 or 27.6 per cent with a master's degree.

Allegany's two nearest neighbors rank fourth and sixth in the percentage of teachers with master's degrees. Washington County placed fourth with 174 or 23.8 per cent while Garrett County ranked sixth with 37 or 20 per cent.

405 Are Graduates

This same table reveals that 405 other Allegany County teachers, 62.7 per cent of the staff, held a bachelor's degree as of October 1958. That percentage is below the state average of 64.2 per cent, principally because this county has a higher percentage with master's degrees. Allegany County had 88.3 per cent with a master's or bachelor's degree compared with 83.7 per cent state-wide.

In Garrett County, 117 or 63.2 per cent of the teachers held a bachelor's degree in October 1958. Coupled with the 20 per cent with master's degrees, that means that 83.2 per cent of Garrett County's teachers had degrees. That is four-tenths of one per cent under the state average.

Allegany County had one-ninth of the Maryland teachers with doctor's degrees as of October 1958. Of the 27 in Maryland's 23 counties, 10 teach in Baltimore County, six in Montgomery County, three in Allegany County, two each in Anne Arundel and Washington counties and one each in Frederick, Harford, Somerset and Worcester. The other 14 counties had no faculty members with a doctorate.

This county was well below the state average in percentage of teachers with only two or three years college and in the number with less than two full years of college.

72 Lack Degrees

Seventy-two Allegany County teachers as of October 1958 had two or three years college. That is 11.1 per cent of the force, compared with the state average of 14.5 per cent. The only counties with smaller percentage of two-three year college education, the table showed, are Montgomery, 7.2 per cent; Calvert, 8.1 per cent, and Caroline, 8.4 per cent. Garrett County had 29 teachers, 15.7 per cent of its staff, with two or three years of college education at the time the State Department of Education report was compiled.

State-wide as of October 1958, there were 285 teachers with less than two years of college education to their credit. That is 1.8 per cent of the total force. Only four of them, or six-tenths of one per cent in Allegany County, had less than two years of college. Two of Garrett County's teachers, or 1.1 per cent of them, had less than two years of college education when this report was prepared.

Most of Allegany County's teachers without degrees are in the elementary schools. Fifty-six of the 72 with two or three years of college were in the elementary ranks, as were all four of those lacking two years of college education.

475 Boats Registered In County

A total of 475 boats are registered in Allegany County according to William B. Matthews Jr., director, Boating and Recreation Division of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries.

He pointed out that in Garrett County there are 281 boats registered. As of December 31, 1960 there were 47,985 boats registered throughout Maryland.

Of this total, 15,161 are inboard motor boats; 32,393 are propelled with outboard motors; 219 by sail alone; and the propulsion of 212 is unknown.

It was pointed out that if a motor is attached to a sail boat it is considered a motor boat by law, and that only those motor boats whose engines are over 7½ horsepower and pure sail boats 25 feet and over are required to be registered.

Mr. Matthews said of the total number of boats, 82.5 per cent were less than 26 feet in length, which, shows the trend not only toward small boats with outboard motors, but also reveals that yachting is no longer a "rich man's hobby."

He urges all persons selling or transferring their boats to report such sale to the Department of Tidewater Fisheries, as is required by law.

"Present indications are that the 1961 boating season will be the largest ever, and the more promptly we are notified of the transfer of a vessel the quicker the new owner will receive his Certificate of Number," Mr. Matthews said.

The number stays with the boat as long as that boat is in existence. However, the new owner must have a certificate in his name, the director added.

School Board Backs Higher Teacher Pay

$4,000 Starting Salary Advocated

A new teacher salary schedule starting at $4,000 and reaching a maximum of $6,200 in the 12th year of teaching was approved by the Allegany County Board of Education yesterday afternoon and will be included in the proposed budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year to be submitted to the Board of County Commissioners in February.

This proposed schedule was submitted to the Board of Education yesterday by the legislative committee of the Allegany County Teachers Association. Should this schedule get the approval of the county commissioners, it will mean an annual increase of $300 or $400 for virtually all of the 634 teachers in the county public school system.

Figures submitted to the Board of Education by John D. Kelly, chairman and spokesman for the committee, indicate that the overall cost of the increase in teachers' salaries would total $205,100.

403 At Top

More than five out of eight county teachers are now at the peak salary of $5,900 a year and they would go to $6,200 under the new plan. That $300 boost for each of 403 fully-experienced teachers would cost a total of $120,900.

Here's how the increase would work out, according to the committee's figures:

Some 19 second-year teachers would move from the present $3,900 to $4,200; 23 third-year teachers would get $4,400, up $400; 19 four-year teachers would receive $4,400, up $400; 34 fifth-year teachers would get $4,800, up $400; 22 sixth-year teachers would obtain $5,000, up $400; 21 seventh-year teachers would go to $5,200, up $400; 25 eighth-year teachers would get $5,400, up $400; 30 ninth-year teachers would receive $5,600, up $400; 19 10-year teachers would receive $5,800, up $400; 22 11-year teachers would get $6,000, up $100, and 403 12-year teachers would get $6,200, up $300.

Aimed At Frederick

Mr. Kelly explained that in making its recommendations, the committee looked at the salary schedule now in effect in Frederick County and sought to reach its range. Frederick County has a $4,000 minimum and a $6,100 maximum in the 11th year of teaching. He said the only difference was that his group added a 12th step calling for $6,200.

However, since the committee arrived at its recommendations it has been informed that the county commissioners in Frederick County will grant teachers there a locally-paid $300 a year increase, making the range from $4,300 to $6,400, still above the figures asked here.

Allegany County is one of six in Maryland now starting teachers below $4,000 and Dorchester County is at $3,900, $100 above this county. This county's present maximum of $5,900 is ahead of eight other Maryland counties and the lowest is at $5,700. Neighboring Washington County begins at $4,200 and reaches $6,100 in the 16th year.

Dr. W. Ardell Haines, another member of the legislative committee, pointed out that last year the county commissioners virtually promised a $100 increase this year when they granted a $100 boost instead of the requested $200. The $100 a year for each of 634 teachers would cost $6,300 or about one-third of the recommended request.

All eight members of the committee at yesterday's meeting stressed two points. They are wholeheartedly in favor of the school board's proposed $5,000,000 school building program as well as increased salaries, and do

Md. Board Asks Higher Pay For School Teachers

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Board of Education recommended Tuesday that a minimum wage scale of $4,000 to $6,000 be adopted for public school teachers.

The board also recommended certain increases in salary for staff members of the Department of Education.

The recommendations were made at a special meeting at which the board heard a report from its consultant, Dr. R. Reeman Butts, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Dr. Butts said his study of Maryland public schools indicates young people today are brighter and more capable than students were 50 years ago. He said modern forms of communication probably play an important role in making youngsters more alert and responsive.

Dr. Butts made a broad survey of Maryland public schools in 1958 and recently has been studying the curriculum in Montgomery County schools.

The educator said television, radio, newspapers and magazines are so readily available to young people that they have a wider understanding of many subjects than previous generations.

He recommended more foreign languages, algebra and social studies be taught in public schools. He suggested "non-Western" languages, such as the Oriental tongues, might be introduced.

Khrush Says Communism Backs Wars Of Liberation

No. 1 Red Claims World Victory Is "Inevitable"

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev says the world Communist movement fully supports wars of national liberation.

The Soviet leader in a 20,000-word speech published Tuesday in the magazine Kommunist called such conflicts a third class of war as distinguished from total thermonuclear and limited "brush fire" wars.

Khrushchev declared that war is not necessary for a victory by world communism, which he said "is not far off."

But he warned in his speech, a report delivered Jan. 6 to a general meeting of party organizations in Moscow, that war will come if capitalist nations try to resist communism's victory — a victory he said is "inevitable by the laws of historical development."

Algerian Conflict Example

Khrushchev cited the present Algerian conflict as an example of the third class of war.

Khrushchev said of Algeria:

"It is a sacred war. We recognize such wars. We have helped and shall go on helping people fighting for their freedom."

As another example he mentioned the revolution in Cuba and said that "led by Fidel Castro the people of Cuba won." Khrushchev noted that the United States "did not directly intervene in that war."

His samples of the second class of war, local war which might develop into big ones, were the Indochina fighting of 1953-54 and British-French action in Suez in 1956. He made no mention of the fighting in Laos.

He said it was to communism's advantage to avoid annihilating thermonuclear and "brush fire" wars.

Khrushchev also declared the Soviet Union was sincerely for disarmament which he called "the most important factor in preventing war," and also an important factor in the fight against imperialism.

Communism Looks To Africa

The Soviet premier saw a fertile field for communism in the awakening of the nations of Asia, Africa and Latin America which he said was second only to the emergence of the world socialist system in historic impact.

He predicted that "fascist dungeons in the Union of South Africa will crumble to dust. Rhodesia, Uganda and other parts of Africa will be free."

"The working class, which today governs a vast area of the world and in time will rule the whole world," Khrushchev said, "cannot allow the doomed forces (imperialism) to drag hundreds of millions of people into the grave with them."

One of the means for preventing a new war is the development of "peace fronts" throughout the world, including pacifists of all political beliefs, he said.

Another is the policy of peaceful coexistence.

Rickover Receives Navy's Top Award

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover stood on the bridge of the submarine Nautilus as she first sailed under nuclear power six years ago.

With 16 atomic submarines in service, Rickover stood again on the Nautilus, Tuesday—the sailing sixth anniversary — and received the Navy's highest peacetime decoration, the Distinguished Service Medal.

Pinning on the decoration, Secretary of the Navy William B. Franke said the fiery admiral was "largely responsible for making the dreams of nuclear power for ships come true."

Daughter Of Bank President Admits Taking $2 Million

SHELDON, Iowa (AP)—Where did the money go? Why did she take it?

A dumbfounded Iowa community, which awoke Tuesday morning to find one of its respected banks closed and a prominent citizen in jail for embezzling $2 million, could only wonder the answers.

The answers apparently remain with Burnice Iverson Geiger, 58, a conservative—almost shy—assistant cashier and board member of the Sheldon National Bank.

A routine audit by federal bank examiners Monday night swiftly turned up the alleged shortages at the bank.

Then U.S. Dist. Atty. F. E. Van Alstine said at Sioux City that Mrs. Geiger admitted embezzling $2,126,859 — one of the largest amounts ever taken in banking history in this country.

William Crary, an assistant U.S. district attorney, said it had not been determined how she manipulated the embezzlement or how she spent the money. It apparently was taken over a long period of time, he said.

"She had a way of covering up," Van Alstine said. He declined to discuss the case further, pending the convening of a grand jury at Sioux City Jan. 30.

Mrs. Geiger waived hearing and was held for the grand jury when arraigned before U.S. Commissioner William Forker at Sioux City. Bond was set at $10,000. She did not immediately make bail.

After the shortage was discovered, the bank's directors voted to turn the institution over to federal authorities for liquidation.

Customers of the bank, which had deposits in excess of $2 million, were protected to a maximum of $10,000 for each depositor through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., government officials said. Payment in full of insured deposits would begin in 10 days, the FDIC said.

Mrs. Geiger and her husband, Wallace, are members of prominent and long - time Sheldon families. Geiger operates a hardware store.

Her father, W. P. Iverson, 83, has been president of the bank for 45 years and was a druggist here.

"I'm all choked up," was all Iverson would say.

Three Terrorists Executed In Cuba

HAVANA (UPI) — Three Cubans were executed as terrorists Tuesday by Premier Fidel Castro's firing squads which went back into action to cope with growing anti - government sentiment.

One of the three men executed was charged with plotting to blow up an ammunition dump while the premier was in the vicinity in an apparent attempt on his life.

The executions were carried out in a flood-lighted area of Cabana fortress across the bay from Havana less than an hour after the sentences were handed down by a military tribunal. About 50 other accused terrorists are involved in the continuing trials.

The executed men were identified as Balbino Diaz, Jose M. Mesa and Julio A. Yebra.

Former Convict Admits Rape-Slaying Of Girl, 6

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—A Texas ex-convict Tuesday admitted luring a frail 6-year-old heart patient from her home, raping her then strangling her. He said his pregnant wife helped, and at one point struck the child on the head with a tire wrench. The wife denied it.

Richard Arlen Lindsey, $77-a-week farm worker and admitted mental case, cracked under endless hours of questioning after authorites told him they had found the body of blonde, blue - eyed Rose Marie Riddle.

They were led to the scene, a field some 60 miles north of this city in California's vast agricultural San Joaquin Valley, by the wife, Dixie Elaine Lindsey.

She broke down Monday night and told sheriff's deputies her husband abducted the girl last Thursday. She said Lindsey, 30, drove to the field, told his wife to leave the car, drove off with the girl, and returned without her. The car seat, she said, was covered with blood when he returned.

Lindsey, according to Dist. Atty. Kit Nelson, told this story:

He and his wife, 23, and pregnant with her fourth child, drove the girl to the field. Afterward, as the girl lay whimpering, the wife came over and struck her with the wrench, killing her.

Nelson said Mrs. Lindsey denied this, claiming the couple argued in the car, that Lindsey struck her and forced her out, and went into the field without her.

After a preliminary examination of the body, a coroner said the child had been sexually molested. There were 19 gashes on her head and face, he reported.

Inaugural Ball Grows, Parade Has Test Run

WASHINGTON (AP)—The "old guard" marched along the "new frontier" Tuesday in a test run —late starting, of course—of Friday's gigantic inaugural parade.

And the Inaugural Committee caved in to pressure and added two more sections to the inaugural ball.

This last switch set off a frenzied reshuffling of schedules.

The parade and ball are key events of the great day when John F. Kennedy puts his hand on a Bible, takes the oath as America's 35th president, and puts a new administration on the rail to what he calls the new frontiers of the 1960s.

The weatherman sounded cooperative about the big day. Generally fair and a little warmer is the outlook, but there's just a chance of some dampness.

The Inaugural Committee zealously papered the country with invitations to the inaugural ball and found itself entangled in the results of its own enthusiasm. Too many customers, even at $25 a ticket, for the space available.

So a ball which started out in the National Guard armory expanded to the Sheraton Park Hotel, then the Mayflower, and now to the Statler Hilton and the Shoreham.

This should take care of an extra few thousand people who are eager to waltz, quaff champagne, and wait for the arrival of the new president and first lady and Vice President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson togged out in formal finery for a dazzling event.

But the timetable is being rejiggered frantically because the committee that once promised the Kennedys and Johnsons would divide their time equally among three places now is faced with the problem of dividing their time five ways instead of three.

The dry run of the parade was dry, all right, and precise. It was just the first section, the presidential section of the parade, but without any of the principals, naturally. A "V" of motorcycle police started it off. The Army band took part. The massed presidential colors, and those of all the states, were borne majestically along the full 2¾-mile route.

And the Army's "old guard fife and drum corps" swung along, beating and tootling, in bright red continental uniforms.

Deep Sea Diver Reports No Hint Of Life In Wreck

ABOARD THE USS WASP (AP)—A deep sea diver tapped again and again Tuesday on the sides of the sunken Texas tower No. 4. But he got no answer—not even the slimmest hint of life aboard. The darkness, the silence apparently bespoke the doom of 26 men believed trapped within the storm-wrecked ocean sentinel.

"No response to tapping — no, repeat, no sign of life," was the heartbreaking message flashed from this Navy aircraft carrier to shore stations.

Tapping Raised Hope

Then he handed command of the operation to the Coast Guard and ordered the Wasp back to regular duties, thus reluctantly writing off the lives of the entombed men.

Some of the victims were believed still alive hours after the 67 - foot tower buckled and sank Sunday night in an Atlantic gale. There had been tapping sounds from the tower Monday and as late as 3:45 a.m. Tuesday, stirring a dramatic hope of survivors clinging to life in air pockets aboard the tower structure.

There were 28 men aboard the tower when it fell and came to rest 50 feet beneath the surface, wedged among the tripod supports that gave way beneath it. One body was recovered, a second sighted on the surface and lost. The remaining 26 were believed trapped in the wreckage.

Divers Tap; No Response

With dawn's first light, divers descended into the icy waters, spurred by the memory of the mysterious underwater sounds. But two hours later, it seemed apparent there was little chance of anyone still alive in the wreckage.

Commercial diver Jim Cahill, 35, of Beverley, Mass., and a companion, spent an hour tapping their way about the tower's personnel areas. They came up about noon with their grim report of no response.

McNamara Plan For Trust Fund Raises Concern

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense-designate Robert S. McNamara, who sold his Ford stock in a move to allay fears, discovered the fears persist — among the senators who must approve him.

Their concern focused on the problem of conflict of interest. While the Senate Armed Services Committee had no question about McNamara's sale of $1.5 million worth of Ford Motor Co. stock, two members questioned him closely Tuesday about what he is going to do with the money.

McNamara has put the total—$1.1 million after taxes—into government bonds. He then plans to convert the bonds into a trust fund. Trustees would invest the money without consulting him.

"It's not my purpose to be harsh," Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va., said to McNamara. But, Byrd said, the trust fund presented the same problem as the Ford stock—for the fund trustees might invest money in companies that did business with the Defense Department, just as the Ford Motor Co. might do business with the department.

Byrd said the trust fund thus might violate the conflict of interest law, which was passed in 1873.

"I will be quite happy to modify the agreement any way you suggest," McNamara told Byrd and the other members of the committee. The 44-year-old former president of the Ford Motor Co. suggested that his lawyers could sit down with lawyers of Congress and work out a satisfactory trust fund.

The chairman, Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told McNamara the committee had not decided yet if that was necessary. Russell added that, in any case, the committee could not act on McNamara until it formally received his nomination from President-elect John F. Kennedy. The formal nomination is expected after the inauguration Friday.

Train Hits Gas Truck; Six Die In Fiery Crash

Flaming Fuel Engulfs Wide Area; Six Hurt

MAGNOLIA, Miss. (AP) — The streamliner "City of New Orleans," speeding toward Chicago at nearly 80 miles per hour with its "whistle blowing like hell," smashed into a gasoline truck Tuesday, killing six and injuring six others.

The nine-car Illinois Central passenger train rammed the truck at a crossing in downtown Magnolia, a community of about 2,200 in south Mississippi about 100 miles north of New Orleans.

The truck exploded under the impact, spewing flames as high as the trees and the length of the train. The train—en route from New Orleans to Chicago—skidded about 300 yards along the track that splits the center of the town before stopping.

Among the dead were the train's engineer and fireman—J. A. Livingston of McComb, Miss., and John Collins of Jackson, Miss.—and the truck driver, Morris Piggott, operator of a small store near McComb.

The others killed were identified as Bobby Gwin of Magnolia, a white man who worked in the freight yards, and two Negroes unloading grain from freight cars —Kancey Johns and Charles Hughes, both of Magnolia.

R. L. Williams, a Magnolia painter, was in a Main Street store when he heard the streamliner approaching, its whistle "blowing like hell." Williams said the truck driver apparently didn't hear the train and started slowly across the tracks.

"The train smashed into the truck and shot flames as high as the trees and spread the length of the train," Williams said. "I knew somebody was burning up and I couldn't do anything about it, I could feel the flames."

Flaming gasoline rained on the workers, boxcars and a nearby warehouse. The freight cars and warehouse were badly burned.

Speeds near 80 are not unusual, IC spokesman said, even when passing through small communities like Magnolia. The city is not even a flag stop, they said.

There is a red and white sign warning motorists to stop at the crossing, but there are no flashing lights or cross bars.

Michigan Man Kills Wife, Four Children, Self

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP)—A Grand Blanc man shot and killed his wife and four children Tuesday, then turned a deer rifle on himself.

Dead are Thomas Clark, 37, and his wife, Janet, also 37, and their four children, Carl, 12, Kathleen, 11, Karen, 10, and Kurt, 8.

The pajama-clad bodies of Mrs. Clark and the children were found in beds on the second floor of their two-story home here. Police said each had been shot once with a deer rifle.

Clark's body was found fully clothed in a downstairs bedroom. A deer rifle was beside him.

Police said the shootings apparently occurred sometime early in the morning. The bodies were discovered around 5 p.m.

Neighbors reported Clark, a supervisory employe at the Fisher body plant in Grand Blanc, had been despondent lately.

A LAST GOOD NIGHT — President Eisenhower makes his farewell television-radio address as chief executive to the nation. Speaking three days before he steps out of office, Eisenhower told the American people last night he wished he could say a lasting peace is in sight. Lumumba Seen In Handcuffs At Elisabethville

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo, (AP)—Patrice Lumumba was reported here Tuesday under close guard and in handcuffs, but the reason was a mystery.

The reports came from officials of the Belgian air line, Sabena, who said they saw the firebrand ex-premier arrive and also from Katanga Province officials commenting privately.

Sources close to the central government in Leopoldville, however, professed ignorance of any transfer.

For some time rumors have circulated in Leopoldville of a plan to take Lumumba to Elisabethville, the stronghold of secessionist Katanga Province, headed by President Moise Tshombe, arch enemy of the leftist Lumumba.

There was one possible reason for the transfer, if it actually occurred. Albert Delvaux, one of the ministers organizing President Joseph Kasavubu's projected roundtable conference of Congolese leaders, said in Leopoldville the meeting will be held in Elisabethville.

Originally it had been scheduled for Leopoldville on Jan. 25. A new date now will be set by Tshombe and Kasavubu.

About 500 representatives are expected at the conference, called to try to work out peace among warring factions. The meeting could hardly be held without Lumumba, who holds the loyalty of forces controlling Oriental, Kivu, and parts of Katanga and Kasai Provinces.

Coincidental with reports of Lumumba's arrival in Elisabethville was a roundup of more than 400 people accused of threatening the safety of the state. Many were described as Lumumba supporters, and the Katanga government would certainly want them locked up to lessen chances of any move here to help Lumumba escape.

Six Klansmen Face Jury Action In U. Of Ga. Riot

ATHENS, Ga. (UPI)—Six Ku Klux Klansmen were bound over to a grand jury Tuesday on charges stemming from a riot on the newly-integrated University of Georgia campus last week.

The two Negro students whose presence sparked the riot—Charlayne Hunter, 18, and Hamilton Holmes, 19—attended classes at the university for the second day Tuesday without incident.

As the Klansmen were being haled before a municipal judge, local police announced they had captured a man believed to be the gunman who showed up at Miss Hunter's dormitory Sunday night and asked if the Negro coed was on campus. When told she wasn't he took a gun from an elderly guard and fled.

Police said the man arrested Tuesday had the guard's gun in his possession. Authorities said he was picked up on complaint of two women who said he had threatened them. He opened fire when police attempted to make the arrest and had to be subdued.

Police refused to disclose the suspect's name. "I think the guy's just a mental case," Clarke County Sheriff H. T. Huff said. "I don't think the racial issue had anything to do with him going up to that dormitory."

The six Klansmen were charged with carrying weapons to a public gathering and were freed under $500 bond.

A number of plainclothesmen were still on the University of Georgia campus Tuesday but they stayed in the background as Holmes and Miss Hunter went normally about their business.

Chief Executive Says Farewell With Prayer For Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower said a last good night to the American people Tuesday night with a prayer for peace and prosperity for all and a warning that "crises there will continue to be."

The man who steps out of the White House three days from now, after half a century of service to the country, told his fellow countrymen he wished he could say that lasting peace is in sight.

"But," Eisenhower said, "so much remains to be done."

And the old soldier said it is with "a definite sense of disappointment" that he lays down his official responsibilities in the search for a disarmament he said is a continuing imperative.

It was in something of a mellow and reminiscent mood that Eisenhower spoke to the nation in a farewell radio-television address from his White House office.

But he also was in a mood to look into the days and years ahead.

And he told the people that America is pre-eminent today — "the strongest, the most influential and most productive nation in the world."

Must Not Live Only For Today

Perhaps with the spending plans of the new administration and promises of the Democratic platform in mind, Eisenhower said at one point that:

"As we peer into society's future, we—you and I, and our government—must avoid the impulse to live only for today, plundering, for our own ease and convenience, the precious resources of tomorrow."

"We cannot mortgage the material assets of our grandchildren without risking the loss also of their political and spiritual heritage," he said. "We want democracy to survive for all generations to come, not to become the insolvent phantom of tomorrow."

Eisenhower carried on business as usual as the time approached for his retirement to private life.

In his broadcast, Eisenhower said that threats, new in kind or degree, constantly arise before the people and the government and he wanted to mention two.

Military-Industrial Complex

In these times when the military establishment is a vital element in keeping the peace, Eisenhower said, the country's arms must be mighty and ready.

The nation is spending more every year on military security than all the net income of U.S. corporations, he said, and the combination of an immense military establishment and a vast, permanent armaments industry is new in the American experience.

Spelling out the first threat, then, the President said that:

"In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military - industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist.

"We must never let the weight of this combination endanger our liberties or democratic processes. We should take nothing for grant-

Laos Forces Extend Drive

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Victory at Vang Vieng heartened government forces Tuesday and cleared the way for a flanking drive against leftist rebels holding the strategic plateau called the Plaine Des Jarres.

Rout of about 500 of Capt. Kong Le's pro-Communist force from Vang Vieng in a 30-minute battle Monday eased the Red pressure on one of the two main fronts.

Road blocks that had chopped ground communications between the administrative capital of Vientiane and Luang Prabang, the royal capitol 140 miles to the north, were cleared.

Col. Kouprasith Abhay directed the attack by a ground force of 600 men who moved up in three columns.

Guns and rockets of four American-made trainer planes turned over to Premier Boun Oum's pro-Western regime by the United States last week helped to speed the rebels on their flight into the hills.

Sixteen were captured. Among the rebel dead was Lt. Thong My, a top aide of Kong Le. Government casualties were not announced.

Marine Unions' Strike Forces NYC To Halt Service Out Of Grand Central

NEW YORK (AP) — Pickets posted by 660 striking marine workers forced the New York Central Railroad Tuesday to halt all its train service out of mammoth Grand Central Terminal. Forty thousand commuters were hit by the tieup.

The line said Buffalo will be the temporary eastern terminus for most of its long distance trains. Some service, on a curtailed basis, continues to and from Albany.

The line said Albany, N.Y., would become the temporary eastern terminus for most of its long distance trains, but that service on some would end at Buffalo, N.Y.

Twelve Central long distance trains, carrying a total of 3,000 passengers, normally arrive here daily.

Most of the 40,000 commuter passengers hit live in suburban Westchester County. Just how many of them simply stayed home from work or managed to find other means of transportation wasn't known.

Pickets causing the tieup represent four marine unions on strike for the last week against tugboats and ferryboats operated by 11 railroads.

The pickets extended their patrolling Monday to some Central train routes and the trainmen refused to cross the lines. The Central picketing was broadened still further Tuesday.

Most New Haven trains, which also use Grand Central, were running normally. However, shortage of equipment in the station caused cancellation of one train.

Some 30,000 ferryboat commuters previously had been forced to find other transportation. The flow of food that normally comes into the city across the Hudson River from New Jersey also has been greatly curtailed by the marine strike.

Chief issue in the strike is disagreement over the size of tugboat crews—now generally five. The railroads want to reduce the number; the unions want it kept.

ed. Only an alert and knowledgable citizenry can compel the proper meshing of the huge industrial and military machinery of defense with our peaceful methods and goals, so that security and liberty may prosper together."

The second threat is tied to the technological revolution of recent decades which has reached the point, Eisenhower said, where "for every old blackboard there are now hundreds of new electric computers."

The prospect of domination of the nation's scholars by federal employment, project allocations, and the power of money is ever present—and is gravely to be regarded, he said.

"Yet, in holding scientific research and discovery in respect, as we should," he said, "we must also be alert to the equal and opposite danger that the public policy could itself become the captive of a scientific - technological elite.

"Like every other citizen," Eisenhower said, "I wish the new president, and all who will labor with him, God speed. I pray that the coming years will be blessed with peace and prosperity for all."

As for a Congress which was under Democratic control for six of his eight years in office, Eisenhower said his official relationship with it ends in a feeling on his part "of gratitude that we have been able to do so much together."

And speaking directly to those watching and listening in, Eisenhower offered his thanks for many opportunities the people have given him for public service in war and peace.

Patent Drug Bill Praised And Assailed

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—A bill under which the State Health Department could outlaw door-to-door sales of household medicines was praised Tuesday as protection of the public "from quacks" and attacked as an attempt to corner the patent drug market for pharmacists.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee heard nearly two hours of debate on the measure and decided to call in federal drug authorities for further testimony before taking any action.

Everett B. McVey of Baltimore, representing manufacturers of the household medicines, said the bill to let the department label as "dangerous" any drug it saw fit—and therefore require prescriptions—is a conspiracy between the department and pharmacists.

"It is aimed at giving them (the pharmacists) a competitive and monopolistic advantage in the sale of medicine," McVey said. He said the health department and the pharmacists "undoubtedly are working hand and fist in this matter."

"They really want to get the supermarkets who are giving them competition," he said. "But they want to get us first . . . . They'd like to get our products and sell them, but if so you'll be paying through the nose."

Robert N. Brown, chief of environmental hygiene for the health department, said the department seeks to prevent "misrepresentations" to families by itinerant sellers of medicine. He said some of these people "go around recommending the use of drugs which do families no good and delay them in seeing a doctor. These vendors do injury to the public in allaying their anxiety when they might have a serious illness."

"Dog Woman" Found Dead In Her Home

BALTIMORE (AP) — A policeman walking his beat Tuesday found a dead woman in the hallway of her home. The victim was identified as Miss Florence Schubert, 60, a Water Department clerk since 1947.

Patrolman Raymond Leonards, who found the body, said there were 30 dogs in the house.

In July of last year, Police Magistrate Howard L. Aaron had ordered Miss Schubert to get rid of 28 of 30 dogs she had then. Neighbors had complained the animals were a nuisance.

Church Of England Leader To Resign

LONDON (UPI) — The archbishop of Canterbury, who blocked Princess Margaret's marriage to Peter Townsend, Tuesday announced his resignation effective May 31 as primate of the Church of England.

The 73-year-old archbishop, the Most Rev. Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, had built up a reputation during his 16-year reign as one of the most colorful and controversial leaders in the church's history.

Stahr Making Sacrifice To Take Army Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Elvis J. Stahr Jr., who is quitting as West Virginia University president to become secretary of the Army, told senators Tuesday he agreed to take the Defense Department post because "I felt I could not turn it down."

"I did not seek this position," the 44-year old educator said.

Stahr was questioned by the Senate Armed Services Committee along with other nominees of President-elect John F. Kennedy for Defense posts.

Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, asked Stahr his opinion on recommendations of the Kennedy task force headed by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo. It recommended elimination of the civilian secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

"Incredible as it may sound I have not read it," Stahr replied. He said he had been so busy winding up his affairs as a university president and planning to come to Washington that he had not read many things he wants to read later.

Stahr said he was making both a personal and financial sacrifice to take the Army secretaryship which pays $22,000 a year. At the university, he received $30,000.

"I'm glad to see that the state of West Virginia is able to pay its college professors so well," Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told him.

Russell noted that Stahr's list of stock holdings and investments was small, but said some of them were in defense industries. He said he assumed these would be sold.

Stahr said that some Bethlehem Steel stock, in his name, actually belongs to his daughter. He said it was given to her by her grandfather. He said other steel stock was held by Mrs. Stahr and was a gift from her mother.

Even so, Stahr said he planned to sell the stock held by his daughter.

C&O Will Transfer 600 To Huntington

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway announced Tuesday it had purchased an idle government building for additional office space and would transfer about 600 employes here from Richmond and Detroit later this year.

The building, constructed by the Navy during World War II and leased for several years to the Sylvania Electric Products, was purchased from the General Services Administration for $850,000. The railway said it would spend $700,000 in extensive remodeling.

Md. House Group Airs Physical Unfitness Issue

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Some Maryland lawmakers worked up a pretty good sweat Tuesday over a weighty problem: The physical unfitness of American youth.

Wrestling with this question, the House Ways and Means Committee touched on such subjects as:

Why women in this country live longer than men.

The decline and fall of the Roman Empire.

Why Germany lost World War

The cause-and-effect relationship between television and bulging waistlines.

The springboard launching the committee members into all this was a resolution by Del. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Harford.

It calls for the governor to set up a commission to check whether the state is doing enough "to improve the fitness, general posture, strength, and good health of all young men and women in Maryland."

The longevity question was raised by Del. Margaret C. Schweinhaut, D - Montgomery. She's head of the State Commission on Problems of the Aging.

"Women are living 15 years longer than men," said Mrs. Schweinhaut. "I wonder if it's because of physical fitness."

Physical education professor Benjamin H. Massey, a witness favoring the resolution, didn't argue the point.

"But I've heard it said," he suggested, "that men die sooner because men marry women and women don't marry women."

Harry D. Kaufman, a lawyer and chairman of the Baltimore City Jail Board, compared the United States with Rome. He said something about the Romans getting rich and fat "before the Greeks, with all their Spartan training, conquered them."

This caused committee chairman A. Gordon Boone to sit bolt upright in protest, noticeably improving his posture.

"It wasn't the Greeks," he declared. "You're about 1,000 years too soon."

Boone also became involved with Kaufman in a discussion of U. S. and German troops in World War II. He questioned Kaufman's statement that U. S. troops lacked the stamina displayed by the Germans.

Delivering the backhand to television was Rudolph J. Matousek, director of physical education at the Baltimore Central Y. M. C. A.

"The American boy of today watches television instead of getting out and playing sports," he said.

Virginian Gets Whisky Back

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — A Virginia resident has received 43 fifths of post-Christmas cheer which he had purchased in Washington and was carrying in his car when a Montgomery County policeman arrested him Dec. 27. He was charged with transporting into the state liquor that did not bear Maryland tax stamps.

Herman Paige of Alexandria was found innocent by Judge Einar B. Christensen in Peoples Court Monday after he testified the liquor was purchased for a friend's birthday party in the Georgetown section of Washington, and that it was not intended to be consumed in Maryland.

Paige told the court that after he bought the whisky he wanted to buy a birthday cake. A friend suggested a store in Silver Spring, and it was while he was on this errand, that he was arrested on the transportation charge, Paige testified.

The judge said testimony showed the whisky was not for delivery and consumption in Maryland. He returned not only the 43 fifths but also $75 Paige had posted.

More than 99 per cent of the air at sea level is composed of oxygen and nitrogen.

Ceiling Yields Old U.S. Flags

BALTIMORE (AP) — Workmen renovating a building have found two United States flags more than 80 years old in the third-floor ceiling. One has 39 stars, the other 36.

There is only one tear in the 39-star flag, used between 1876 and 1879. The older flag, used between 1864 and 1867, is badly frayed and extremely dirty.

The building where the flags were found is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Nochumowitz and Mrs. Nochumowitz's mother, Mrs. Ethel Press. Nochumowitz, who operates a tavern next door, said the third floor had been unoccupied for 30 years.

He said he hasn't decided what to do with the flags.

Baltimore Smashes Dope-Peddling Ring

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore City and federal investigators said Tuesday they have broken up a dope-peddling ring in Baltimore with the arrest of 12 persons since Saturday.

Capt. Joseph F. Carroll, chief of the Police Department's narcotics bureau, said the arrests climaxed six months of undercover investigation, in which agents posed as addicts and bought $1,600 worth of heroin on Baltimore street corners.

Supplies of the narcotics came to Baltimore from New York and Washington, Capt. Carroll said.

Two Women, 'Canned Heaters,' Found Dead

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two women died Tuesday in a rundown apartment littered with empty wine bottles and canned heat containers.

One of the victims was identified as Mary Forks, 40, Negro. The other, also Negro, was about 38 years old but was not identified by name. Police said the women had been drinking canned heat.

The apartment had no windows, no lights but kerosene lamps and was littered with about 50 empty cans of canned heat.

Boston, in 1851, became the first city to have an electric fire alarm system.

Hopkins Library Project Given "Highest Priority"

BALTIMORE (AP) — Construction of a new $4.5 million library on the campus of Johns Hopkins University has been given "highest priority," the school's Board of Trustees announced Tuesday.

The board allocated $1 million of foundation funds for the building, designed to meet the needs of the university until beyond the year 2000.

Budgets Due In County By February 10

The heads of all departments have been notified by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners to submit their budget estimates by February 10.

Last year the county board asked for the budget estimates early so that they could be analyzed carefully and with enough time so that any changes could be decided upon prior to the setting of the levy in April.

Commissioner John T. Mason, who has been handling the financial program for the board, said the county is "in good shape financially." He cited the tax collections of the past year of $3,533,682 as excellent. Additional money is being realized from the investment of tax monies pending their needs for operating costs of the county government.

Mason said that proposed school construction costs will be carefully considered and that the outlook generally is good.

Much work has been done in renovating the Court House, including exterior pointing and cleaning of the structure. Several rooms in the basement will be remodeled to provide office space for county agencies and commissions.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said the Roads Department, which is under his jurisdiction, has programmed several federal aid road projects and it is hoped there will be enough money available to buy much needed equipment. A certain amount of equipment will have to be replaced and some additional road construction equipment purchased.

Last year the county board provided for wage increases for county employes and also instituted the county library program. Despite the added costs, the county was able to cut the tax rate two cents per $100.

Although no one hinted at the possible surplus in the current budget, it is believed that there will be a sizeable amount available to be used in determining the new tax rate and budget.

Bulldog mascots have served with distinction in the United States Marines. One Leatherneck dog was awarded five campaign ribbons and the Bronze Star for World War II service in the Pacific. Another mascot rose to sergeant after his Quantico, Va., baseball team won the all-Navy championship.

Five Eagle Scouts Given Approval At Honor Court

Five new Eagle Scouts were approved along with two Silver Awards for Explorer Scouts at an Eagle Board of Review conducted by Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, Monday in the Scout house on North Mechanic Street.

John L. Towler, this city, council advancement committee chairman, said two of the young men are from Petersburg, two from Bowling Green, one from LaVale and two from Frostburg.

Approved for Eagle Scout, Scouting's highest award, were Barth Sites and Jerry Cowherd, of Troop 63, sponsored by the Petersburg Kiwanis Club.

Delton Johnson Jr. and Lester Boden Jr., both from Troop 80, sponsored by the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company; William Pritts Jr., Post 10, LaVale.

Passing requirements for the Silver Award, the highest honor for an Explorer Scout, were Wayne Lewis and Ronald Ward, of Air Squadron 42, sponsored by First Methodist Church, Frostburg.

Lewis previously earned his Eagle Scout badge before entering the Explorer program.

Each of the young men will receive their badges in ceremonies conducted in their respective troops and posts.

The board of review was comprised of Towler, John C. Means, Cumberland, and James F. Jones, Frostburg, of the council advancement committee, and Willis V. Smith, council executive.

$10,000 Set Aside For Flood Fund

Included in the budget which President Eisenhower submitted to Congress Monday is a $10,000 item for the Cumberland-Ridgeley Flood Protection project.

The request was made by the U. S. Army Engineers for operation and maintenance, according to Rep. Harley O. Staggers of the Second West Virginia District.

City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, who is superintendent of the local flood control maintenance crew, said the amount is an annual estimated cost established by the Army Engineers for local emergency. Included would be a $2,000 figure which has been contracted by the Engineers with the city the past couple years for minor maintenance problems such as weed clearance.

In the past couple years, accumulations of rock and gravel in the flood control channel have been removed by Cumberland Cement and Supply Company without cost to the city and for the materials collected.

As an example of what the anticipated cost fund is for, should this service not be repeated, then the Engineers would be responsible and would pay for the removal of the stone and gravel.

When the local project was turned over to the city, it became responsible for maintenance. This cost, which includes a special crew, exceeds $30,000 annually.

Area Residents Win Prizes

Western Maryland residents scored a sweep of all first prizes in the fifty-second annual sweepstakes of the Maryland State Beekeepers Association at College Park last week.

Fern Wilson, a hobbyist, took six first places in white extracted, light amber extracted, light and dark combs, granulated honey and beeswax.

Paul McFarland won first place awards in light extracted and chunk, and John H. Lindner and John V. Lindner won top honors in amber and dark extracted honey.

A special award for the best entry in the senior class went to McFarland for his chunk entry.

Blinker Light Plan Supported

The South Cumberland Business and Civic Association, Inc., has expressed appreciation to Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore Fleming for his plan to place a blinker light at the Oldtown Road-Virginia Avenue intersection.

Lawrence I. Marks, president, said "We are in full accord with this change, feeling it will lessen the hazard of this dangerous intersection."

Fleming also received a letter from Queen City Dairy by Jack Fossett, sales manager, thanking him for the appearance of Officer Charles Cubbage at the dairy's annual kiddy show. The letter praised Cubbage's work in connection with youth safety programs and the local firm pledged its cooperation in the child safety program of the city.

What's in it for a Volkswagen dealer?
(and why we're looking for a few more)

The Volkswagen is an unusually good car.
It's also a reasonably priced car. (That's why it's always sold at the full list price; never at a discount.)
Volkswagen dealers continually find the demand for VWs always greater than the supply.
In fact, the VW is the only car in the world that people are willing to wait months to get. And as a result, VW dealers sell more cars per dealer than any other dealer selling any other make.
In 1960, Volkswagen dealers across the country sold around 185,000 VWs (including station wagons and trucks). That's approximately 35,000 (or 23%) more than in 1959.
The VW dealer has more to sell than passenger cars alone. He sells a complete line of automobiles: sedan, sun roof, convertible, Karmann Ghia coupe and convertible, station wagons and trucks.
(You might be interested to know that for the past 2 years Volkswagen trucks have been the 4th best-selling trucks in the country in the 6,000 lb. gross vehicle weight category, which takes in 75% of the trucks sold in the United States.)
The Volkswagen dealer also sells service. And he can run a profitable service operation (without charging exorbitant prices) because the Volkswagen remains basically the same from year to year. Almost every new VW part will fit any year VW, way back to the earliest.
So the money a VW dealer invests in parts works 4 or 5 times as hard as a parts investment for cars that keep changing every year. And VW mechanics soon get to be experts because they don't have to relearn their jobs every year.
People know when they're getting a fair shake. More than 70% of the 500,000 Americans who own Volkswagens bring their cars back to their Volkswagen dealers for routine maintenance.
And many of them have been willing to wait all over again for their second and third Volkswagens.
This priceless word-of-mouth advertising by satisfied VW owners has created a reputation for honesty, integrity and dedication that is outstanding in the automobile business (or in any other).
Why are we telling you all this?
Because the Volkswagen factory is expanding and will soon be producing more cars. In the months ahead, we will be opening a few new Volkswagen dealerships in new areas, where Volkswagens are not being sold now.
Since we won't sell VWs unless Authorized VW Dealer Service is available, we are looking for people to establish these new dealerships in keeping with Volkswagen's high standards of service.
If you think you might be interested in an Authorized VW Dealership in Cumberland, write to: L. E. Harlow, G.S.M., Capitol Car Distributors Ltd., 5011 Lawrence Pl., Bladensburg, Md.

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — It's a daring move, but Jack Warner has decided to film "Formosa" on the island of Formosa, one of the most potentially dangerous locales on the globe. Trouble from Red China could explode there at any minute—but it must not be imminent because Warner obtained permission from both Nationalist China and the government of the United States to make the picture in this trouble spot.

Anyway, I say that everyone connected with the movie is brave and optimistic and that goes for Robert Taylor, the star; Marion Hargrove and Allen Scott, the scripters, and producer Robert Fellows—all of whom will make the jaunt to Formosa.

Talk about being a business man these days, I had three numbers to call Rock Hudson — each of them at a business address. I wanted to ask him about "Somersault", which his Seven Pictures Corporation has just bought. It's an original story by Eleanor and Frank Perry, especially written for Rock, which he'll produce and star in, when he brings the Perry tale to the screen this summer. Henry Willson is associate producer.

Rock describes the story as a dramatic one with a light touch, about a Broadway director. You can be sure he'll get one of the top femme stars to play opposite him. There'll be no difficulty about that at all.

Don't pay any attention to all those rumors that Jennifer Jones is not going to be in "Tender is the Night." She'll start work in February and right now Jason Robards, Jr., who announced his engagement to Lauren Bacall last Friday, is very much in the picture.

It's ninety-nine and a half per cent settled that he'll co-star with Jennifer in this F. Scott Fitzgerald story for 20th. Jason has a big alimony bill to pay, and the money right now is very welcome.

Not only was I interested to hear that TV actress Ruta Lee gets the femme lead in the Adolf Eichmann story "Operation Eichmann", — but the role has been changed from his wife to his girlfriend! After all, it was the wife who was found with Hitler's butcher in Buenos Aires, not a girlfriend, so I asked "how come?" I was told his wife is still living and presumably might stir up some trouble.

I should think she might stir up more trouble about her husband being found with a girlfriend. However, that's the problem of producers Sam Bishcoff and Dave Diamond, and Allied Artists.

I was so pleased to receive one of the first copies of "Skyline", the book Gene Fowler was writing when he was tapped on the shoulder and called away. A note from his son Will says, "I am still working on my own book about Pop. It will be on the public's platter in about a year. God bless "That Young Man From Denver" (my book title), and the fine girl who loved Pop so well."

That "fine girl" is Will's mother and Gene's widow, Agnes Fowler.

What a wonderful and deserving compliment that Gene dedicated "Skyline" to Harry Brand, his friend of many years, and Hollywood's best loved public relations man.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Which Home Permanent Looks Homemade?

If you are unhappy with the results of your home permanent, don't despair over your hair until you have retraced your own steps during the permanenting process. Practically every home permanent should be reasonably successful IF you have followed the manufacturers' directions. Instead of finding fault, yours may be a case of correcting faults—you own.

Home permanent manufacturers deliver explicit warnings against permanenting hair that is very dry, split or damaged, as it might be after overbleaching. The directions always recommend cutting off any remains of an old permanent before giving a new wave . . . and they ask anyone with sore or sensitive hands to wear protective gloves, or to postpone the wave before handling the chemicals.

It would seem hardly necessary to caution women with irritated scalps to wait before waving . . . but manufacturers mention it anyway. If they can't protect foolhardy customers from difficulties and dangers, such warnings at least protect the makers.

Before beginning a home permanent, read those directions and examine the illustrations on technique. Don't think you can trust your memory, just because you've given dozens of waves before, with the same brand. Directions are changed periodically, as manufacturers try to perfect their formulas for success.

Their experimental research and tests among consumers are never-ending. It's to their advantage as well as yours to keep the whole process as simple as it can be . . . holding errors and accidents to the bare minimum.

Now, if the "operator" is careless or inept, you can't blame the manufacturer. This is YOUR liability. And it's not quite fair to chide you too harshly, either, for attempting to perform an almost-impossible task. The acrobatics involved in cutting, thinning, parting, sectioning and rolling the hair properly are absolutely beyond most women . . . except, perhaps, for that Hindu goddess with the many arms and eyes.

So, invite an experienced friend to help you with your permanent. By pooling your patience together, the test-curling and timing and the tedium of repeated rinsing will be easier to take. You won't be tempted to cut corners and save time by skipping important steps or by bunching too much hair in the curlers.

Am I too late with this advice to rescue your kinky crown? Then, save the advice for next time . . . and save face now by calming that frizziness until you can cut it off, which may take several weeks for short hair. A professional beautician may be able to help you bear the interval of waiting with applications of neutralizer or a hot cap and colestro. Give your hair long hot oil soakings at home, too. Out in public, wear cover-up hats, turbans or veilings.

By the way, aren't you glad that the tall, brimless stovepipes are still stylish? Treat yourself to an all-flower or straw beehive for Spring, pulled all the way down to the ears. With just a frolicking fringe peeking out, no one will ever know your hair is playing hide and seek.

Sheriff's Pay Plan Studied

Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein discussed the proposed legislation calling for his salary to be increased from $4,800 to $5,400 at today's meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Haberlein said that published reports that he receives $1,000 expense money conveys an erroneous picture. None of the money is for his own expenses but is used to transport prisoners to state penal institutions and also to take inmates to mental institutions on occasion.

Commissioner John T. Mason asked Haberlein if any other county provides living quarters for their sheriffs. Haberlein said that some counties do provide these quarters.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said that during a recent meeting of the State Association of County Commissioners it was brought out that most counties pay their sheriffs more than Haberlein.

The error concerning the $1,000 expense money came from the manner in which it is listed in the budget for the sheriff's office.

California's San Bernardino County is so large that it could hold all of New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Delaware.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We bought a $35,000 home last June. In October some animal-lovers moved into the place next door. They bought it for $40,000 and they've just about turned this neighborhood into a barnyard.

These people have two dogs, three cats, bee hives, rabbits (eight last week probably 12 by now) a herd of chinchilla, a rooster and three pigs. We can take the dogs and cats and even the bees. The chinchillas are in a heated garage so they don't bother us, but that rooster and those pigs really do cheapen the neighborhood.

The pigs were cute when they were new-born but now they are just plain pigs. Usually they are penned up but they get out once in a while and wander around our property.

The rooster is the biggest nuisance of all. He crows at dawn and wakes up our entire household. We like the people and don't want to make trouble for them but it seems to me we should not have to put up with this just because we are good-natured. What do you suggest?—PEACE LOVERS

DEAR PEACE LOVERS: It's nice that your neighbors love animals but they should have a little love for their fellow man as well. Contact your local zoning commission. It may be that your neighbors are breaking the law. If they are within their legal rights you are justified in complaining about the trespassing pigs and the rooster who is disturbing the peace.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My girl is never ready on time when I pick her up for a date. Sometimes I have waited as long as 40 minutes for her. She's 19 and old enough to organize her life a little better.

It's very embarrassing when I go to pick her up because her mother and father don't speak English very well and they just sit there and look at me. I try to make simple conversation but they just hunch up their shoulders to let me know they don't understand. My girl's younger sister is a real pest and she makes me uncomfortable by asking personal questions.

Please don't advise me to break up with her because she's very lovely and this is her only bad fault. Just melp me find a solution.—SHINY TROUSERS

DEAR SHINY TROUSERS: Tell your girl that from now on you will give her 10 minutes to appear on the scene. If she isn't ready, send word with the pest that you'll be back in half an hour. Then leave and return in 30 minutes.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I've cried so much over this problem the tears would sink a battleship. Please help me. I went with this bachelor for five years. We talked of marriage and I was positive he was serious about me. My folks even treated him like a member of the family. Last week he told me he wasn't good enough for me and I'd better find another fellow who would be a good husband — the kind I deserve.

I've told him that I'm perfectly willing to take him with all his faults because I'm not perfect either. He says "No — you deserve better." Please, Ann, tell me what to do.—CLARA

DEAR CLARA: A bachelor who would take five years of a girl's time and then tell her he isn't good enough for her is probably right. He isn't. Forget him and learn from this bitter experience.

To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Tax Payment Plan Backed By Director

A plan to solve the problem of having to pay more federal income tax than was deducted was promoted here yesterday by Irving Machiz, district director of Internal Revenue Service for the Baltimore District.

In many cases when the time of the year rolls around for the wage earner to pay his federal income tax, he finds that the amount of tax withheld from wages is lower than the amount of tax due at the end of the year.

Machiz said the worker sometimes is unable to pay the additional amount due when he files his income tax return and thus becomes delinquent. This necessitates a wage levy for collection purposes in quite a few cases.

To cure this problem, Machiz suggests that the wage earner drop one or more of his exemptions.

For each exemption taken off the wage, a return of approximately $120 a year is realized.

If that does not cure the problem, Machiz said, workers may enter into an agreement with their paymasters to increase their tax withholding further by amending their Form W-4.

The director urged employers to encourage their employes to take advantage of these two devices so as to prevent their becoming delinquent and thereby eliminate wage levies.

He emphasized that dropping exemptions for tax withholding purposes does not mean that taxpayers lose these exemptions. It is merely a device for increasing the amount of tax withheld. The exemptions can be claimed for tax computation purposes when taxpayers fill out their returns.

Men Are Held For Car Theft

Appearing before Commissioner Avirett were Walter Neverkewitz Jr., Brooklyn, and Franklin C. Riley Jr., East Berlin, Pa.

Following the hearing when charges were placed against them for taking the car from New York, the two men were returned to the Allegany County Jail.

A U. S. marshall will pick them up for transportation back to New York for trial.

The pair was apprehended on Route 40 at a service station west of Grantsville by Tfc. Glen Folk on Saturday and taken to the County Jail.

Church Assigns Missionaries Here

Elder Dale Gold and Elder Cont Jones, missionaries of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), have been transferred to the Cumberland area.

Both elders were attending universities when they were called by their church to spend two years as missionaries.

Elder Gold, of Sandy, Utah, was studying engineering at the University of Utah, and Elder Jones, of Montpelier, Idaho, was also an engineering student at Brigham Young University.

Both men are a part of a group of 8,000 young people who devote two years of their time at their own expense telling others about the Mormon Church.

Dogged persistance in interference bidding by defenders is many times apt to prove highly enlightening to declarer when he is confronted with involved problems of dummy management. Observe how South in today's hand gained the necessary clews from East's "operations."

South's two spade bid and North's raise were fairly standard and East participated with a call of four clubs. East had no offensive aspirations, but hoped to lay the foundation for a sacrifice if West could support that suit. However, his five heart bid seems somewhat futile and tends to provide declarer with a "road map."

West's lead of the three of clubs was an abvious singleton and it appeared that declarer must lose a club and heart and go down to a one trick set. However, he saw a ray of hope if East had exactly a five card heart suit.

South played one round of trumps and temporarily abandoned the suit when East showed out. He led the ace and king of hearts and was relieved when West followed to the second round. He then cashed the ace of diamonds and ruffed a diamond. He now played the king of spades, and a low spade to the queen. On dummy's remaining diamond declarer let go a heart from his own hand and West, who is now known to have nothing but diamonds, was in the lead. On the forced return declarer ruffed in dummy as he discarded the losing club from his own hand.

Early Payment Of Liens Cited By Mrs. Roeder

Payments on liens filed for street and sewer improvements are quite gratifying, according to Mrs. Lucile Roeder, finance commissioner.

She said at least 75 per cent of the citizens are paying their liens during the interest-free period and that another 20 per cent are making payments for the improvements.

Citizens have 60 days after the date of billing to pay liens at par. Interest at the rate of ½ per cent a month is charged after the 60-day period expires.

During December, $3,119 was collected on paving liens and $110 on sewer liens.

Some of the lien accounts are in splendid shape. For instance, all but $2,110 of the $69,200 of liens for Frederick Street improvements has been paid.

All citizens of the city have a stake in the prompt payment of liens, since receipts are placed in the revolving fund which is used to finance future projects.

School teachers and employes of state agencies are pushing for more pay, too.

The Senate also received the long-talked-of quest by Mayor J. Harold Grady of Baltimore City for authority to impose a one per cent tax on earnings.

Residents of the city would be taxed no matter where they earned the money and non-residents if they received compensation in the city.

The net profits of business concerns also would be taxed.

Would Limit Definition

He sought to limit the definition of a labor dispute in the law on jobless benefits to a strike or other refusal by an employe to work.

At present, jobless payments are denied anyone whose "unemployment is due to a stoppage of work which exists because of a labor dispute."

What exactly constitutes a labor dispute has been in dispute between organized labor and management. In several court cases, management has won its argument for seeking a denial of jobless payments to workers laid off.

Other proposed legislation received Tuesday would require dealers to give a warranty on new cars and make doctors immune from damage suits for treatment at an accident.

Del. Lester B. Reed, R-Allegany, offered the bill in which dealers would guarantee new motor vehicles for 90 days or 4,000 miles.

Sen. Frank E. Shipley, D-Howard, sought to protect doctors from being sued for negligence or malpractice by persons they treated in an emergency. Shipley is a doctor.

Area Firm Bids Low On Rt. 40 Climbing Lanes

A Hagerstown firm was the apparent low bidder yesterday for the construction of climbing lanes on U. S. Route 40 from near Frederick toward Hagerstown.

Bester Long, Inc., Hagerstown, submitted the apparent low bid of $193,443.75 for constructing the additional lane on hills from three miles west of Frederick a distance of 6.7 miles toward Hagerstown.

Four other firms submitted bids which were opened by the State Roads Commission in Baltimore yesterday. They are:

Flintkote Company, New York City, $211,658.75; C. William Hetzer, Inc., Hagerstown, $233,486; Frederick Asphalt Products Company, Frederick $234,690 and E. D. Plummer Sons, Chambersburg, Pa., $236,400.

It was the first Western Maryland highway project advertised by the SRC in 1961.

The climbing lanes are being built so slow-moving traffic can move to the right and permit faster-moving vehicles to pass.

They also believe that their requested pay increase should be provided by the county regardless of what the state legislature does in granting state-wide teacher pay increases. These state-wide boosts will not help Allegany County in relation to the other Maryland counties, most of which are ahead of this county in salaries.

Four of the five school board members were present to vote on including the salary increases in the budget which will be prepared by Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster. They include J. Goodloe Jackson, president; T. Donald Shires, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Mrs. Richard Winer. Kenneth R. Malcolm, the fifth board member, expressed sympathy for the teachers' appeal but had to leave the meeting before the vote was taken.

Other members of the legislative committee at yesterday's meeting besides Mr. Kelly and Dr. Haines were Miss Sara E. Wright, Miss Dorothy Willison, Robert T. Thomas, Roy E. Pepper, president of the association; Thomas M. Wagner and James D. Preaskorn.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID's unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for expectant mothers. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID today! INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢

A Less Gloomy Economic Outlook

Some business experts who have taken a second look at the economic picture lately find it is not nearly so gloomy as it first appeared. It is a notable fact that where the views have changed, consumer psychology and not dry statistics has been the influencing factor.

The latest study along this line is a report by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center on consumer attitudes. It found that while a part of the buying public may be uneasy about the immediate future, it is not nearly so jittery as some economists in the forecasting business.

Public uncertainty is a by-product of changeovers in national administrations. The survey estimated that buying caution generally is likely for a while. Apparently consumers are taking a wait-and-see position until the new administration settles down.

But there doesn't seem to be much doubt about public acceptance of the 1961 line of autos. Researchers found that intentions to buy new cars are as high today as at any time since late 1956. This disproves the belief held by some business experts that perhaps Americans have too much of nearly everything. There seems to be no limit to the public's desires.

These Days

Farewell To A Presidency

President Eisenhower has been, in many ways, a fortunate man. Throughout his Presidency, the people had a large measure of confidence in his moral qualities. He was, however, not given a Congress of his own party, not since the 83rd Congress. His authority within his own party was never challenged, yet rarely exerted. His only real quarrel was over Senator Joseph McCarthy whom he managed to reduce from a leading national figure to a disciplined Senator who felt himself betrayed by his party and even his friends and died of it.

The principal positive achievement of the Eisenhower Administration was that he managed to maintain the peace. But the price has been so enormous that one might almost say that his was a peace at any price. It was during his eight years that Soviet Russia achieved victory after victory in many fields and the United States took insult after insult in many areas.

Nevertheless, this did not impair Eisenhower's personal popularity; in fact, every insult hurled at him in South America where Vice President Nixon was abused, in Tokyo where Red China provoked demonstrations against the President, at the Paris Summit Conference where Eisenhower was treated with malicious shamelessness, in the United Nations where Khrushchev hurled boorish imprecations at him—all these and more won him an increasing measure of sympathy within the United States.

Outside the United States, however, American prestige suffered because many nations believed that the United States accepted the insults of Castro and the proddings of Nehru, Tito and Nasser since we had become afraid of Soviet Russia. And in international relations, the country that is afraid is regarded as already defeated. This is particularly true of the patience the Eisenhower Administration showed to Castro.

The Sherman Adams affair left Eisenhower's reputation untouched. Presidents Grant, Harding and Truman suffered popular displeasure for similar escapades, greater or lesser in degree. But Eisenhower's reputation remained untarnished.

It is true that his golf playing became a national joke but not more than Theodore Roosevelt's strenuous life or Herbert Hoover's handball court or Franklin D. Roosevelt's swimming pool. It was generally assumed that the President required exercise but no one could quite understand how he managed to get all his work done, if he did.

It was also recognized that President Eisenhower did not understand all the complexities of our government because he had been in the Army, out of the country, for so many years. It was, however, accepted that for this very reason, he knew how to delegate authority and responsibility.

During the life-time of John Foster Dulles, it was generally assumed that he managed our foreign affairs without much consultation either at the White House or the State Department. He laid down policy and acted on it and the President did not seem, in his press conferences and elsewhere, to know too much about it. After Dulles died, Eisenhower managed his own foreign policy which often brought him criticism.

Similarly, in the Treasury, his first Secretary, George Humphrey, was believed to be a great authority on money; he had long managed and financed big business and it was not expected that the President would offer him too many objections. Subsequently, this post was taken by Robert Anderson of Ventures, Ltd., a Canadian mining and oil enterprise. He also has been regarded as a man who understands money and therefore, the President, who has no proficiency in economics, did not interfere much with the Treasury.

President Eisenhower, having been accustomed all his life to staff work, in the Army, found it not too difficult to organize the White House and the Cabinet in the same manner. The fact that our structure of government was differently designed did not seem to trouble him. What actually did develop during this Administration is that much authority was delegated and this seemed to please the President who believed that this country really needed two Presidents, or two Vice Presidents. What he had in mind was a Head of State and a Prime Minister. Our Constitution has not provided for that.

President Eisenhower leaves office a popular man, secure in his position, possessing more wealth than he had when he entered the White House, but without a speck of scandal. His farm will become a center of attraction and many will visit it. Ike Eisenhower is, indeed, a fortunate man.

U.S. Catholics At Inauguration Will Be Able To Eat Meat Friday

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—There's an interesting minor precedent being made by Catholics on Jan. 20, aside from the major precedent of inaugurating a Catholic president for the first time in history.

That precedent is a special dispensation that Catholics attending the inauguration may eat meat on that day.

It being a Friday, members of the Catholic faith ordinarily would not be permitted to eat meat. However, picking up a fish luncheon or a fish dinner is going to be so difficult on the hectic Friday that sees John Fitzgerald Kennedy made the 35th President, that a special dispensation will be permitted Catholics.

The time between the oath at the Capitol at noon and the start of the inaugural parade will hardly be enough for the thousands of visitors now thronging Washington to get anything other than a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee. So if the Catholic visitors partake of a little ham or a hot dog or even a roast-beef sandwich, they'll be given special dispensation.

Oil Lobbyist And Navy

If President-elect Kennedy had switched the appointment of his secretaries of the Army and the Navy a lot of his Senate supporters would be happier. As it is, he has appointed one of the top oil lobbyists of the USA, John B. Connally, to be Secretary of the Navy, a branch of government which is the biggest oil purchaser in the world.

If he had been made Secretary of the Army, Connally, an able lawyer and the campaign manager for Lyndon Johnson, would have no problems. But in appointing Connally Secretary of the Navy, Kennedy has put Senate colleagues on the same embarrassing sopt that Harry Truman put Senate Democrats when he appointed his close friend, Ed Pauley, to a lesser post—under Secretary of the Navy. Pauley is able, honest, loyal—but an oilman. Even close Democratic friends of Mr. Truman's opposed him. Truman bowed. Pauley's name was withdrawn.

The case against Connally is even stronger, first because he will be top man in the Navy, not under secretary; second, because Connally has been much closer to the oil-gas companies than Pauley. Pauley is an independent operator. Connally was the attorney and lobbyist for a group of oil-gas companies which raised $1,500,000 in 1956 to lobby the natural gas bill through Congress.

Connally was the mainspring of that lobby, helped direct the expenditure of its funds, masterminded the battle on Capitol Hill. Almost every important gas-oil company in the nation contributed to this lobbying fund, thereby also paying for Connally's professional services.

Yet Connally, as Secretary of the Navy, not only will buy more oil than any other man in the world, but will be charged with the supervision of one of the greatest oil reserves in the world. He will have to decide whether to lease certain areas to avoid loss from adjacent wells, and if so which companies to lease to. Inevitably some will be his old lobbying associates.

Since this column has reported on the oil influences around President Eisenhower, it's only fair to report on the oil influences around incoming President Kennedy.

Tremendous Oil Domain

As Secretary of the Navy, Connally would supervise 23,700,000 acres of oil land, plus 156,113 acres of oil shale reserves. Here is a brief breakdown of this vast property now governed by the U. S. Navy:

1. Elk Hills, Calif.—46,095 acres of proven oil land of which the Navy owns 81-7 per cent, Standard Oil of California owns 18-3 per cent. This is part of the area which got involved in the famous Teapot Dome scandal during the Harding administration when Edward Doheny delivered $100,000 in a little black bag to Albert Fall, then Secretary of the Interior.

2. Buena Vista Hills, Calif. — 30,181 acres, owned one-third by the Navy and two-thirds by private companies. Since Navy holdings are checkerboarded with those of private companies, the Navy, to protect loss from offset drilling, has leased 17 plots of land to seven operators. They are: Standard (Calif.), Richfield, Union, Socony, Honolulu Oil, General American Oil of Texas, and Tidewater.

Most of these—through their executives — have been heavy political contributors to both lobbying and political campaign funds. Most of their money went to Eisenhower. However, Connally at that time was on their side of the fence. He was a big Ike booster, did his best to defeat Adlai Stevenson.

3. Teapot Dome, Natrona County, Wyo.—9,481 acres. This also figured in the famous Harding oil scandal. Four years ago, MKM Oil and Trigood Co., both of Casper, started a new development along the eastern boundary of the Navy's holdings.

So the Navy started offset operations to prevent its oil from being drained off. It let a contract to Intex Oil of Bakersfield, Calif. This is the kind of decision Connally would have to make as Secretary of the Navy—namely, whether to lease or not, and if so to which private company.

4. Arctic Slope of Alaska — 23,680,000 acres. All Navy owned, with no private drilling in the area except for Colorado Oil and Fuel which, however, has to keep two miles away from the Navy reserve.

The Navy's oil shale reserves include 41,353 acres near Rifle, Colo., 92,160 acres in Carbon and Unitah counties, Utah, and another 22,600 acres near Rifle. None of it is being developed.

Note—It will be interesting to see how certain members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which must first pass on Connally's confirmation, vote. Republican Sen. Glenn Beall of Maryland received a $3,000 oil contribution in his 1952 election. The son of GOP Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut is head of the Zapata Company, which operates valuable offshore oil lands.

Truly Conservative Leaders Make Changes

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

In his farewell message to the Congress, President Eisenhower declared that he and his administration had "carried America to unprecedented heights." Since the President is neither a fool nor a hypocrite, this summary of the present national situation is at first somewhat bewildering.

After all, unemployment has now reached a level unprecedented in the last twenty years. The dollar, whose soundness has so preoccupied the President, has reached a low on the world markets unprecedented for thirty years. According to the suppressed soundings taken by the President's own subordinates, the standing of the United States abroad has also reached a low unprecedented in recent history.

Add Laos, Cuba, The Congo, Berlin and a few other critical situations, which form an unprecedented pattern of arrogant Soviet challenges on every front to U. S. and Western Interests.

In these unhappy circumstances, what did the President mean?

The answer, or perhaps a considerable part of the answer seems to be indirectly provided by the story of the cook-out. It has taken almost a year to seep outwards, from the closed administration inner group into semi-general circulation in Washington. But it is an authenic and remarkable story, which still casts much light.

The time, then, was the tense evening after the great explosion of the Summit meeting in Paris. Long previously, a private dinner for the President had been scheduled at the American Embassy on the Avenue D'iena and now, with the Strategic Air Command alerted and Khrushchev's bellows of rage ringing in every ear, the invited high officials somewhat haggardly assembled in accordance with the unchanged schedule.

But the President, although his policy lay in ruins all around him, was very far from haggard. On entering, as though to prove his easy normality he genially suggested to the Ambassador and Mrs. Houghton that it would be nice if he cooked steaks for the whole dinner party with his own hands.

Since French chefs do not admire deep freezes, the Embassy contained no steaks to cook. But the vast machine of the Eisenhower staff went into rapid action. A PX officer was found. A PX was opened. Steaks were provided. The President cooked them. There was only a single hitch. One lady in the company found that the steaks were somewhat too strongly seasoned with political disaster, thus she displeased the President by her poor appetite for his culinary handiwork.

At first glance, there is something downright surrealist in this general picture of the President of the United States passing the tensest single evening of his eight years in office cooking steaks for his chief subordinates. But in fact, this episode was no more than an exaggeration of many other episodes of the Eisenhower years.

President Eisenhower, it is plain, is one of those men who perfer to deal with difficult problems and dangerous situations by displaying massive unconcern, and meanwhile hoping that time will remove the difficulties and denature the dangers. This hope, of course, is sometimes justified. It was justified when the Summit collapsed. The ensuing Soviet move at Berlin, which the high American officials thought entirely possible and the British positively expected, was never made after all.

In former eras — even in the formative years of Dwight D. Eisenhower — the tactic of refusing to be greatly stirred by events was also a sound conservative tactic. "Wait and see, and look as though it did not matter meanwhile," was far from a foolish watchword when the tempo of history was slower, and history's tendencies were less catastrophic.

But this watchword ceased to be safely applicable in the years between the first and second world wars. Truly conservative leaders — men who truly wished to conserve the good things of the existing order with a minimum of change — were forced to adopt a different style of action.

Confronted by forces of change too strong to be wholly resisted, the truly conservative leaders hed to become more agile. They had to make small changes in order to avoid great changes. They had to recommend small sacrifices in order to avoid great losses. It was no longer prudent, no longer conservative, to stand pat.

This is the reason, of course, why Winston Churchill will be remembered as the great conservative of the Twentieth Century, whereas Stanley Baldwin and Neville Chamberlain, the alleged conservatives who led Britain to disaster, will never again be called conservative in the honorable sense of the word. This is the reason, too, why the creed of American conservatism badly needs re-thinking at the end of the Eisenhower years and not by Senator Goldwater either.

INAUGURAL DRESS — The Inaugural Committee has sent out informal memos to governors, high political appointees, and distinguished individuals concerning proper dress for the Kennedy inauguration.

For the big event itself — the swearing-in ceremony — it will be top hat and striped-pants morning clothes for the men, short formal dress for the ladies.

The Inaugural Ball will prefer white tie and tails for the men, short or long gowns for the ladies, but black tie will also be acceptable for all but the most important males.

For the Gala, where Frank Sinatra and his Hollywood pack will try to erase the Democratic debt with entertainment, it will be black ties for the men, short theater gowns for the ladies.

For the rest of the functions, business suits and street dress will be acceptable, unless milady has an unusual hat or hairdo she wants to display.

ETERNAL ALLEN — George E. (for Eternal) Allen, is preparing to establish a position of cozy intimacy with the incoming Kennedy administration.

Through the years—and several administrations — Allen has succeeded in becoming a welcome figure to Presidents Eisenhower and Truman. That was quite a trick, as two more unlike individuals would be hard to find.

Allen played poker with Truman and bridge and golf with Eisenhower, and managed to entertain them both with the brand of witty stories they liked best. In the process he rose from a local hotel manager to a member of many boards of directors and a name to be conjured with in Washington.

Now, reports have it, with the unique sport favored by the Kennedy clan, Allen is said to be reading a book titled "Tag Football."

Wise Wife Takes Back Seat To Her Husband

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Most couples are happily married and reflect their compatibility in the stability and well adjusted personality of their offspring. This is amazing, considering that the husband and wife often come from different environments, social standing, racial groups, and educational backgrounds.

In some families the wife has the stronger character, even though the husband wears the pants. To paraphrase Confucious: Boy woos girl, wedding bells, girl plays subordinate role like dutiful wife until she finds husband not too smart. In the circumstances, the wearer of the pants may change horses in the middle of the marital stream.

But this does not always happen, according to the Seattle psychiatrist, Dr. Walter J. Garre. The strong wife may love her husband so much she prefers to take a back seat to keep him happy and the family together.

When she finds her mate deficient in ego strength (in the language of the psychiatrist), she plays a subordinate role deliberately to elevate the man's sense of his own value. This boosts his morale and she, too, derives satisfaction from doing something for the one she loves.

But this effort represents a sacrifice on her part even though it increases their self-esteem. The marriage may collapse if the burden becomes too great. On the contrary, the marriage will be successful when the partners derive mutual satisfaction by filling in for each other's deficiencies and supplying each other with the background for the other's importance.

This may be the basis for the old saying that opposites attract. But such a situation does not lead to the ideal marriage because at least one partner is emotionally insecure. The stability of the home is affected, with consequent damage to the personality of the children.

CURLING FINGER

G. H. W. writes: My mother is 87 years old and troubled with the middle finger of the left hand curling into the palm. For a while she was able to straighten it out with massage, but now this doesn't work. What can this be?

REPLY

It may be a trigger finger, in which case the tendon is involved, or Dupuytren's contracture, in which scar tissue develops in the palm of the hand. Diagnosis of conditions of this nature is easily made by examining the hand. Why not consult your mother's physician?

EMOTIONAL ASTHMA

I. C. writes: Is psychosomatic asthma due to a feeling of insecurity?

REPLY

Yes, but insecurity is only one of many emotional origins of nervous conditions. Anxiety, fear, frustration, worry, and envy are other possibilities.

SORE JOINTS

F. F. B. writes: What is arthralgia?

REPLY

Pain in and around a joint.

FEARS VIRILITY

M. C. writes: Do the new birth control pills masculinize women, causing a deep voice and hair on the face?

REPLY

Not when taken properly.

OMIT IRRITANTS

E. W. writes: Does the diet have any influence on an irritable bladder?

REPLY

Not a normal diet. On the other hand, too much alcohol or spices as well as berries, tomatoes, and carrots may increase irritation.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Miss Chou Chou Horntoot reports that she met a famous writer on international affairs charging down Madison Avenue with a bulky package under his arm. Asked to account for his haste, he explained, "I've just finished the last chapter of my new world history, and I want to get it to my publisher before some new damn thing happens."

Spotted on a gravestone in Cape Town, South Africa: "In memory of our father: gone to join his appendix, his tonsils, his kidney, his eardrum, and a leg erroneously amputated by an interne who craved the experience."

Poem composed by a 9-year-old student at a Friends' School:

"The wind may be invisible

During its 20 to 30 years of life, a grizzly bear may eat anything from ants to beached whales. It relishes meat, fresh or carrion, but devours considerably more vegetation. To break the winter fast, a grizzly begins on new grass, grazing as contentedly as a cow.

The Caribbean island of Jamaica owes its breadfruit crops to Captain Bligh of HMS Bounty fame. The Pacific plant was imported as an inexpensive starch food for slaves.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

The bellmen recognized him in the lobby of the Beverly Hilton. They nodded and smiled. He removed the cigar from his mouth and smiled. No words were spoken. The man wanted to remain at the big Hollywood hotel in a status called incognito. He looked like Jack Paar. He smiled like Jack Paar. He was as nervous as Jack Paar. He was Jack Paar.

So he signed the register: Mr. Primrose Magoo, and then swung the register around so that the assistant manager could look at it. The man looked at Paar and at the name. "Yes, sir," he said. He hit a bell. "Boy, please take Mr. Primrose Magoo to his suite." Paar smiled apologetically.

"It's just that I don't want the phone ringing all the time," he said. The assistant manager smiled understandingly. Paar smiled. "You know," he said, "the phones, the autographs—all I want is peace and quiet." The assistant manager watched him walk to the elevator behind the the boy and the luggage.

Jack Paar looked over the rooms. They were beautiful. Good view of Twentieth Century Fox's oil well. Nice furniture. Cheerful decor. The boy raised the blinds, turned on the air conditioning, switched the bathroom light on, put the baggage on the racks, and held out his hand. Paar tipped him.

Then he picked up the phone. "In case anyone calls me," he said. "I'm Primrose Magoo." There was a silence. "You're who, Mr. Magoo?"

"Magoo. Magoo. I'm not Jack Paar to anybody."

"Of course, Mr. Magoo," the operator said sweetly. "The listing just came in. It says Primrose Magoo. Why would anyone who wants you ask for Mr. Paar?"

"Never mind," he said. "Just give me long distance." He got the operator and called the National Broadcasting Company in New York. "Mitzi," he said to his assistant. "I'm at the Beverly Hilton in Los Angeles. Yes. It's me. In case you want me, just ask for Mr. Primrose Magoo. What? Primrose, dammit. Like the flower. Magoo. You don't have to know how to spell it, dear. Just ask for it and I'll pick up the phone. Anything new? . . ."

Mr. Paar, who is as sensitive as Miss America with a chin pimple, sat. No phone calls. No autograph hounds. No knocking on the door. Nothing. "This," he said to himself, "is great. Simply great." He phoned a few members of the cast in other rooms. "In case you want me, just call Primrose Magoo. What? I wish you were that funny on the program, pal."

He sat. Nothing. He fidgeted a little. Nothing. He tried a newspaper. Nothing. He went into the bathroom and tried the faucets. The hot water ran hot, the cold ran cold. He examined the closets. On the hat shelf was a Bible autographed by Cecil B. DeMille. He looked out the window and rocked on his heels. Nothing. The oil well was still there.

Paar decided to call Mrs. Paar back home. A good idea. He picked up the phone and panicked. What was the home phone number? How ridiculous not to remember. It was Deerfield something or other. How many numbers could little old Bronxville have? He put the phone back on the cradle. The number would not come.

It was unlisted. Oh well. He picked up the phone again. "Honey," he said. "Get me information in Bronxville, New York. Yes. Bronxville." He waited and spun the cigar slowly in his mouth. "Hello, Bronxville information? Good. This is Jack Paar. I'm out in California and I can't remember my home phone number. Can you —

"Oh, come on. I know it's unlisted. It's my number. Excuse me? You listen to the program? Well, that makes everything [illegible] the [illegible]? I'm Jack Paar. Sure. I just [illegible] You can't. Now look here, Miss. It happens to be my phone and I pay the bills and I want that number. Why don't you ring Mrs. Paar and ask her if she wants to speak to her lawful husband? You can't?

"This is too much. Tell you what you do, Miss. Now don't hang up. I know that rules are rules. I can even tell you what the number used to be before I changed it. Once it was Deerfield 7-7187; once it was Deerfield 7-9299. Excuse me? No dear. That's what I want you to do. If I remembered, would I be on my knees begging?

"All right. Okay. If you want to make sure that this is Jack Paar speaking, call me back right away at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in Beverly Hills, California. Just call right back. Call collect. I'll pay for it. Then you'll be sure.

"What dear? Oh no. Just ask for Primrose Magoo." . . .

Congressman Should Stay Hungry Man

Even Districts Good For People

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Rep. Ken Hechler, D-WVa, believes it's a good idea to have congressional districts balanced as evenly as possible between Democrats and Republicans.

Hechler's reasoning is that "a hungry congressman is a better congressman" and that an incumbent representative will work harder when faced with strong opposition. And Hechler said he doesn't want a bed of roses in his own bailiwick.

"I hope that in any redistricting nobody tries to make the 4th District a safe district," said Hechler, who just began his second term as the 4th's representative in Washington.

Hechler's remarks were contained in a statement issued after a meeting with other officials to discuss redistricting. Because of West Virginia's population decline over the last decade, the State will lose one of its six congressional seats in 1962. It will be up to the legislature to draw the new district lines.

West Virginia Legislature Awaits Address

New Governor To Speak Today

By BILL BARRETT
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The West Virginia Legislature went through only a few routine motions Tuesday, its members obviously looking ahead to a noonday address Wednesday in which Gov. W. W. Barron will outline his legislative program.

The House and Senate will meet in joint assembly to hear the address, Barron's first since his inauguration Monday.

A Senate - passed bill extending the sales tax increase voted last Friday from July 1 through Aug. 31 was handled in routine fashion Tuesday in contrast to last week's hurried-up action on the companion bill that is already in effect.

Majority Leader W. T. Brotherton, D-Kanawha, moved to dispense with committee reference and moved the measure along on the calendar. It will come up for a final vote Thursday with little doubt about passage.

Pay Hike Questioned

There was a minor squabble over a House resolution originating in the Rules Committee calling for appointment of 149 attaches during the current session. Del. Nell Walker, D-Fayette, questioned it.

Del. J. E. Watson, D-Marion, speaking for the Rule Committee and Speaker Julius Singleton, said the number was one more than the 1959 session and that only in four instances had increases in pay been allowed. These were $5 a day hikes for clerks and assistant clerks of the powerful judiciary and finance committees.

"The increases were authorized in order that we could obtain qualified personnel for these positions," he said. They are to be paid $25 and $22.50 a day respectively.

Watson further said that with Singleton's concurrence the committee had issued an ultimatium to attaches that if they failed to show up for work, without valid reason, they would be dismissed immediately.

"We believe this will have a bearing on the effectiveness of the session and an economy within the legislature," he said.

Mrs. Walker had questioned the increases in view of the adverse economic condition of the state and suggested "economies are needed within the state government and the best place to start is right here in the legislature."

However, she accepted Watson's explanation and the resolution was adopted unanimously.

Handlan Vote Delayed

The House also adopted, and sent to the Senate for concurrence, a resolution calling for distribution of Salt Sulphur Mineral water from Webster Springs on the 1963 State Centennial exhibition train.

Meanwhile, the Senate held over for another day final action on a motion by Sen. Joseph Handlan, R-Wood, to amend Senate rules by providing for open session when executive appointments are considered.

The senators also sent to the finance committee for further study a resolution by Sen. William Tompos, D-Hancock, calling for an interim committee study of public utility regulations. Sent to the roads committee was a House - approved resolution calling for placing of a "Land of Opportunity" slogan on motor vehicle license plates.

Both chambers adjourned to 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, 30-minutes in advance of the time Gov. Barron is scheduled to address the joint assembly.

Gov. Barron Fills Two W. Va. Jobs

Hanley, Bassett Get Appointments

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron named two more department heads for his new administration Tuesday—Cletus B. Hanley as workmen's compensation director and Clement R. Bassett as employment security director.

Hanley, a Charleston attorney in private practice since 1957, held the same post during the last year of the Marland administration in 1956. He succeds C. R. Nutter in the $8,000 a year post.

Bassett, an attorney from Welch, served as an assistant attorney general under Barron during the past four years. He replaces Isaac McNeel at a salary of $9,000 annually.

A 37-year-old Charleston native, Hanley received his law degree at the University of Louisville in 1951 and took a job as right-of-way attorney with the State Road Commission.

The following year he became an assistant attorney general, a post he held until Gov. William C. Marland named him compensation commissioner in December, 1955.

The department he will head administers the law which provides benefits for injured workmen and survivors of persons killed in industrial accidents.

Bassett, a West Virginia University law graduate, worked for the Federal Trade Commission and as a trial examiner for the Public Service Commission before joining the attorney general's staff four years ago. He is 39 years old.

Beall at Mt. Savage.
Valley at Bruce.

By TED TROXELL

A deliriously happy bunch of Bruce High School fans put the durability of the new Allegany gymnasium to the test last night after their Bulldogs nipped the spacious arena's permanent residents, the Allegany Campers, in a 70-69 battle that was a thriller all the way.

Not since the two teams began their series back in 1929 had Bruce won on Allegany's floor, so it was only natural for the large crowd of Tri-Townspeople to go wild when the buzzer sounded to end the dramatic struggle.

The outcome of that game, along with Fort Hill's 60-42 triumph over Mt. Savage, throws the WMI League race into a triple tie for first place, with each of the top three clubs sporting 3-1 records. In last night's other league game at Frostburg, Beall racked winless Valley, 70-54.

Bill Wiltison, sharpshooting guard around whom the fortunes of Coach Leonard Ritchie's Bulldogs revolve, turned in what was undoubtedly his finest performance during his four seasons as a regular at the Westernport school.

Wiltison Gets 16 Goals

Wiltison hit on a 25-foot jump shot that pulled Bruce into a 9-9 tie after the Bulldogs had trailed, 9-2, and from then on he was ready. Firing away from all angles with deadly accuracy, the 5'10" senior pumped in 16 field goals, and directed the Bulldogs' offense with all the poise needed to withstand the pressure of a tight ball game.

Several times during the third period Bruce upped its lead to nine points, but the Campers came back strong in the final quarter, the last four minutes of which had most of the fans on their feet. Allegany never caught up in those hectic closing moments, coming to within one point twice —at 68-67 and then again at 70-69.

With 2:08 remaining, Gary Mulligan scored on a fall-away jump shot on which he was fouled. The free throw, which would have tied it up, missed and was rebounded by Bruce. There was one minute left when Wiltison, all alone under the basket on an out-of-bounds play in the Bulldogs' backcourt, got the ball and tossed in what proved to be the clincher.

Campers Lose Ball

A set shot by Wayne Shook just seconds later made it 70-69. With Bruce in possession, Ken McDowell was fouled with 40 seconds to go. Alco's Bob Gaffney rebounded McDowell's misfire and the Campers called time out. When play resumed, Shook got off a set shot that failed to connect. A scramble under the basket resulted in a jump ball and when the Campers' Merv Pope caught his own tip, the Bulldogs took over and held the ball for the final 12 pulse-pounding seconds.

Wiltison, whose jump shot with 10 seconds gone in the third quarter gave Bruce the lead for the first and last time (the score was tied thrice), fired away 29 times in all. His 16 field goals and three free throws gave him 35 points for the night, one that neither he nor Bulldog followers will forget for a long time. He was amazingly consistent, scoring eight points in every period but the second, in which he tallied 11.

Shook was Allegany's leading scorer with 21, followed by Mulligan, Gaffney and Pope, with 15, 14 and 11, respectively. McDowell, with 12 tallies, was Bruce's only other cager in double figures. The Bulldogs hit on an even 45 per cent of their shots, 27 for 60, while Allegany canned 26 of 68 for a .382 percentage mark.

While Bruce was snapping Allegany's remarkable home court winning streak last night, another skein which spans eight years was kept alive at Fort Hill, where the Sentinels have never lost to Mt. Savage since the latter school was opened.

Four In Double Figures

The Sentinels, with four players in double figures, out-field goaled the Indians, 22-12. Jim Rice, Glen Shipway and George Twigg each collected a dozen points, while Bill Colbert chipped in with 10. Mt. Savage freshmen Bob Robertson and Ralph Wilson accounted for 36 of the 42 points scored by the visitors. Roberston converted 14 of 18 shots from the free throw line.

Beall's one-two scoring combination of Jim Evans and Marshall Hamilton paced the Mountaineers to their easy win over the hapless Black Knights.

Evans scored 23 points and Hamilton was right behind with 19. Taking game scoring honors, however, was the Knights' Wayne Johnson, who tossed in 10 field goals and added seven fouls to wind up with 27.

Dukes Lose, 64-53

CINCINNATI (UPI) —Cincinnati jumped to an early 16-point lead over scrappy Duquesne Tuesday night and made it stand up for a 64-53 victory, despite a strong second half comeback by the Dukes.

The game was marred by several near fights between the players touched off when Duquesne's Mike Rice caught an elbow in the mouth while going up for a rebound and had to leave the game. Cincinnati's Bob Wiesenhahn was ejected from the contest during a mele that followed.

First entry in the 500-mile automobile race next May 30, that of Don Branson, will include a "roadster" car with the cockpit to the right of center and the engine mounted in a horizontal position on the left side of the chassis.

Daley Rejects A's Contract

Bud Says Salary Is Insufficient

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Bud Daley, 28-year-old lefthanded pitching ace of the Kanas City Athletics, has fired his 1961 contract back to new General Manager Frank Lane unsigned.

"I told Lane that the salary offered was insufficient," Daley said. "I was offered a slight raise, but it was so slight that it wasn't worth the paper it was written on. We're a long way off and Lane will have to come up with a substantial raise before I sign."

Daley, in two years as a mainstay on the Kansas City pitching staff, has won 32 games. He had a 16-13 record in 1959 and was 16-16 last year.

Supreme Court Steers Clear Of Racing Dispute

Hearing On Dates Set For Jan. 20

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—The State Supreme Court refused Tuesday to interfere with a lower-court hearing set for Jan. 20 in a dispute over dates for horse racing at two Charles Town tracks.

One of the tracks is Shenandoah Downs. The other is known as the Charles Town track.

Last month the State Racing Commission rejected applications by both tracks for 1961 racing dates because they conflicted. Later the commission suggested dates which did not conflict — April 8-May 20 and July 20-Sept. 16 for Shenandoah Downs and May 22-July 19 for Charles Town.

Then the Charles Town track applied in Jefferson County Circuit Court for an order to require the commission to meet and fix those dates. Circuit Judge Gray Silver Jr. subsequently directed the commission to appear Jan. 20 and show cause, if any, why it should not be required to hold such a meeting.

In the Supreme Court case, the operators of Shenandoah Downs sought to prohibit further proceedings in the case in Silver's court, contending it lacked jurisdiction. It was this petition which the Supreme Court refused to consider.

ALL I DO IS WRITE MY CHECKS!

Of course I don't run around to pay my bills by cash. All I do is write checks once a month. And I carry my checkbook (which, by the way, is issued by The First National Bank and Trust Company) in my purse. Then, when I see a bargain, I just write a check. The transaction is complete, as far as I'm concerned.

Joe Moss Joins Air Force Academy Coaching Staff

Former Maryland Star Moves From West Texas State

Appointment of Joseph Charles Moss, 30, former Ridgeley (W. Va.) High School and University of Maryland grid star, as assistant football coach at the Air Force Academy was announced yesterday, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Colorado Springs, Colo.

Moss, who had served as assistant grid mentor at West Texas State, Canyon, Texas, last season, and Homer Smith, 27, as assistant at Stanford for the past three years, will replace airmen on the coaching staff who are being reassigned.

They will succeed Maj. Roy Anderson, freshman football coach, and Capt. Tom Bakke, end coach.

A native of Elkins, W. Va., Moss played football and basketball at Ridgeley High School for three years under Coach Jesse Riggleman and was graduated in 1948. The 1947 Ridgeley eleven won the P. V. C. championship, finished with a 6-1 record and Moss headed the conference scorers as backfield star of the Blackhawks.

Played Under Tatum

Joe played a regular tackle position at the University of Maryland in 1949, 1950 and 1951 under Coach Jim Tatum whose teams won 26, lost three and played one tie and won two bowl games. The 1949 Terps beat Missouri, 20-7 in the 'Gator Bowl and the 1951 team, which won ten and lost none, defeated Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl, 28-13.

After he was graduated from Maryland he served as one of Coach Tatum's assistants.

In Canadian League

In 1951 Moss played for the Washington Redskins of the National Football League and the following year he was with Ottawa in the Canadian Football League. While in military service in 1954 Joe starred with Bolling Air Force Base, Washington, D. C. Prior to taking over as assistant coach last year at West Texas State, Moss held a similar position at Texas Tech, Lubbock.

Moss is married and has a son and daughter. His wife was Betty Gulick, formerly of Cumberland. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Moss, reside at Hagerstown where Mr. Moss is employed by the city. The Moss family moved from Elkins to Ridgeley in 1942.

Sister Resides Here

Mrs. Mildred Swick, 12 Virginia Avenue, is a sister of Joe Moss, and is the proud possessor of the shirt that her brother wore in the Sugar Bowl game on New Year's Day 1952. She also has many other souvenirs that Joe collected during the days he played college and professional football.

Washington Club Adds Four Scouts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The new Washington baseball club Monday signed four more scouts, bringing the total to 13.

Added to the staff were Dick Hager, formerly with the Cincinnati Redlegs, who will cover the Michigan territory; Eugene Morrison, onetime minor league outfielder, who will cover Indiana; Edward Schaack, former minor league pitcher, who will scout the Wisconsin territory, and Hank Grampp, former Chicago Cubs pitcher, who will scout the New York metropolitan area.

Additionally, Frank Piet, Bill Conroy and Joseph Kernan, all of Chicago, were signed as part-time scouts.

Postpone Fight

BAD SCHWALBACH, Germany (AP) — Peter Mueller underwent an emergency appendectomy Monday night, forcing an indefinite postponement of his title fight with Erich Scheoppner.

Schoeppner, German and European light-heavyweight champion, and Mueller had been scheduled to fight Feb. 5 in Dortmund. Mueller was reported in good condition Tuesday.

COMING HERE — Bill Mazeroski, whose ninth inning home run in the 7th and final game of the 1960 World Series gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 10-9 victory over the New York Yankees, has been added to the list of sports celebrities who will attend the 13th annual dinner of the Cumberland Dapper Dan Club, Sunday, January 29, at St. Mary's Hall. Mazeroski is one of the top second basemen in the major leagues. Bill was scheduled to appear at a Dapper Dan dinner several years ago but a death in his family forced him to cancel the trip.

Baseball Briefs

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Veteran catcher Del Rice, a 38-year-old free agent, has signed a 1961 contract with the Los Angeles Angeles of the American League, general manager Fred Haney announced Tuesday.

Rice played for Haney for four years with the Milwaukee Braves from 1956 through 1959. Last year he was with the Chicago Cubs and the St. Louis Cardinals.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Kansas City Athletics outfielder Hank Bauer, the first member of the American League baseball club to come to contract terms under its new ownership, vowed Tuesday not to play the 1961 season in spring training.

Bauer said part of his trouble with the A's last season, when he batted .275, was that he played too much in spring training.

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates announced Tuesday the signing of pitchers Earl Francis and Tommy Sisk, both righthanders who worked for Pirate farm clubs last season.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies announced Tuesday that shortstop Joe Koppe became the 10th player to sign for the 1961 season.

Koppe suffered a fractured right wrist in a collision with Tony Curry last June chasing a pop fly in short left field.

He was out of action June, July and August and returned to the lineup briefly in late September.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sam Jones, winningest pitcher on the San Francisco Giants' mound staff for the past two years, Tuesday returned his signed contract for 1961.

Jones, who won 21 games in 1959 and 18 last year, became the second member of the squad under contract. Harvey Kuenn, obtained in a trade with Cleveland, already has agreed to terms.

Stadium Will Be Ready For 1962

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor Wagner said Tuesday there is no doubt that New York will have a new 55,000-seat stadium in Flushing Meadow Park in time for the new National League team in 1962.

The mayor's optimism was not reflected, however, by Lawrence Gerosa, comptroller. Gerosa said he still has reservations on financial details and observed that if construction had started last fall "they would have had to work overtime to finish it in time for the 1962 season."

It has been estimated that the actual construction cost will be $15 million and that architectural and engineering costs will add $1.2 million.

Charnley Outpoints Gresham In London

LONDON (AP)—Dave Charnley, European and British lightweight boxing champion, easily outpointed Gene Gresham of Detroit in 10 rounds before a crowd of 5,000 at the Streatham Ice Rink Tuesday night.

Charnley weighed 137¾ and Gresham 137¼.

Cashen Named GM

BALTIMORE (AP) — J. Frank Cashen has been appointed general manager of Baltimore Raceway, President C. William Hetzer announced today.

He succeeds M. Joseph Lynch who resigned to accept the position of executive director of harness racing for the state of Pennsylvania.

Archie Moore, Schoeppner To Meet In March

Light-Heavy Match Set For New York

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Archie Moore and unbeaten Erich Schoeppner of Germany were matched Tuesday for a light-heavyweight championship fight at Madison Square Garden in New York, March 20 or 21, it was learned.

Although the 15-round bout will be staged at the Garden, it will be promoted by Feature Sports, Inc., a rival to the Garden Corporation.

Moore of San Diego, Calif., 46, still is recognized as the world's 175-pound champion in New York, California, Europe and the British Empire. Brown - haired, blue-eyed Schoeppner, 24, is light-heavyweight champion of Europe.

Moore and manager Jack (Doc) Kearns finally accepted the match Tuesday on a straight percentage basis in order to sign before Thursday's deadline, set by the New York State Athletic Commission.

Had he not signed by midnight Thursday, the commission would have vacated his title. The National Boxing Association vacated Archie's crown last Oct. 25 because of his long delay in making a defense. New York is not an NBA member.

Archie hasn't risked his championship in 19 months, although before that he set a record of nine defenses for light-heavy weights, since he won the title from Joey Maxim, Dec. 17, 1952.

His last defense was on Aug. 12, 1959, when he knocked out Canadian Yvon Durelle in the third round of their second title fight at Montreal. The champion of each division supposedly is required to let not more than six months elapse between defenses.

Chicago Added To NBA; Pitt Team Considered

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — The National Basketball Association Tuesday added Chicago as its ninth club for 1961-62 and indicated Pittsburgh might become the 10th team. The owners also agreed to set up a player pension plan.

Final action on Pittsburgh was deferred until midnight (EST) to permit further telephone negotiations between Maurice Podoloff, league president, and John Harris, head of the Pittsburgh group. At least one third of the $200,000 franchise fee must be paid and the balance guaranteed by March 15.

Chicago was admitted at an afternoon session when the franchise free requirement was met by Max Winter, Dave Tregar and Sam Karlov, all of Chicago.

WVU To Meet Pitt Tonight

Mountaineers Seek Their 11th Victory

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — West Virginia — its surge toward national ranking temporarily stalled by a loss to Villanova — expects to get back on the winning trail when it meets a so-so Pitt team here Wednesday.

The Panthers, West Virginia's oldest rival, have won six games against the same number of defeats, but number a good Purdue team among their victims. Both Pitt and West Virginia beat Syracuse by some 20 points.

The Mountaineers, 10-3 for the season, saw their eight-game win streak stopped by Villanova at Philadelphia last Saturday, 82-77.

West Virginia's 86.8-point scoring average ranks fourth nationally, and sophomore whiz Rod Thorn is climbing with his 21.6 average.

Coach George King's squad has generally been at its best on the road, knocking off such strong teams as Wake Forest, Tulane, Memphis State and George Washington before coming a cropper against Villanova.

Pitt, which has lost six straight games to West Virginia here, is led by forwards John Fridley and sophomore Ben Jinks.

College All-Star Game Is Canceled

NEW YORK (UPI) — The annual East-West College All - Star basketball game, sponsored by the New York Herald-Tribune in aid of the fresh air fund, will not be played this year because of schedule changes in other post-season tournaments.

Both the National Collegiate championship and the National Invitation finals will be held a week later than usual, on March 25, the Saturday usually reserved for the East-West game.

The East-West game is expected to be resumed next year with its 14th competition, the Herald-Tribune said.

Floyd Patterson Gets Neil Plaque

Bill Elias To Take Grid Coaching Job At Virginia

GW Mentor To Succeed Voris

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bill Elias, George Washington University football coach, has decided to take the head coaching job at the University of Virginia, it was announced Tuesday.

Robert K. Faris, George Washington athletic director, said Elias notified him late Tuesday that he was moving to the Virginia school. Elias was offered the job at a meeting with Virginia President Edgar F. Shannon at Charlottesville, Va., Monday night.

Elias conferred with Faris when he returned from Charlottesville Tuesday. He later met with George Washington acting President Oswald S. Colclough for 40 minutes.

Elias took a walk to think things over before telephoning his decision to Faris.

The 35-year-old Elias went unbeaten in his last six games during his first year as head coach at George Washington. He had a season's record of 5-3-1. A tie with Boston University and a 20-6 upset victory over the Air Force were among the streak after defeats in the first three games.

Virginia, meanwhile, ran its winless streak under coach Dick Voris to 28 games, giving Voris a three-year record of 1-29. The 28 consecutive losses equalled the national collegiate record.

Elias is no stranger to Atlantic Coast Conference teams which have used Virginia as a doormat three years. He starred as a quarterback for the University of Maryland before becoming head coach at the Richmond, Ind., high school.

Elias moved to Purdue University of the Big Ten Conference in 1953 and stayed there until moving to George Washington in 1959.

Stocks Decline Sharply In Sizable "Correction"

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks tumbled on the New York stock exchange Tuesday in their first sizable "correction" in two weeks.

Volume, dropping below the 4 million share level for the first time since Jan. 4, fell sharply along with the prices to 3,830,000 shares from 4,510,000 Monday.

Chemicals, steels, non-ferrous metals, oils and many aircrafts finished lower but plenty of late support found its way into the electronics, rails, business machines, vending stocks, department stores and special situations.

DuPont plunged 6½ points and took the biggest blame for the Dow-Jones industrial average falling 4.23 to 628.96. Also responsible were Alcoa off 1⅜, Eastman Kodak off 1⅛, General Electric off 1¾ and United Aircraft off 1⅜.

Rails gained 1.17 to 141.14 thanks to B&O which gained 1⅝. Utility stocks lost 0.35 to 102.09 with Panhandle down 1⅛ for the big mover here.

A total of 1,269 issues were traded, including 456 gainers and 572 losers. New highs came to 34. There were two new lows.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — A late burst of commission buying propelled most soybean futures to new highs for the season again Tuesday on the Board of Trade.

Wheat was mixed, and other grains closed mostly lower.

The final bell saw wheat off ⅝ to up 1⅛, corn unchanged to off ⅝; oats unchanged to off ⅜, rye off ¾ to up ⅛, soybeans off ¼ to up 2⅜ and drummed lard off 7 to up 2 points.

Soybeans ran into heavy profit-taking late in the session after rising more than 7 cents Monday. Trading was very irregular. The late rally was supported by climbing meal and oil prices.

Corn eased in quiet and mixed trading. An eastern house sold July. Britain bought about 400,000 bushels.

Export subsidies were granted on 1,210,000 bushels of corn, 301,764 bushels of oats and 71,000 bushels of rye.

Oats rallied partially from an early drop. Commission houses sold while cash interests bought nearby contracts. European countries purchased a total of 670,000 bushels.

Rye lost more than a cent on early commission selling.

Outside markets were mostly lower.

Browns: Extras (48-50 lbs) 40-41; top quality (48-50 lbs) 40-41½; mediums 35½-36½; smalls 31-32.

Swings In Bed

LONDON (UPI) — Joseph Yahuda, 60, sleeps in an electric bed that swings him for his health, the medical magazine Lancet reported Tuesday.

Yahuda is an expert on Greek and Hebrew and discovered that the ancient Greeks used swings for medical treatment. He claims the swinging bed sets his body cells in motion, releasing unwanted materials.

Work Is Needed On Area Bridge

Harold J. Snyder, district engineer for the West Virginia State Roads Commission at Keyser, has informed the Allegany County Board of Commissioners that the bridge between Piedmont and Luke is in bad condition and needs repainting and repairs.

Snyder submitted a report on the bridge showing that it would require $5,250 to sand blast, repair and repaint the structure. The cost of the work would be borne jointly by West Virginia and Allegany County.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said he would submit the report and letter to Harry Skelley, roads supervisor, for a check and report back to the board.

WIFE PRESERVERS

Card Of Thanks

The family of the late Harry Reiber wishes to express their sincere thanks and appreciation to all their friends, relatives and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy during their bedeavement. They also wish to thank those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars, the pallbearers and the minister, Rev. Thomas Mitchell. To all others who in any way rendered assistance, they are indeed grateful.
THE FAMILY

In Memoriam

In memory of our son Paul (Pete) Bennett whom God called home 9 years ago, Jan. 18, 1952.

Nine years ago God called him
Through his Heavenly, Holy door
And I'll meet him in that City
More perfect than before.
God knew how hard it was
To watch him in his pain,
For He had a Son who suffered too,
And now He lives again.
Dear "Pete" you're in God's garden
Of beauty and of rest;
You're with the many Angels
Whom God does love the best.
Sadly missed forever by
Mommy, Mom, Woody and
Mary Ann

Postmaster Named For Windber

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower Tuesday sent to the Senate the nomination of Marion E. Hopkins as postmaster of Nanjemoy in Charles County, Md.

Other postmaster nominations included Charles K. Bantley at Windber, Somerset County, Pa.

Whether any of the nominations will be confirmed by the Senate is a question. The incoming Democratic administration of John F. Kennedy could withdraw them and submit its own appointments.

Old Hand To 'Call Tune' At Inauguration Friday

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
Associated Press Writer

The first person to call the tune in the new Kennedy administration will be bald, beaming Meyer Davis, an old and sure hand at galvanizing political big shots into graceful action.

Impeccable in white tie and tails and beatific smile, Davis will wield the baton at next Friday's multiple inauguration balls for President John F. Kennedy in Washington's National Armory and Sheraton Park Hotel.

As musical director for the inauguration, Davis will shuttle back and forth among the bandstands with his own 45-piece orchestra, coordinate the down beats of eight other bands, decide when the distinguished guests should waltz and when they should rhumba, sort out the cues for the arrival of the president and vice president, and, in general, try to keep the balls from becoming brawls.

With 12,000 revelers expected at the Armory and other thousands at the hotels, this is no small assignment.

But to Davis, the pied piper of high society, it is no more difficult than helping John D. Rockefeller Jr. push a piano across a crowded room (because he didn't like the location of the band) or persuading Harry Truman that, no matter how much he hated it, people expected to hear the "Missouri Waltz."

Diplomacy is his beat, along with the fast foxtrot and the cha cha.

For Davis, this will be his seventh inauguration ball and, counting White House parties, the seventh president he has serenaded.

He can remember Warren Harding doing the one-step to "La Paloma." Calvin Coolidge imitating train whistles on the harmonica. A Herbert Hoover aide halting a White House party in mid-number because he had instructions the music must end at 1 a.m. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt leading a square dance in the East Room. Dwight and Mamie Eisenhower exchanging shy smiles over "Down Among the Sheltering Palms," their song from courtship days.

Davis and his music will be no strangers to the new President and his First Lady. He played for their wedding reception at Hammersmith Farm in Newport, R.I., and for Jackie's coming out part at "Merrywood," her family's estate in McLean, Va.

Mrs. Kennedy, he says, "is an exquisite dancer, graceful, charming, with a lovely figure."

And the President? 'Well, let's just say he tends a bit toward the conservative."

The dancing skills of the Kennedys will not be at issue.

"The President," Davis explains, "never gets to dance at his own ball. I guess the Secret Service men wouldn't stand for it. But quite frequently the vice president may get out on the floor. I remember that Nixon did quite a bit of dancing. He's quite adept at the waltz, you know."

Inaugural balls also differ in quite a few other respects from the usual high society functions.

Solons Agree On Teacher Pay

Little Change In James Plan Seen

By GEORGE BOWEN

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Leaders of the Maryland Legislature apparently reached agreement late Tuesday on a limited pay raise for Maryland school teachers in line with the fiscal program recommended by the Legislative Council's James Committee.

It was reported after a late afternoon meeting of Democratic leaders in the assembly that they would accept an aid-to-education program of some $6.4 million, as proposed by the council's Committee on Taxation and Fiscal Matters, and add some $200,000 to it to benefit Baltimore County.

Legislators from Baltimore County, headed by House Majority Leader Gordon Boone, had been leading a fight to revise the program and grant schoolteachers a larger general salary increase.

Baltimore County had stood to receive only school construction money under the proposal by the committee, headed by Sen. William S. James, D-Harford. Details of what adjustment will be worked out were not immediately learned.

The legislative leaders of the House and Senate met behind closed doors for more than two hours this afternoon. A representative of the governor's office attended the hearing. Tawes had said he would be willing to accept a compromise in the James plan as long as it did not greatly exceed the amount recommended by the committee.

The bill as introduced calls for a $3,368,763 to be distributed to the counties and Baltimore City for operating costs and $3,059,313 for aid to school construction.

The agreement reportedly arrived at late Tuesday deals an apparent set-back to hopes of teachers for a general pay increase in the neighborhood of $11 million.

Obscene Literature Bill

Meanwhile, a so-called "last effort" to keep literature deemed obscene away from children in Maryland went over a hurdle without a hitch.

The House of Delegates gave quiet, semi-final approval to a bill that in the past evoked strenuous resistance.

Opponents said they still didn't like the idea of censorship implicit in the bill and still considered it unconstitutional.

However, for the moment they were willing to remain silent on word from Del. Francis X. Gallagher, D-Balto 3rd, that this would be his last effort to try to write a law that will satisfy the Supreme Court of the United States.

The court last year rejected a Maryland law passed in 1959.

Gallagher, a principal supporter and draftsman of that bill, said the substitute he is offering this time was drawn along lines suggested by the Supreme Court.

It makes it a misdemeanor to knowingly sell, give, display or advertise for sale to anyone under 18 literature that would be considered obscene for minors.

Soundness Questioned

Opponents feel this approach also will be held unconstitutional by the Supreme Court if tested because in effect it sets up two degrees of obscenity — for adults and minors.

"It seems that proponents won't be satisfied until they obtain a final judicial declaration that literature for minors can't be censored," said an opponent.

There were only two negative votes voiced when the House Judiciary Committee gave the obscene book bill a favorable report. No word of opposition was voiced when it was given full House approval, although it still could be raised on final vote, perhaps later this week.

The bill makes no effort to define "obscene" or how a book is to be judged. The penalty for offering one to a minor would be a fine up to $200 and imprisonment for a year.

While the book bill was progressing, a $500 pay raise for State Police joined the contest for state money. The proposal that failed in the 1959 session was brought back by Dels. William J. Myers and Harry J. McGuirk of Baltimore's sixth district.

Youths Found Guilty In Junk Thefts

Three Given Fines, Two On Probation

Five area youths yesterday were found guilty in a series of thefts from two junkyards in Cresaptown which occurred during the past several months.

Three of the youths, Edward D. Miller, 19, Fairgo; Gene R. Martz, 19, Cresaptown, and James E. Hetrick, 19, Cresap Park, were found guilty of petty larceny, while two 17-year-old boys who were involved in the case were found guilty of being delinquent minors and were given suspended sentences.

The combined hearing was held before Magistrate Paul W. Barnett.

Magistrate Barnett fined Miller $200; Martz $100 and Hetrick $50. He also ordered Miller, Martz and one of the juveniles to make restitution of $181 to the owners of the junkyards for the junk which was stolen and later sold by the youths.

Martz and Hedrick were released from the County Jail after paying their fines and Miller was committed to the jail for 60 days in default of his $200 fine.

Another youth who was arrested in connection with the case, Ernest W. McKee, 19, Cresaptown, was found not guilty of the larceny charge by Magistrate Barnett.

Yesterday's case was prosecuted by Donald W. Mason, assistant state's attorney.

Sgt. William F. Baker and Tfc. Milton G. Hart, criminal investigators for the State Police, arrested the youths Monday.

State Police said the youths visited the two junkyards on about 10 or 11 different occasions and took items which included car radiators, vises, batteries, car radios and heaters, and car transmissions.

The latest theft occurred last Wednesday night when 15 car radiators were stolen. Police later recovered them where they were hidden in a section off Winchester Road.

Rec Program Sets New High For Attendance

Attendance in the recreation program sponsored by the City of Cumberland climbed to another record breaking height, according to the 1960 report of the City Recreation Department.

The annual report, released yesterday, showed that 164,250 persons took part in the various acctivities provided by the Recreation Department.

C. Eugene Mason, director, said the attendance record indicates a continually growing need for recreation activities during leisure time and that the need exists throughout the year.

"Recreation is such an important part of our daily living," he said, "that the opportunity for it cannot be left to chance — it needs to be carefully planned to meet the challenge ahead."

The report shows the department spent $26,854.91 during the past year for its varied activities.

Details of the activities and service program are given in separate sections of the report.

Retail Merchants Meet Tomorrow

Arthur Ramey Will Retire On January 31

Became Supervisor Here In 1934

Arthur G. Ramey, who has served as supervisor of transportation in the Allegany County public school system ever since 1934, will retire effective January 31, Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster informed the County Board of Education yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Ramey, who has been connected with the Allegany County public school system ever since 1924, is retiring because of ill health.

The retiring supervisor came to Frostburg in 1924 from Charles Town, W. Va. and taught mathematics at Beall High School for 10 years. From 1927 until about 1947 he officiated at most of the important high school football games played in Cumberland.

Held Various Posts

In 1934 he became supervisor of pupil personnel as well as supervisor of transportation. In 1946 he became supervisor of physical education as well as transportation but relinquished the pupil personnel duties to Homer S. Higgins then. Since 1956, when Robert E. Pence became supervisor of physical education, Mr. Ramey has concentrated on the transportation position.

During his service as supervisor of physical education, Mr. Ramey attended seven or eight conventions of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations. He also was one of the leaders in the organization of the State High School Athletic Association in 1946 and was its president in 1952. He was instrumental in bringing a number of nationally-known persons here to conduct football clinics.

A graduate of Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia, he did graduate work at the University of Virginia, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Columbia University, The Johns Hopkins University and the University of Maryland.

He was a Naval aviator in World War I and reached the rank of lieutenant commander when he was discharged in the fall of 1919.

Other Action

In other routine action, the Board of Education approved the use of three auditoriums. The Junior Woman's Civic Club received permission to use the Fort Hill High School auditorium for a variety show on the nights of February 24 and 25. It will be for the benefit of Friends Aware of Handicapped Children

Use of the West Side School auditorium on Wednesday, February 23, was granted for a joint concert by two junior music clubs, the Golden Instruments and Happy Harmony clubs for the benefit of parents. The Lonaconing City Band was given permission to use the Valley High School auditorium for a rehearsal February 19 and concert on February 22. At the concert the band will receive flags from the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion.

Contracts for two new teachers were approved. They are Neil Toey, now at Valley High School, and Mrs. Phyllis Raines Harrison, Westernport Elementary School.

Approval was given to the payment of bills totalling $17,980.31.

Home Entry Cleared By City Police

A breaking and entering and larceny which took place here in August 1960 has been cleared, city police said.

Two teen-age youths who were involved in the case have been sentenced to the Maryland Training School for Boys, said City Police Detective Captain James E. Van.

John Kelly of White Avenue reported to police on August 11, 1960 that someone had ransacked his home while he was away. A quantity of canned food and soap were taken and two bottles of beer were drunk by the intruders who placed the empties back in the refrigerator.

Meanwhile, said Captain Van, two other minor boys will be given a hearing at 1:30 p. m. today in Juvenile Court in connection with the breaking and entering and theft of two guns from a local home.

Yesterday Captain Van and Detective Thomas J. See went to Meyersdale, Pa. and recovered a 16-gauge shotgun which had been sold to the proprietor of a tavern there.

The other gun, a 30-30 caliber rifle was recovered at a local store. They were reported taken from the home of Liola Myers, 2 South Terrace, after entry was gained through a rear window earlier this month. The guns were valued at $90.

Cancer Chapter's New Officers

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, center, last night was re-elected president of the Allegany County Chapter of the American Cancer Society. Also elected last night were Miss Mary Margaret Smith, RN, left, secretary, and Dr. Benedict Skitarelic, right, named vice president. Dr. Wayne W. Speedliner Hits Truck, Kills Man

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP)— The driver of a pickup truck was killed Tuesday when the truck was rammed by a train, but the driver of a car being towed by the truck was unhurt.

State Police said Norman L. Olinger, 56, of Hedgesville, W.Va., was killed instantly when his truck apparently stopped on a grade crossing and was struck by an eastbound locomotive of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Olinger's truck was towing a car driven by Gilbert Stotler, also of Hedgesville. Stotler was not injured but was taken to a hospital for treatment of shock.

The accident occurred about eight miles west of here near Hedgesville.

The train was the Daylight Speedliner, a commuter from Pittsburgh to Baltimore with about 200 persons aboard. The engineer was identified as Earl Keyser of Cumberland.

Police said Olinger was an employe of the North Mountain Brick Yard, located near the scene of the accident.

1961 Maryland Highway Maps Are Available

Recreational facilities of Western Maryland are featured in the 1961 edition of Maryland's official highway map.

Copies of the tourist map have been received here and may be secured free at the State Roads Commission's district office on Braddock Road.

Maryland's western counties, the SRC says, form one of the nation's most attractive and exciting mountain playgrounds.

The region is known for its glorious views from modern highways which run along tree-lined mountain tops.

Western Maryland, the SRC says, is a year-round vacation paradise and at the same time plays an important part in contributing to the industrial and economic strength of the nation.

C&P Telephone Communication Area Expands

Direct Dialing Plans Approved

Western Maryland's communications system continued to expand and improve during 1960, according to T. W. Dwyer, district commercial manager for the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company.

Nearly 68,000 telephones are now in use in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties. This is an increase of about 2,200 during 1960 and more than 20,000 during the past five years, Mr. Dwyer said.

C&P Company officials said plans for further expansion of direct dialing of long distance calls were approved during 1960 and equipment installations will be completed in 1961. At present, Cumberland residents may dial station-to-station calls over the nationwide long distance network.

Residents of Western Maryland made more calls during 1960 than ever before. The new peak was 122,100,000 as compared with 70,500,000 for the year 1955.

Among the large improvement projects completed last year in this area were the opening of a new exchange at Oldtown at a cost of $120,000 and a $100,000 addition to the dial equipment in Cumberland.

For improving the outside cable and wire network in Western Maryland, C&P spent over $800,000 in 1960. One of the largest jobs was putting up new cable across Backbone Mountain between Oakland, Kitzmiller and Piedmont, W. Va. The entire communication network in Allegany, Garrett and Washington counties was expanded by providing more circuits between all exchanges to handle an increasing volume of calls.

Telephone service for cars and trucks was extended to Western Maryland in 1960, when a mobile radio transmitting and receiving tower was completed on Fairview Mountain. Vehicles traveling across the state from the vicinity of Town Hill to Ocean City may now make and receive telephone calls en route.

For the state as a whole, Mr. Dwyer said telephones in service reached an all-time peak of 1,303,000 at the end of 1960. He pointed out that while the census shows the population was increasing 32 per cent over the past 10 years, telephones more than doubled in number.

The company is now planning construction expenditures of more than a quarter of a million dollars during the next five years to further improve and expand Maryland's phone system.

25% Of County Teachers Have Master's Degrees

Only two other Maryland counties have a higher percentage of teachers with master's degrees than Allegany County, according to one of the statistical tables included in the 93d annual report of the State Board of Education showing the condition of the public schools of Maryland for the year ending June 30, 1959.

The report just released shows that 165 or 25.6 per cent of Allegany County's teachers as of October 1958 had a master's degree. That's 6.1 above the state average of 19.5 per cent with master's degree

Talbot County on the Eastern Shore and Montgomery County near Washington are the only counties with a higher percentage of master's degree teachers. Talbot led with 47 or 28.3 per cent. Montgomery County had 742 or 27.6 per cent with a master's degree.

Allegany's two nearest neighbors rank fourth and sixth in the percentage of teachers with master's degrees. Washington County placed fourth with 174 or 23.8 per cent while Garrett County ranked sixth with 37 or 20 per cent.

405 Are Graduates

This same table reveals that 405 other Allegany County teachers, 62.7 per cent of the staff, held a bachelor's degree as of October 1958. That percentage is below the state average of 64.2 per cent, principally because this county has a higher percentage with master's degrees. Allegany County had 88.3 per cent with a master's or bachelor's degree compared with 83.7 per cent state-wide.

In Garrett County, 117 or 63.2 per cent of the teachers held a bachelor's degree in October 1958. Coupled with the 20 per cent with master's degrees, that means that 83.2 per cent of Garrett County's teachers had degrees. That is four-tenths of one per cent under the state average.

Allegany County had one-ninth of the Maryland teachers with doctor's degrees as of October 1958. Of the 27 in Maryland's 23 counties, 10 teach in Baltimore County, six in Montgomery County, three in Allegany County, two each in Anne Arundel and Washington counties and one each in Frederick, Harford, Somerset and Worcester. The other 14 counties had no faculty members with a doctorate.

This county was well below the state average in percentage of teachers with only two or three years college and in the number with less than two full years of college.

72 Lack Degrees

Seventy-two Allegany County teachers as of October 1958 had two or three years college. That is 11.1 per cent of the force, compared with the state average of 14.5 per cent. The only counties with smaller percentage of two-three year college education, the table showed, are Montgomery, 7.2 per cent; Calvert, 8.1 per cent, and Caroline, 8.4 per cent. Garrett County had 29 teachers, 15.7 per cent of its staff, with two or three years of college education at the time the State Department of Education report was compiled.

State-wide as of October 1958, there were 285 teachers with less than two years of college education to their credit. That is 1.8 per cent of the total force. Only four of them, or six-tenths of one per cent in Allegany County, had less than two years of college. Two of Garrett County's teachers, or 1.1 per cent of them, had less than two years of college education when this report was prepared.

Most of Allegany County's teachers without degrees are in the elementary schools. Fifty-six of the 72 with two or three years of college were in the elementary ranks, as were all four of those lacking two years of college education.

Chemical Workers To Meet Tonight

Local 261, United Chemical Workers, will meet tonight at 8 o'clock at the Cresaptown Fire Hall. Officers urged that all members attend, as important business will be discussed.

475 Boats Registered In County

A total of 475 boats are registered in Allegany County according to William B. Matthews Jr., director, Boating and Recreation Division of the Department of Tidewater Fisheries.

He pointed out that in Garrett County there are 281 boats registered. As of December 31, 1960 there were 47,985 boats registered throughout Maryland.

Of this total, 15,161 are inboard motor boats; 32,393 are propelled with outboard motors; 219 by sail alone; and the propulsion of 212 is unknown.

It was pointed out that if a motor is attached to a sail boat it is considered a motor boat by law, and that only those motor boats whose engines are over 7½ horsepower and pure sail boats 25 feet and over are required to be registered.

Mr. Matthews said of the total number of boats, 82.5 per cent were less than 26 feet in length, which, shows the trend not only toward small boats with outboard motors, but also reveals that yachting is no longer a "rich man's hobby."

He urges all persons selling or transferring their boats to report such sale to the Department of Tidewater Fisheries, as is required by law.

"Present indications are that the 1961 boating season will be the largest ever, and the more promptly we are notified of the transfer of a vessel the quicker the new owner will receive his Certificate of Number," Mr. Matthews said.

The number stays with the boat as long as that boat is in existence. However, the new owner must have a certificate in his name, the director added.

School Board Backs Higher Teacher Pay

$4,000 Starting Salary Advocated

A new teacher salary schedule starting at $4,000 and reaching a maximum of $6,200 in the 12th year of teaching was approved by the Allegany County Board of Education yesterday afternoon and will be included in the proposed budget for the 1961-62 fiscal year to be submitted to the Board of County Commissioners in February.

This proposed schedule was submitted to the Board of Education yesterday by the legislative committee of the Allegany County Teachers Association. Should this schedule get the approval of the county commissioners, it will mean an annual increase of $300 or $400 for virtually all of the 634 teachers in the county public school system.

Figures submitted to the Board of Education by John D. Kelly, chairman and spokesman for the committee, indicate that the overall cost of the increase in teachers' salaries would total $205,100.

403 At Top

More than five out of eight county teachers are now at the peak salary of $5,900 a year and they would go to $6,200 under the new plan. That $300 boost for each of 403 fully-experienced teachers would cost a total of $120,900.

Here's how the increase would work out, according to the committee's figures:

Some 19 second-year teachers would move from the present $3,900 to $4,200; 23 third-year teachers would get $4,400, up $400; 19 four-year teachers would receive $4,400, up $400; 34 fifth-year teachers would get $4,800, up $400; 22 sixth-year teachers would obtain $5,000, up $400; 21 seventh-year teachers would go to $5,200, up $400; 25 eighth-year teachers would get $5,400, up $400; 30 ninth-year teachers would receive $5,600, up $400; 19 10-year teachers would receive $5,800, up $400; 22 11-year teachers would get $6,000, up $100, and 403 12-year teachers would get $6,200, up $300.

Aimed At Frederick

Mr. Kelly explained that in making its recommendations, the committee looked at the salary schedule now in effect in Frederick County and sought to reach its range. Frederick County has a $4,000 minimum and a $6,100 maximum in the 11th year of teaching. He said the only difference was that his group added a 12th step calling for $6,200.

However, since the committee arrived at its recommendations it has been informed that the county commissioners in Frederick County will grant teachers there a locally-paid $300 a year increase, making the range from $4,300 to $6,400, still above the figures asked here.

Allegany County is one of six in Maryland now starting teachers below $4,000 and Dorchester County is at $3,900, $100 above this county. This county's present maximum of $5,900 is ahead of eight other Maryland counties and the lowest is at $5,700. Neighboring Washington County begins at $4,200 and reaches $6,100 in the 16th year.

Dr. W. Ardell Haines, another member of the legislative committee, pointed out that last year the county commissioners virtually promised a $100 increase this year when they granted a $100 boost instead of the requested $200. The $100 a year for each of 634 teachers would cost $6,300 or about one-third of the recommended request.

Md. Board Asks Higher Pay For School Teachers

BALTIMORE (AP) — The State Board of Education recommended Tuesday that a minimum wage scale of $4,000 to $6,000 be adopted for public school teachers.

The board also recommended certain increases in salary for staff members of the Department of Education.

The recommendations were made at a special meeting at which the board heard a report from its consultant, Dr. R. Reeman Butts, professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia University.

Dr.Butts said his study of Maryland public schools indicates young people today are brighter and more capable than students were 50 years ago. He said modern forms of communication probably play an important role in making youngsters more alert and responsive.

Dr. Butts made a broad survey of Maryland public schools in 1958 and recently has been studying the curriculum in Montgomery County schools.

The educator said television, radio, newspapers and magazines are so readily available to young people that they have a wider understanding of many subjects than previous generations.

He recommended more foreign languages, algebra and social studies be taught in public schools. He suggested "non-Western" languages, such as the Oriental tongues, might be introduced.
